A CONSTITUTION OR FORM OF GOVERNMENT FOR THE
Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

THE end of the institution, maintenance, and administration of government, is to secure the existence of the body politic, to protect it, and to furnish the individuals who compose it with the power of enjoying in safety and tranquillity their natural rights, and the blessings of life: and whenever these great objects are not obtained, the people have a right to alter the government, and to take measures necessary for their safety, prosperity, and happiness.

government.

The body politic is formed by a voluntary association of individuals: it is a social compact, by which the whole people covenants with each citizen, and each citizen with the whole people, that all shall be governed by certain laws for the common good. It is the duty of the people, therefore, in framing a constitution of government, to provide for an equitable mode of making laws, as well as for an impartial interpretation and a faithful execution of them; that every man may, at all times, find his security in them.

Body politic,
how formed
Its nature.

We, therefore, the people of Massachusetts, acknowledging, with grateful hearts, the goodness of the great Legislator of the universe, in affording us, in the course of His providence, an opportunity, deliberately and peaceably, without fraud, violence, or surprise, of entering into an original, explicit, and solemn compact with each other; and of forming a new constitution of civil government, for ourselves and posterity; and devoutly imploring His direction in so interesting a design, do agree upon, ordain, and establish, the following Declaration of Rights, and Frame of Government, as the CONSTITUTION OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

PART THE FIRST.

A Declaration of the Rights of the Inhabitants of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Equality and natural rights of all men.

ARTICLE I. All men are born free and equal, and have certain natural, essential, and unalienable rights; among which may be reckoned the right of enjoying and defending their lives and liberties; that of acquiring, possessing, and protecting property; in fine, that of seeking and obtaining their safety and happiness.

12 Allen, 129.

II. It is the right as well as the duty of all men in society, publicly, and at stated seasons, to worship the SUPREME BEING, the great Creator and Preserver of the universe. And no subject shall be hurt, molested, or restrained, in his person, liberty, or estate, for worshipping GOD in the manner and season most agreeable to the dictates of his own conscience; or for his religious profession or sentiments; provided he doth not disturb the public peace, or obstruct others in their religious worship.

Amendment, Art. XI. substituted for this.

III. [As the happiness of a people, and the good order and preservation of civil government, essentially depend upon piety, religion, and morality; and as these cannot be generally diffused through a community but by the institution of the public worship of GOD, and of public instructions in piety, religion, and morality: Therefore, to promote their happiness, and to secure the good order and preservation of their government, the people of this commonwealth have a right to invest their legislature with power to authorize and require, and the legislature shall, from time to time, authorize and require, the several towns, parishes, precincts, and other bodies politic, or religious societies, to make suitable provision, at their own expense, for the institution of the public worship of GOD, and for the support and maintenance of public Protestant teachers of piety, religion, and morality, in all cases where such provision shall not be made voluntarily.]

Legislature empowered to compel provision for public worship;

And the people of this commonwealth have also a right to, and do, invest their legislature with authority to enjoin upon all the subjects an attendance upon the instructions of the public teachers aforesaid, at stated times and seasons, if there be any on whose instructions they can conscientiously and conveniently attend.

Provided, notwithstanding, that the several towns, parishes, precincts, and other bodies politic, or religious societies, shall, at all times, have the exclusive right of electing their public teachers, and of contracting with them for their support and maintenance.

Exclusive right of electing religious teachers secured.

And all moneys paid by the subject to the support of public worship, and of the public teachers aforesaid, shall, if he require it, be uniformly applied to the support of the public teacher or teachers of his own religious sect or denomination, provided there be any on whose instructions he attends; otherwise it may be paid towards the support of the teacher or teachers of the parish or precinct in which the said moneys are raised.

Option as to whom parochial taxes may be paid, unless, &c.

And every denomination of Christians, demeaning themselves peaceably, and as good subjects of the commonwealth, shall be equally under the protection of the law: and no subordination of any one sect or denomination to another shall ever be established by law.]

All denominations equally protected. 8 Met. 162. Subordination of one sect to another prohibited.

IV. The people of this commonwealth have the sole and exclusive right of governing themselves, as a free, sovereign, and independent state; and do, and forever hereafter shall, exercise and enjoy every power, jurisdiction, and right, which is not, or may not hereafter be, by them expressly delegated to the United States of America, in Congress assembled.

Right of self-government secured.

V. All power residing originally in the people, and being derived from them, the several magistrates and officers of government, vested with authority, whether legislative, executive, or judicial, are their substitutes and agents, and are at all times accountable to them.

Accountability of all officers, &c.

VI. No man, nor corporation, or association of men, have any other title to obtain advantages, or particular and exclusive privileges, distinct from those of the community, than what arises from the consideration of services rendered to the public; and this title being in nature neither hereditary, nor transmissible to children, or descendants, or relations by blood, the idea of a man born a magistrate, lawgiver, or judge, is absurd and unnatural.

Services rendered to the public being the only title to peculiar privileges, hereditary offices are absurd and unnatural.

VII. Government is instituted for the common good; for the protection, safety, prosperity, and happiness of the people; and not for the profit, honor, or private interest of any one man, family, or class of men: Therefore the people alone have an incontestible, unalienable, and infeasible right to institute government; and to reform, alter, or totally change the same, when their protection, safety, prosperity, and happiness require it.

VIII. In order to prevent those who are vested with authority from becoming oppressors, the people have a right, at such periods and in such manner as they shall establish by their frame of government, to cause their public officers to return to private life; and to fill up vacant places by certain and regular elections and appointments.

IX. All elections ought to be free; and all the inhabitants of this commonwealth, having such qualifications as they shall establish by their frame of government, have an equal right to elect officers, and to be elected, for public employments.

122 Mass. 595, 596.

X. Each individual of the society has a right to be protected by it in the enjoyment of his life, liberty, and property, according to standing laws. He is obliged, consequently, to contribute his share to the expense of this protection; to give his personal service, or an equivalent, when necessary: but no part of the property of any individual can, with justice, be taken from him, or applied to public uses, without his own consent, or that of the representative body of the people. In fine, the people of this commonwealth are not controllable by any other laws than those to which their constitutional representative body have given their consent. And whenever the public exigencies require that the property of any individual should be appropriated to public uses, he shall receive a reasonable compensation therefor.

XI. Every subject of the commonwealth ought to find a certain remedy, by having recourse to the laws, for all injuries or wrongs which he may receive in his person, property, or character. He ought to obtain right and justice freely, and without being obliged to purchase it; completely, and without any denial; promptly, and without delay; conformably to the laws.

XII. No subject shall be held to answer for any crimes or offence, until the same is fully and plainly, substantially, and formally, described to him; or be compelled to accuse, or furnish evidence against himself. And every subject shall have a right to produce all proofs that may be favorable to him; to meet the witnesses against him face to face, and to be fully heard in his defence by himself, or his counsel, at his election. And no subject shall be arrested, imprisoned, despoiled, or deprived of his property, immunities, or privileges, put out of the protection of the law, exiled, or deprived of his life, liberty, or estate, but by the judgment of his peers, or the law of the land.

And the legislature shall not make any law that shall subject any person to a capital or infamous punishment, excepting for the government of the army and navy, without trial by jury.

XIII. In criminal prosecutions, the verification of facts, in the vicinity where they happen, is one of the greatest securities of the life, liberty, and property of the citizen.

XIV. Every subject has a right to be secure from all unreasonable searches, and seizures, of his person, his houses, his papers, and all his possessions. All warrants, therefore, are contrary to this right, if the cause or foundation of them be not previously supported by oath or affirmation, and if the order in the warrant to a civil officer, to make search in suspected places, or to arrest one or more suspected persons, or to seize their property, be not accompanied with a special designation of the persons or objects of search, arrest, or seizure: and no warrant ought to be issued but in cases, and with the formalities prescribed by the laws.

XV. In all controversies concerning property, and in all suits between two or more persons, except in cases in which it has heretofore been otherways used and practised, the parties have a right to a trial by jury; and this method of procedure shall be held sacred, unless, in causes arising on the high seas, and such as relate to mariners' wages, the legislature shall hereafter find it necessary to alter it.

XVI. The liberty of the press is essential to the security of freedom in a state: it ought not, therefore, to be restrained in this commonwealth.

XVII. The people have a right to keep and to bear arms for the common defence. And as, in time of peace, armies are dangerous to liberty, they ought not to be maintained without the consent of the legislature; and the military power shall always be held in an exact subordination to the civil authority, and be governed by it.

Moral qualifications for office.

XVIII. A frequent recurrence to the fundamental principles of the constitution, and a constant adherence to those of piety, justice, moderation, temperance, industry, and frugality, are absolutely necessary to preserve the advantages of liberty, and to maintain a free government. The people ought, consequently, to have a particular attention to all those principles, in the choice of their officers and representatives: and they have a right to require of their lawgivers and magistrates an exact and constant observance of them, in the formation and execution of the laws necessary for the good administration of the commonwealth.

Moral obligations of lawgivers and magistrates.

Right of people to instruct representatives and petition legislature.

XIX. The people have a right, in an orderly and peaceable manner, to assemble to consult upon the common good; give instructions to their representatives, and to request of the legislative body, by the way of addresses, petitions, or remonstrances, redress of the wrongs done them, and of the grievances they suffer.

Power to suspend the laws or their execution.

XX. The power of suspending the laws, or the execution of the laws, ought never to be exercised but by the legislature, or by authority derived from it, to be exercised in such particular cases only as the legislature shall expressly provide for.

Freedom of debate, etc., and reason thereof.

XXI. The freedom of deliberation, speech, and debate, in either house of the legislature, is so essential to the rights of the people, that it cannot be the foundation of any accusation or prosecution, action or complaint, in any other court or place whatsoever.

Frequent sessions, and objects thereof.

XXII. The legislature ought frequently to assemble for the redress of grievances, for correcting, strengthening, and confirming the laws, and for making new laws, as the common good may require.

Taxation founded on consent.
s. Allen, 247.

XXIII. No subsidy, charge, tax, impost, or duties ought to be established, fixed, laid, or levied, under any pretext whatsoever, without the consent of the people or their representatives in the legislature.

Ex post facto laws prohibited.
12 Allen, 421,
424, 428, 434.

XXIV. Laws made to punish for actions done before the existence of such laws, and which have not been declared crimes by preceding laws, are unjust, oppressive, and inconsistent with the fundamental principles of a free government.

Legislature not to convict of treason, etc.

XXV. No subject ought, in any case, or in any time, to be declared guilty of treason or felony by the legislature.

XXVI. No magistrate or court of law shall demand excessive bail or sureties, impose excessive fines, or inflict cruel or unusual punishments.

Excessive bail or fines, and cruel punishments, prohibited.
5 Gray, 482.

XXVII. In time of peace, no soldier ought to be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner; and in time of war, such quarters ought not to be made but by the civil magistrate, in a manner ordained by the legislature.

No soldier to be quartered in any house, unless, etc.

XXVIII. No person can in any case be subject to law-martial, or to any penalties or pains, by virtue of that law, except those employed in the army or navy, and except the militia in actual service, but by authority of the legislature.

Citizens exempt from law-martial, unless, etc.

XXIX. It is essential to the preservation of the rights of every individual, his life, liberty, property, and character, that there be an impartial interpretation of the laws, and administration of justice. It is the right of every citizen to be tried by judges as free, impartial, and independent as the lot of humanity will admit. It is, therefore, not only the best policy, but for the security of the rights of the people, and of every citizen, that the judges of the supreme judicial court should hold their offices as long as they behave themselves well; and that they should have honorable salaries ascertained and established by standing laws.

The legislative body shall assemble every year [on the last Wednesday in May, and at such other times as they shall judge necessary; and shall dissolve and be dissolved on the day next preceding the said last Wednesday in May;] and shall be styled, THE GENERAL COURT OF MASSACHUSETTS.

II. No bill or resolve of the senate or house of representatives shall become a law, and have force as such, until it shall have been laid before the governor for his revisal; and if he, upon such revision, approve thereof, he shall signify his approbation by signing the same. But if he have any objection to the passing of such bill or resolve, he shall return the same, together with his objections there-to, in writing, to the senate or house of representatives, in whichsoever the same shall have originated; who shall enter the objections sent down by the governor, at large, on their records, and proceed to reconsider the said bill or resolve. But if after such reconsideration, two-thirds of the said senate or house of representatives, shall, notwithstanding the said objections, agree to pass the same, it shall, together with the objections, be sent to the other branch of the legislature, where it shall also be reconsidered, and if approved by two-thirds of the members present, shall have the force of a law: but in all such cases, the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays; and the names of the persons voting for, or against, the said bill or resolve, shall be entered upon the public records of the commonwealth.

And in order to prevent unnecessary delays, if any bill or resolve shall not be returned by the governor within five days after it shall have been presented, the same shall have the force of a law.

[There shall be annually elected, by the freeholders and other inhabitants of this commonwealth, qualified as in this constitution is provided, forty persons to be councillors and senators for the year ensuing their election; to be chosen by the inhabitants of the districts into which the commonwealth may, from time to time, be divided by the general court for that purpose: and the general court, in assigning the numbers to be elected by the respective districts, shall govern themselves by the proportion of the public taxes paid by the said districts; and timely make known to the inhabitants of the commonwealth the limits of each district, and the number of councillors and senators to be chosen therein; provided, that the number of such districts shall never be less than thirteen; and that no district be so large as to entitle the same to choose more than six senators.]

And the several counties in this commonwealth shall, until the general court shall determine it necessary to alter the said districts, be districts for the choice of councillors and senators, (except that the counties of Dukes County and Nantucket shall form one district for that purpose) and shall elect the following number for councillors and senators, viz.:—Suffolk, six; Essex, six; Middlesex, five; Hampshire, four; Plymouth, three; Barnstable, one; Bristol, three; York, two; Dukes County and Nantucket, one; Worcester, five; Cumberland, one; Lincoln, one; Berkshire, two.]

II. The senate shall be the first branch of the legislature; and the senators shall be chosen in the following manner, viz.: there shall be a meeting on the [first Monday in April,] annually, forever, of the inhabitants of each town in the several counties of this commonwealth; to be called by the selectmen, and warned in due course of law, at least seven days before the [first Monday in April,] for the purpose of electing persons to be senators and councillors; [and at such meetings every male inhabitant of twenty-one years of age and upwards, having a freehold estate within the commonwealth, of the annual income of three pounds, or any estate of the value of sixty pounds, shall have a right to give in his vote for the senators for the district of which he is an inhabitant.] And to remove all doubts concerning the meaning of the word "inhabitant" in this constitution, every person shall be considered as an inhabitant, for the purpose of electing and being elected into any office, or place within this state, in that town, district, or plantation where he dwelleth, or hath his home.

The selectmen of the several towns shall preside at such meetings impartially; and shall receive the votes of all the inhabitants of such towns present and qualified to vote for senators, and shall sort and count them in open town meeting, and in presence of the town clerk, who shall make a fair record, in presence of the selectmen, and in open town meeting, of the name of every person voted for, and of the number of votes against his name: and a fair copy of this record shall be attested by the selectmen and the town clerk, and shall be sealed up, directed to the secretary of the commonwealth for the time being, with a superscription, expressing the purport of the contents thereof, and delivered by the town clerk of such towns, to the sheriff of the county in which such town lies, thirty days at least before [the last Wednesday in May] annually; or it shall be delivered into the secretary's office seventeen days at least before the said [last Wednesday in May:] and the sheriff of each county shall deliver all such certificates by him received, into the secretary's office, seventeen days before the said [last Wednesday in May.]

And the inhabitants of plantations unincorporated, qualified as this constitution provides, who are or shall be empowered and required to assess taxes upon themselves toward the support of government, shall have the same privilege of voting for councillors and senators

ARTICLE I. Whereas our wise and pious ancestors, so early as the year one thousand six hundred and thirty-six, laid the foundation of Harvard College, in which university many persons of great eminence have, by the blessing of GOD, been initiated in those arts and sciences which qualified them for public employments, both in church and state; and whereas the encouragement of arts and sciences, and all good literature, tends to the honor of GOD, the advantage of the Christian religion, and the great benefit of this and the other United States of America, — it is declared, that the PRESIDENT AND FELLOWS OF HARVARD COLLEGE, in their corporate capacity, and their successors in that capacity, their officers and servants, shall have, hold, use, exercise, and enjoy, all the powers, authorities, rights, liberties, privileges, immunities, and franchises, which they now have, or are entitled to have, hold, use, exercise, and enjoy; and the same are hereby ratified and confirmed unto them, the said president and fellows of Harvard College, and to their successors, and to their officers and servants, respectively, forever.

Powers, privileges, etc., of the president and fellows, confirmed.

II. And whereas there have been at sundry times, by divers persons, gifts, grants, devises of houses, lands, tenements, goods, chattels, legacies, and conveyances, heretofore made, either to Harvard College in Cambridge, in New England, or to the president and fellows of Harvard College, or to the said college by some other description, under several charters, successively; it is declared, that all the said gifts, grants, devises, legacies, and conveyances, are hereby forever confirmed unto the president and fellows of Harvard College, and to their successors in the capacity aforesaid, according to the true intent and meaning of the donor or donors, grantor or grantors, deviser or devisors.

All gifts, grants, etc., confirmed.

III. And whereas, by an act of the general court of the colony of Massachusetts Bay, passed in the year one thousand six hundred and forty-two, the governor and deputy-governor, for the time being, and all the magistrates of that jurisdiction, were, with the president, and a number of the clergy in the said act described, constituted the overseers of Harvard College; and it being necessary, in this new constitution of government to ascertain who shall be deemed successors to the said governor, deputy-governor, and magistrates; it is declared, that the governor, lieutenant-governor, council, and senate of this commonwealth, are, and shall be deemed, their successors, who, with the president of Harvard College, for the time being, together with the ministers of the con-

Wisdom and knowledge, as well as virtue, diffused generally among the body of the people, being necessary for the preservation of their rights and liberties; and as these depend on spreading the opportunities and advantages of education in the various parts of the country, and among the different orders of the people, it shall be the duty of legislatures and magistrates, in all future periods of this commonwealth, to cherish the interests of literature and the sciences, and all seminaries of them; especially the university at Cambridge, public schools and grammar schools in the towns; to encourage private societies and public institutions, rewards and immunities, for the promotion of agriculture, arts, sciences, commerce, trades, manufactures, and a natural history of the country; to countenance and inculcate the principles of humanity and general benevolence, public and private charity, industry and frugality, honesty and punctuality in their dealings; sincerity, good humor, and all social affections, and generous sentiments, among the people.

Basis of representation, and ratio of increase.

The number of inhabitants which shall entitle a town to elect one representative, and the mean increasing number which shall entitle a town or city to elect more than one, and also the number by which the population of towns not entitled to a representative every year is to be divided, shall be increased, respectively, by one-tenth of the numbers above mentioned, whenever the population of the commonwealth shall have increased to seven hundred and seventy thousand, and for every additional increase of seventy thousand inhabitants, the same addition of one-tenth shall be made, respectively, to the said numbers above mentioned.

The governor and council to apportion the number of representatives of each town once in every ten years.

In the year of each decennial census, the governor and council shall, before the first day of September, apportion the number of representatives which each city, town, and representative district is entitled to elect, and ascertain how many years, within ten years, any town may elect a representative, which is not entitled to elect one every year; and the governor shall cause the same to be published forthwith.

Councillors to be chosen from the people at large. Provisions as to councillors superseded by amendments, Art. XVI.

Nine councillors shall be annually chosen from among the people at large, on the first Wednesday of January, or as soon thereafter as may be, by the joint ballot of the senators and representatives, assembled in one room, who shall, as soon as may be, in like manner, fill up any vacancies that may happen in the council, by death, resignation, or otherwise. No person shall be elected a councillor, who has not been an inhabitant of this commonwealth for the term of five years immediately preceding his election; and not more than one councillor shall be chosen from any one senatorial district in the commonwealth.]

Qualifications of councillors.

No possession of a freehold, or of any other estate, shall be required as a qualification for holding a seat in either branch of the general court, or in the executive council.

Freehold as a qualification for a seat in general court or council not required.

Elections by the people to be by plurality of votes.

ART. XIV. In all elections of civil officers by the people of this commonwealth, whose election is provided for by the constitution, the person having the highest number of votes shall be deemed and declared to be elected.

Time of annual election of governor and legislature.

ART. XV. The meeting for the choice of governor, lieutenant-governor, senators, and representatives, shall be held on the Tuesday next after the first Monday in November, annually; but in case of a failure to elect representatives on that day, a second meeting shall be holden, for that purpose, on the fourth Monday of the same month of November.

ART. XVI. Eight councillors shall be annually chosen by the inhabitants of this commonwealth, qualified to vote for governor. The election of councillors shall be determined by the same rule that is required in the election of governor. The legislature, at its first session after this amendment shall have been adopted, and at its first session after the next state census shall have been taken, and at its first session after each decennial state census thereafterwards, shall divide the commonwealth into eight districts of contiguous territory, each containing a number of inhabitants as nearly equal as practicable, without dividing any town or ward of a city, and each entitled to elect one councillor: provided, however, that if, at any time, the constitution shall provide for the division of the commonwealth into forty senatorial districts, then the legislature shall so arrange the councillor districts, that each district shall consist of five contiguous senatorial districts, as they shall be, from time to time, established by the legislature. No person shall be eligible to the office of councillor who has not been an inhabitant of the commonwealth for the term of five years immediately preceding his election. The day and manner of the election, the return of the votes, and the declaration of the said elections, shall be the same as are required in the election of governor. [Whenever there shall be a failure to elect the full number of councillors, the vacancies shall be filled in the same manner as is required for filling vacancies in the senate; and vacancies occasioned by death, removal from the state, or otherwise, shall be filled in like manner, as soon as may be, after such vacancies shall have happened.] And that there may be no delay in the organization of the government on the first Wednesday of January, the governor, with at least five councillors for the time being, shall, as soon as may be, examine the returned copies of the records for the election of governor, lieutenant-governor, and councillors; and ten days before the said first Wednesday in January he shall issue his summons to such persons as appear to be chosen, to attend on that day to be qualified accordingly; and the secretary shall lay the returns before the senate and house of representatives on the said first

The secretary, treasurer and receiver-general, auditor, and attorney-general, shall be chosen annually, on the day in November prescribed for the choice of governor ; and each person then chosen as such, duly qualified in other respects, shall hold his office for the term of one year from the third Wednesday in January next thereafter, and until another is chosen and qualified in his stead. The qualification of the voters, the manner of the election, the return of the votes, and the declaration of the election, shall be such as are required in the election of governor. In case of a failure to elect either of said officers on the day in November aforesaid, or in case of the decease, in the mean time, of the person elected as such, such officer shall be chosen on or before the third Wednesday in January next thereafter, from the two persons who had the highest number of votes for said offices on the day in November aforesaid, by joint ballot of the senators and representatives, in one room ; and in case the office of secretary, or treasurer and receiver-general, or auditor, or attorney-general, shall become vacant, from any cause, during an annual or special session of the general court, such vacancy shall in like manner be filled by choice from the people at large ; but if such vacancy shall occur at any other time, it shall be supplied by the governor by appointment, with the advice and consent of the council. The person so chosen or appointed, duly qualified in other respects, shall hold his office until his successor is chosen and duly qualified in his stead. In case any person chosen or appointed to either of the offices aforesaid, shall neglect, for the space of ten days after he could otherwise enter upon his duties, to qualify himself in all respects to enter upon the discharge of such duties, the office to which he has been elected or appointed shall be deemed vacant. No person shall be eligible to either of said offices unless he shall have been an inhabitant of this commonwealth five years next preceding his election or appointment.

ART. XVIII. All moneys raised by taxation in the towns and cities for the support of public schools, and all moneys which may be appropriated by the state for the support of common schools, shall be applied to, and expended in, no other schools than those which are conducted according to law, under the order and superintendence of the authorities of the town or city in which the money is to be expended; and such moneys shall never be appropriated to any religious sect for the maintenance, exclusively, of its own school.

ART. XX. No person shall have the right to vote, or be eligible to office under the constitution of this commonwealth, who shall not be able to read the constitution in the English language, and write his name: provided, however, that the provisions of this amendment shall not apply to any person prevented by a physical disability from complying with its requisitions, nor to any person who now has the right to vote, nor to any persons who shall be sixty years of age or upwards at the time this amendment shall take effect.

ART. XXI. A census of the legal voters of each city and town, on the first day of May, shall be taken and returned into the office of the secretary of the commonwealth, on or before the last day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-seven; and a census of the inhabitants of each city and town, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, and of every tenth year thereafter. In the census aforesaid, a special enumeration shall be made of the legal voters; and in each city, said enumeration shall specify the number of such legal voters aforesaid, residing in each ward of such city. The enumeration aforesaid shall determine the apportionment of representatives for the periods between the taking of the census.

The house of representatives shall consist of two hundred and forty members, which shall be apportioned by the legislature, at its first session after the return of each enumeration as aforesaid, to the several counties of the commonwealth, equally, as nearly as may be, according to their relative numbers of legal voters, as ascertained by the next preceding special enumeration; and the town of Cohasset, in the county of Norfolk, shall, for this purpose, as well as in the formation of districts, as hereinafter provided, be considered a part of the county of Plymouth; and it shall be the duty of the secretary of the commonwealth, to certify, as soon as may be after it is determined by the legislature, the number of representatives to which each county shall be entitled, to the board authorized to divide each county into representative districts. The mayor and aldermen of the city of Boston, the county commissioners of other counties than Suffolk, — or in lieu of the mayor and aldermen of the city of Boston, or of the county commissioners in each county other than Suffolk, such board of special commissioners in each county, to be elected by the people of the county, or of the towns therein, as may for that purpose be provided by law, — shall, on the first Tuesday of August next after each assignment of representatives to each county, assemble at a shire town of their respective counties, and proceed, as soon as may be, to divide the same into representative districts of contiguous territory, so as to apportion the representation assigned to each county equally, as nearly as may be, according to the relative number of legal voters in the several districts of each county; and such districts shall be so formed that no town or ward of a city shall be divided therefor, nor shall any district be made which shall be entitled to elect more than three representatives. Every representative, for one year at least next preceding his election, shall have been an inhabitant of the district for which he is chosen, and shall cease to represent such district when he shall cease to be an inhabitant of the commonwealth. The districts in each county shall be numbered by the board creating the same, and a description of each, with the numbers thereof and the number of legal voters therein, shall be returned by the board, to the secretary of the commonwealth, the county treasurer of each county, and to the clerk of every town in each district, to be filed and kept in their respective offices. The manner of calling and conducting the meetings for the choice of representatives, and of ascertaining their election, shall be prescribed by law. Not less than one hundred members of the house of representatives shall constitute a quorum for doing business; but a less number may organize temporarily, adjourn from day to day, and compel the attendance of absent members.

ART. XXII. A census of the legal voters of each city and town, on the first day of May, shall be taken and returned into the office of the secretary of the commonwealth, on or before the last day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-seven; and a census of the inhabitants of each city and town, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, and of every tenth year thereafter. In the census aforesaid, a special enumeration shall be made of the legal voters, and in each city said enumeration shall specify the number of such legal voters aforesaid, residing in each ward of such city. The enumeration aforesaid shall determine the apportionment of senators for the periods between the taking of the census. The senate shall consist of forty members. The general court shall, at its first session after each next preceding special enumeration, divide the commonwealth into forty districts of adjacent territory, each district to contain, as nearly as may be, an equal number of legal voters, according to the enumeration aforesaid: provided, however, that no town or ward of a city shall be divided therefor; and such districts shall be formed, as nearly as may be, without uniting two counties, or parts of two or more counties, into one district. Each district shall elect one senator, who shall have been an inhabitant of this commonwealth five years at least immediately preceding his election, and at the time of his election shall be an inhabitant of the district for which he is chosen; and he shall cease to represent such senatorial district when he shall cease to be an inhabitant of the commonwealth. Not less than sixteen senators shall constitute a quorum for doing business; but a less number may organize temporarily, adjourn from day to day, and compel the attendance of absent members.

Ames.

Resolved, In view of the great services of Oakes Ames, representative from the Massachusetts Second Congressional District for ten years ending March 4, 1873, in achieving the construction of the Union Pacific Railroad, the most vital contribution to the integrity and growth of the national Union since the war ;

In view of his unflinching truthfulness and honesty, which refused to suppress, in his own or any other interest, any fact, and so made him the victim of an intense and misdirected public excitement and subjected him to a vote of censure by the Forty-Second Congress at the close of its session ;

And in view of the later deliberate public sentiment, which, upon a review of all the facts, holds him in an esteem irreconcilable with his condemnation, and which throughout the whole country recognizes the value and patriotism of his achievement and his innocence of corrupt motive or conduct :

In addition to these, the following Acts and Resolves were laid before the Governor which failed to receive his approval ; but as they were not returned by him with his objections within five days after receiving the same, and the legislature did not adjourn in the meantime, said Acts and Resolves had force of law under the provisions of the Constitution, and have been so certified : —

INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

HIS EXCELLENCY BENJAMIN F. BUTLER.

At one o'clock on Thursday, the fourth day of January, His Excellency the Governor, accompanied by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, the members of the Executive Council, and officers of the civil and military departments of the government, attended by a joint committee of the two houses, met the Senate and House of Representatives, in Convention, and delivered the following ADDRESS.

Gentlemen of the Senate and of the House of Representatives.

In accordance with a uniform usage, begun in the earliest times and now sanctioned by law, the "Supreme Executive Magistrate" of the Commonwealth is permitted at this time and place to address to the two bodies of the legislature such suggestions, views and recommendations as he may be advised to do, for their consideration and action.

It has also been usual in so doing to present at first a statement of the financial condition of the Commonwealth and of the several public funds appearing upon the books of its Treasurer and Receiver-General.

As the incoming Executive can have no other and different knowledge than is furnished by that officer upon these topics, I content myself by giving you a statement furnished by him as follows : —

I may in a special communication hereafter call to the attention of the legislature such matters relating thereto, as more full and accurate examination may make advisable.

There is another matter intimately connected with the financial condition of the Commonwealth concerning which it would seem convenient that the same course should be taken.

The expenditures upon the Hoosac Tunnel and the Troy & Greenfield Railroad, which apparently are more than equal to two-thirds of the public debt; the financial condition of these state concerns, their management, and what ought to be the course of legislation and executive administration in regard to them will, therefore, hereafter be made the subject of a special message.

In passing this topic it is permissible to say that after an investment costing the State more than $22,078,689.21 in a commercial and trading enterprise, which in its inception and prosecution was promised to be of great advantage to the State, it now appears that the Railroad and Tunnel find themselves to be in such condition as not to be self-supporting even, but leaving in the past year a small deficit to be provided for by taxation for expenses only.

FREE AND EQUAL SUFFRAGE.

There is one subject which is of so great importance to the people of the Commonwealth and to the best interests of the country, that I crave your patience if I present my views upon it at some length :

Free and equal suffrage to all who by the qualification of naturalization and the constitutional one of education, have the right to take part in the government of their State and country.

To this right and immunity of citizens of the United States, there should be no legal hindrance and specially the pre-requisite of paying a capitation tax.

I believe in such a tax as a duty of the citizen, but not as a qualification to his suffrage. Every man ought to pay, according to his ability, his just share of the burden of maintaining the government which protects himself, his family and his property, and which affords the means of education to his children. But the penalty for non-payment should not be disfranchisement and loss of citizenship ; that is too severe, and in all civilized countries is only attached to the highest crimes. But above all, it should not be imposed when such tax has not been assessed upon him so that he can pay it, as is now the law of our State.

It is the duty of every man to attend and take part in every election, and by his vote to give his assent to the laws which may be passed by his chosen representative ; for all governments derive their "just powers from the assent of the governed."

This duty of a freeman was enforced by our fathers in the earliest Colony time. In 1660, towns in Massachusetts passed and enforced the following by-law : —

"It is likewise ordered that if any man who is warned to any town meeting be not there when he is called, he shall be liable to pay 6d. If he come not at all 13d. Nor shall any depart without leave upon the like penalty."

How different are the provisions of law now by which the State practically offers a bounty of from one to two dollars to any citizen who will stay away from town meeting!

By an act of legislation, now, all the state and county taxes are assessed upon the polls under a limitation by law as to the amount. In my judgment "the poll-tax" as it is commonly called, should be assessed by the cities and towns for their proper benefit only, and not as a state and county tax. Under our laws, there is a direct interest in the towns not to assess the poll-tax, for three years in any five lest the payer should obtain by payment a settlement therein, i. e., a right to be supported by the town; a poll-tax being for the State, the town would directly receive nothing from such taxation. This inducement is now much stronger, as an alien may thus obtain such settlement who would otherwise be a state pauper. I therefore recommend a change in the law of assessment of the poll-tax, which is undoubtedly within the competency of the legislature, that the poll-tax should be assessed as part of the city or town tax for their use only. That would induce the towns to use diligence in assessing, and their collectors in collecting the poll-tax, which, going to the town, would be the contribution of the poll-tax payer towards the education of his children, and in so far an equivalent for his settlement.

I would further recommend that this tax should be assessed as now on the first day of May, and a separate warrant for its collection be issued to the collector as early as the thirtieth day of May, and that by law the collector should be required to make a return of such warrant by the fifteenth day of August; stating in his return what efforts he has made to collect each separate tax, if uncollected; and the reasons, if any, why not collected; and that he has exhausted all legal means for such collection.

By this course the tax would be paid during the summer season when the laboring man could pay it with the least difficulty, instead of the fall or winter months when labor is less remunerative and the expenses for fuel and clothing for the family much more pressing.

Such change of time of collecting the tax would relieve our elections, and our State from a practice which has obtained of late, of committees of the respective political parties paying the poll-tax for voters, in order to have the voter registered, who it is supposed will vote with those who pay his tax.

No more vicious practice could possibly exist. It debauches the voters, debases the payer, corrupts political action, and is certain to be the initial to other and further corruptions in elections.

Beside, it dwarfs and belittles the right of suffrage.

Is there not some justification for the committee man to say, "If the State bribes the voter with one dollar not to do his duty as a citizen, may I not give him the same sum to do his duty?" If the State puts that great franchise up for sale at a dollar, is there not some excuse for the voter when he has bought his vote of the State for a dollar, to sell it at two dollars?

I can have but little doubt that all men, of whatever class of political thought, will agree with me as to the propriety of the changes I have indicated in the law requiring the assessment and collection of the poll-tax.

It will be seen at once that by such a mode of assessing and collecting the poll-tax, if the law stops here, every poll-tax payer would be disfranchised, because the third article of the amendments to the Constitution makes the payment of a state and county tax within two years a prerequisite qualification for voting, except as therein provided. Therefore the legislature must go farther, and, under the provisions of the same article of the Constitution, "exempt by law such citizens as are assessed a poll-tax only by towns and cities, from any state or county taxation." Being so exempt by law, such citizens would be within the exemption of the same article of the amendments, which is in these words:—

"And also every citizen, who shall be by law exempted from taxation, who shall be in all other respects qualified as above mentioned, shall have a right to vote in such election of governor, lieutenant-governor, senators and representatives."

It is quite true that some vague opinions have obtained without investigation of the subject: that under our Constitution a state or county tax must be paid to enable the citizen to vote; and so it must be, unless the citizen is exempted by law from paying such tax. But it seems to me to be quite clear as a proposition of constitutional law, that if the poll-tax payer is exempted by law from taxation, — i. e., state and county taxation being the only taxation mentioned in that article, or elsewhere in the Constitution, — he being otherwise qualified, such citizen has by the very terms of the Constitution a right to vote.

We might come to that happy condition when from licenses and other indirect taxation, our state and county expenses being paid, we should not require to levy either a state or county tax upon the citizen or his property. This is already done in part. In such case would any one claim that where no tax was levied at all, there were no voters in Massachusetts, all being disfranchised under the first clause of Article III.?

Suppose the legislature should enact that no state or county taxes should be levied in a given year, as it may do, and I hope with due economy in state and county expenditures at some time will do, would such a law operate as a disfranchisement of all our voters, or an exemption of our citizens from taxation?

I am most fully persuaded that all patriotic men will agree with me in the desirability, at as early a day as possible, of establishing free suffrage to all citizens, with proper guards against frauds in its exercise, in Massachusetts, which makes its free institutions its proudest boast, if it can be done without violation of any inhibition of the Constitution.

If there should be doubt as to the constitutionality of the proposition I have made, this much desired end can be obtained by another legal method which has been twice decided by the supreme court of the State to be constitutional.

At the time of the enactment of the third article of the Constitution in regard to suffrage, it had been the habit of our fathers in the annual tax-act, which was then the method of authorizing the assessment of taxes, to exempt by law from taxation, classes of persons such as ministers of the gospel, instructors in public seminaries, and the like persons to whom such exemptions had been granted by law, “as one mode of making up their compensation for services.”

Let, therefore, a nominal poll-tax for state purposes be assessed as now on the polls of the citizens, and then if any citizen chooses to pay it, by doing his duty as a citizen by voting, let that act be a discharge and payment of such tax.

That would be a payment "in kind" by the freeman doing his duty as our fathers required him to do it, by fining him if he did not attend town meeting, as we have already seen.

This construction of the Constitution has been twice passed upon by the supreme court. First in 1833, reported in the 11th Pickering, p. 538, which decision was affirmed in 1843 in an opinion of the justices of the supreme court in the 5th Metcalf, p. 591. The court there says that, —

"Although this class of persons exempted by law has been diminished by succeeding legislation, it does not alter the meaning of the Constitution in this respect."

In other words, the Constitution, by the exception in the third article, which I have already quoted, put it in the power of the legislature to say what classes of persons should be exempted from state and county taxation in consideration of their employment or position in life, as the legislature could exempt from military and jury duty, which is a tax upon all citizens, such citizens as, for reasons controlling the legislative judgment, seemed to it proper.

May I be permitted, respectfully but firmly, to impress upon you the very great necessity for this change? Free suffrage is a right and immunity guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States, and enforced by a penalty upon any State that shall refuse it to a citizen of the United States who is also a citizen of that State.

The XIVth article of amendments declares :

"No state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges and immunities of a citizen of the United States, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of its laws."

Is not the right to give his vote in the election of his rulers, and in the enactment of the laws which shall govern him, by every theory of our government, one of the "privileges and immunities" of a citizen of the United States, he complying with all laws regulating the exercise of that immunity and privilege, which extend to all alike?

In practice, does not a property or tax qualification upon the voter bear unequally and unjustly upon him? If a small sum be made a prerequisite, then, with perfect parity of reasoning, a large sum may be imposed, which would put this franchise of freedom in the hands of the few only, who can then say, as the Roman captain answered to the apostle, "With a great sum obtained I this freedom;" and no Paul can proudly reply, "But I was free born!"

If any should doubt whether the right of voting is one of the "privileges and immunities" secured by the first section of the XIVth article of the Constitution, let him read the second section of the same article:—

"But when the right to vote at any election for the choice of electors for president and vice-president of the United States, representatives in congress, the executive and judicial officers of a state, or the legislature thereof, is denied to any of the male inhabitants of such state, being twenty-one years of age and citizens of the United States, or in any way abridged, except for participation in rebellion or other crimes, the basis of representation shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of such citizens twenty-one years of age in such state."

The second section thus puts a penalty, i. e., the loss of representation in congress, upon any State which shall in any way abridge the right of a citizen of the United States twenty-one years of age and upwards to vote, showing conclusively that voting is one of the "privileges and immunities" which the first section declares no State shall make or enforce any law to abridge.

Passing by the undisputed question of its justness, let me advert to another consideration.

I have said already that this measure seemed to be necessary for the well-being of the State and country. The United States census of May 1st, 1880, shows that there were in Massachusetts 502,648 male persons above the age of twenty-one years, and the rate of increase will now give us 535,692, out of 1,783,085 inhabitants. The largest vote ever cast in the State, in November of the same year, was for president, 282,512. The same census shows that there were males twenty-one years of age and over, neither aliens nor illiterate within our constitutional requirement, 447,083. These would be entitled to vote except for the hindrance of the poll-tax and the impediments made by our laws of registration. This failure to vote has been alleged to be "indifference of voters."

As we have seen, the largest vote ever cast was 282,512. Taking that from the total number of possible voters, 447,083, it leaves 164,571 practically disfranchised and not voting, or $36\frac{51}{100}$ per cent. of the voting population of the State, the total vote actually cast being but $63\frac{9}{100}$ per cent. of the voting population.

It will be also found that there are fewer voters in Massachusetts in proportion to the number of male citizens over twenty-one years of age than in any other State but five, North or South, however sparse and scattered the population of such State may be, while Massachusetts is one of the most compact and thickly settled of all the States.

The granting of the right of equal suffrage fully and freely is a great measure of safety to the State, to its good order and the security of life and property. We have seen how large a percentage of men in the State cannot, or do not in fact, for reasons which will be stated hereafter, exercise this right. Our laws, as now administered, allow them to take no part in the government. A large and fast increasing minority of the citizens of the State are deprived by our laws, and their execution, of any part in its concerns. They feel that they have not been permitted to take part in framing the laws under which they live. To such class of persons such laws seem and are oppressive. To them they have not given their assent or dissent. They have the ballot neither as a power nor a protection. Will they not look, then, for other combinations rather than legal ones, as a means of redress for real or supposed grievances? On the other hand, give them the ballot and they will conservatively use it under and according to the law for the redress of their grievances. It may be said that they now have equal rights and equal powers with all other men. Not true; but if it were, not by laws of their own making. Hold them with these oppressive laws of deprivation of their rights and they become the Pariahs of society, and will look to communistic association outside of the pale of the laws, for the protection and rights that they should have by the law. The argument put forth by some — the unreflecting — against equal rights and powers being accorded to all men, is that a dangerous class will arise. Not so. Power makes all men conservative, and sense of undeserved oppression makes all men lawless. Remember, that upon this class of citizens the State must rely for the military power which must enforce your laws. Why, then, strive to make them unhappy, discontented and lawless?

Fortunately, the abolition of the tax qualification for voting is not a question which now divides political parties.

In the Constitutional Convention of 1853 an amendment to strike it out of the Constitution was passed by a vote of 206 to 53. It was supported by the entire Democratic party of that day, headed by the venerable jurist Marcus Morton, — and all insisted that suffrage was a natural right.

It was supported by the men who gave birth to the Free-soil party, the nucleus of the Republican party, and was advocated by such men as Joel Parker, Chief Justice of New Hampshire and head of the Harvard Law School, Charles Allen, John B. Alley, Francis W. Bird, George S. Boutwell, Anson Burlingame, Henry Chapin, Richard H. Dana, Jr., Robert T. Davis, John M. Earle, Charles Sumner, Amasa Walker, Nathaniel P. Banks, Jr., and Henry Wilson.

No more learned jurists, no better statesmen lived in that day in Massachusetts, nor have lived since.

Vice-President Wilson used, in regard to tax qualification, the following nervous and eloquent language : —

“Poverty is bitter enough to be borne without the degradation of disfranchisement. . . . That constitutional provision which would deny to the poor man who could not pay his tax-bill the right to vote, should be forever blotted out of the Constitution of a Christian Commonwealth.”

Afterwards, two Republican Congresses by two-thirds majorities gave suffrage, free and untrammelled, to every white man and four millions of freed slaves by the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the Constitution which were adopted by three-fourths of the States, most of them Republican, one of which was Massachusetts.

The doctrine of absolute free suffrage remains a cardinal principle of the Republican party to-day, nowhere better or more eloquently stated than by one of her chosen representatives (who might well have been now addressing you), in a carefully prepared oration, delivered at Tremont Temple, upon questions of Republican principles in the late political campaign.

Mr. Crapo says :—

“What are these questions which demand our attention to-day? They are the questions of free and fair elections, the absolute enjoyment by every man in this country of the right to vote.”

The Republican party, through its administration, and by its entire organization, struck hands with the progressive Mahone, of Virginia, and in the election of 1882 caused the poll-tax qualification to be stricken from the Constitution of that State by the decisive majority of 107,303 to 66,171.

Opposition to a property or tax qualification for suffrage has been the doctrine of the Democratic party everywhere, except when led from the principles of true democracy by the influences of slavery, which all good men thank God are gone forever.

Of the thirty-eight States five only tolerate it in their Constitutions. It is for you, as legislators of Massachusetts, to say whether our old free Commonwealth shall remain longer in the degraded column.

THE IMPEDIMENTS OF REGISTRATION.

We have already seen the very great disproportion between the number of voters of the Commonwealth and the number of votes actually cast. That disproportion, however, is far beyond that which is caused by a tax qualification. This arises from the impediments thrown in the way of voting by our laws in regard to registration. Registration is a perfectly proper and necessary regulation as a prerequisite to voting, but it should be carefully guarded so as not to be a hindrance to the honest voter in the exercise of his rights. Within a few years there have been several provisions in regard to registration which are wholly unnecessary and obstructive. In the first place, the registration in cities closes at a very early day before the election, so that the voter is shut out from his privilege without notice. He should have the right, if qualified, to be registered down to the hour of opening the polls.

In the second place, as the registry is administered, a very large proportion of our voters have to be re-registered every year, and the fact that they have been once registered, and voted, does not seem to be considered by the registrars in making up the registration lists. I can best illustrate this point by referring to what has absolutely taken place in the registration of the city of Boston, and in so doing I give quite approximate but not accurate numbers.

In 1880 there were about 58,000 voters registered in the city of Boston. In 1882, when the registry lists were published, there were only 37,000 names on the registry lists. That was a striking off of some 21,000 names who had already once voted and shown themselves qualified. Why leave those names off, unless some positive evidence was shown to the registry that they were not voters? Only from the second Monday of September, or for some thirty days, is there any opportunity for the voter to get his name on the list. It is true that that time is shorter in Boston than in any other city or town in the Commonwealth, probably because there are more voters to be left unregistered.

The registration law has been altered in some form almost every year for the last seven, and always in derogation and obstruction of the voter. The changes which I would suggest are these: Let every man of twenty-one years and upwards, who is assessed, have his name put on the registration list, to be stricken off by the registrar after notice to him in case of any proof against him as a voter, a name once stricken off not to be re-registered in any subsequent year until the right to vote at that time is fully established by the voter. In other words, now, all intendments in registration are against the right to vote, and that the citizen is not a voter.

Why not put the intendment the other way, and let the fact that a man has been a resident in the town for six months, and has been taxed therein by the assessors, be prima facie evidence of his right to vote, making at the same time a provision that the assessors shall make inquiry at the time of the assessment as to the naturalization, and save the voter from losing the time of two or three days, more or less, to obtain his right of suffrage?

I recommend that the registration laws be revised in the light of these suggestions, and sufficiently guarded to prevent frauds, without being an actual obstruction to, and burden upon, the voters ; and, above all, let them be equal in all the towns and cities of the Commonwealth. If there is need of a difference between the provisions of cities and towns, let the same provisions be to all the cities alike, and to all the towns alike ; and let the provisions applying to the right of voting be published in the public laws of the State in regard to all places, and not be, as now, in regard to the city of Boston, in part omitted from the volume of public laws ; for certainly laws regulating the right of voting are public laws.

A FREE BALLOT AND A FAIR COUNT.

A free ballot requires freedom to vote and a fair count, to make it the effective agent of a free government. His vote should be given by the voter free from all intimidation, oversight by, or even knowledge of others. For his exercise of this great right the voter should only be accountable to his conscience and his God.

Complaints, more or less well founded, have been made that in Massachusetts, as in some other States, intimidation and coercion of voters have obtained. That ballots with distinctive colors and marks, to enable the commission of those wrongs, have been used. It is but just to say that former legislatures wishing to blot out this stigma upon the fair fame of our Commonwealth, have endeavored by law to so limit the size, printing and appearance of ballots as in some degree to render the ballots indistinguishable in the hand of the voter.

But why not strike at the very root of the evil at once, and provide that all votes shall be enclosed in self-sealing envelopes of the same size, quality and color, to be furnished by the State ? Then the size and complexion of the ballot would be immaterial.

This is not an untried experiment in Massachusetts. A law was enacted in 1851 by which all votes should be cast in such envelopes, and remained the rule until 1853, when the use of such envelopes was made, not compulsory, but permissive. From the moment of that change, to vote a sealed ballot marked the man who used it ; and such vote has rarely since been cast, although the law still remains on the statute book which requires that envelopes for such purpose shall always be furnished at the polls. The legal machinery is ready, and, to make it effectual, the permissive clause is only to be made obligatory.

There is now in the manner of conducting our elections a great scandal,—the want of accuracy in counting votes ; so that in closely contested elections, recounts are continually demanded, and almost invariably show a difference from the original count.

Allegations are made of stuffing and robbing ballot-boxes. All this would be prevented by the use of the envelope. The number of envelopes would always conform, in a well-conducted election, to the checked voters on the voting-list. And as it is provided that any envelope containing two votes should be thrown out, the possibility of fraudulent votes being cast would practically be obliterated.

I commend this change, in the interest of free and fair elections, most earnestly to your attention.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

There is another cognate subject to that which we have been discussing, which has received encouragement in the platforms of both political parties, and that is the right of suffrage in women. For myself I believe that that right is given them by the Constitution of the United States. By the decision of the courts, I am overruled in my action on this subject, but not in my convictions. It is an experiment in our government which never has been here practically tried. For although women are allowed to vote for a single class of municipal officers, yet there are so many restrictions and impediments thrown around it, that no woman with a proper spirit of self-respect ought to allow herself to pass through the ordeal to attain a useless privilege of voting thus invidiously. This, I believe, is the esteem in which it is held by a majority of the most estimable women of the Commonwealth.

Women cannot be permitted to vote in this Commonwealth, by our Constitution, for national or State officers (except for presidential electors) if the law were changed ; but they may vote, if the law so provides, in municipal elections.

While this experiment ought to be fully made, yet it cannot be so, as we have seen, without a constitutional amendment. To make that amendment would take three years. If the experiment should turn out to be an unfortunate one, it would take three years more to restore the constitutional provision.

There is one way, however, in which the experiment can most advantageously be tried, and at the same time, without any possibility of mischief, settle a question which, in my mind, will be determinative whether women should have the ballot, and that is whether the majority of women of this Commonwealth desire to vote. This is averred on the one side, and denied on the other; but certain it is, if the great body of intelligent women of the Commonwealth desire to vote they will have the vote, for I believe that fact being known, no just man would oppose it. I suggest, therefore, that a law be passed, allowing women to vote under the same regulations as men in municipal elections, which law shall take effect when it shall be accepted by a majority of the women voting at some general election.

Objection has been made that women do not desire to vote because it would be unpleasant to go into the ward-rooms and voting places. To obviate that objection, and to get a full and fair expression of the women upon this question, whether they will accept and exercise the right of voting, I would suggest that the women above twenty-one should be registered, the place, by number, or other sufficient description of residence, forming a part of the registry, and that every woman may deposit her vote, endorsed with her name and place of residence in her own handwriting, in the post-office, or in some proper box provided for the purpose, addressed to the proper officers of election in the cities and towns where they reside, within ten days before such general election, at which time the officers of election may open, examine, and compare the ballots with the registry lists and assort, count, and declare the votes as in other cases.

Such a law would seem to be easily framed so as to cut off all opportunity for fraud, very little temptation to which would exist, and thus enable every woman without trouble or discomfort to vote upon this question, and instruct the people of the Commonwealth as to their future action thereon.

ELECTION DAY A HOLIDAY.

As another adjunct to a full and fair vote, I would recommend that the day of general election be made a legal holiday, with the same safeguards as to observance as are given to Sunday in this regard, that no liquor be sold, and no liquor-shop be kept open between sunrise and sunset of that day. Now the courts adjourn, some other classes of business are suspended, while others are not, especially those requiring mechanical and manufacturing and other labor. Such a law would be but just to the large number of election officers who ought to have that day for their official duties.

As the elections in all the cities are arranged so nearly for the same time as the general election, I would suggest that the election of city governments might take place on the same day, each voter having then leisure to attend to both; and so save the cost, trouble and expense of another day of election.

NATURALIZATION.

No just-minded person will doubt that, so long as the theory of our institutions and the laws of the United States invite to this country people from foreign lands, and hold out to them as an inducement the terms upon which they shall be received, welcomed and may become citizens, any state legislation which tends to limit, impede or hinder their enjoying to the fullest degree, in manner pointed out by the laws of the United States, the promised privileges, is in so far an attempt at nullification of the laws of the United States.

The federal statute says to foreigners that, upon doing certain acts before certain courts of the United States, or before "any court of a State having common-law jurisdiction, a seal and clerk," they shall, upon the terms therein prescribed, become citizens of the United States, and by constitutional provision "citizens of the State in which they reside."

The supreme court of Massachusetts decided in the case Ex-parte Gladhill, that this law included the minor courts of the Commonwealth, such as police courts.

As a result of a political spasm directed against our foreign-born population, which occurred in this State more than a quarter of a century ago, a law was put upon the statute book restricting the application for naturalization to the superior and supreme courts only, and regulating the manner in which such application should be made and considered.

To the regulations no objection can be perceived, but the restrictions of the courts beyond the federal law are unwarranted either in fact or law.

In a case of naturalization the question to be adjudicated is simply whether the applicant declares under oath that he renounces and abjures all foreign allegiance, and proves that he has resided within the United States five years, and within the State one year at least, and during that time has been "of good moral character, attached to the principles of the Constitution of the United States, and well-disposed to the good order and happiness of the same." What is there in this that cannot be determined as well by the judge of a district or municipal court as by a judge of the superior or supreme court? Nay, better. The nearer the applicant resides to the judge the more easily such judge could decide from his knowledge of his neighbors and the witnesses appearing, whether the facts were true.

The superior court may be held many miles — and, in many cases, must be — from the residence of the applicant. The presiding justice is an inhabitant, perhaps, of the remotest part of the Commonwealth. The costs of travelling, and attendance of witnesses beside the party's own, in coming long distances, and perhaps waiting several days for the purpose of having his case heard, are burdensome as well as useless.

The facts to be proven are neither difficult nor involved; and it is not creditable to the Commonwealth that its laws should pre-suppose the appointment of judges in any court, however humble, who would be incompetent, or too corrupt, to try such questions.

Surely, if the right of naturalization is to be allowed at all, none ought to desire to interpose hardship, restriction, hindrance, or expense, in obtaining that which the United States have given.

I would recommend, therefore, that the restrictions of naturalization to the supreme and superior courts only, should be repealed.

The dockets of those courts are now sufficiently overburdened with business, from which the courts are seeking relief, and in so far they will be relieved by having this class of business taken from them and put in the inferior courts, where it can be more cheaply and better done, and where jurors and parties in other cases will not be kept waiting while it is being done.

No complaint has ever been made of any systematic frauds in naturalization in this Commonwealth, and we must take notice that of the many thousands of such frauds alleged and proven in a neighboring State, all were done in the superior courts of that State.

FEDERAL RELATIONS.

There has been for many years a standing committee of the two houses upon federal relations. So far as I am advised I know of nothing in the relations between the Commonwealth and the United States at present, which needs either observation or recommendation, so far as legislation is concerned. In former years homilies in the shape of resolutions were sometimes addressed by the legislature to the congress of the United States in form of resolves reported by that committee. But that practice has been in late years "more honored in the breach than in the observance," the theory of our government being that in both branches of the national legislature the State is represented by its chosen agents: and I think the legislature may feel assured that the interests of the State are safe in the hands of its agents lately chosen to represent it in that body.

There is one matter to which I think your attention should be called, and in regard to which, perhaps, instructions to your senators and representatives might be of use. The Commonwealth has a very large claim, which, with its interest, should now amount to nearly a half million dollars, for moneys expended under the direction of the Executive of the United States in preparation for coast defence against the Confederate cruisers. That claim was presented to congress many years ago; a commission was appointed to audit it. It was audited by the commission and the amount determined. That amount remains due and unpaid. Afterwards the claim passed the House of Representatives, but failed in the Senate. A vigorous prosecution by our congressional delegation of a claim so confessed and audited, would, I believe, give the State its just dues.

LABOR.

The relations of the employee and the employer; the methods of settling controversies between each other which are among the most dangerous to peace and good order, and are as yet without any solution under the laws; the duty incumbent upon the employer to protect the lives of those laboring for him; what degree of care is required from the master to the servant, or from the servant to the master, to use a legal phrase; and what, if anything, can be done by legislation to regulate the hours of labor, or enhance the rate of wages, are all subjects too intricate and involved to be presented here and now to your already overburdened attention, and may form the subject of a further communication.

I read, however, with pain, from the Report of the Chief of the Bureau of Statistics of Labor in 1875, that “In the majority of cases the workingmen of this Commonwealth [upon textile fabrics] do not support their families by their individual earnings alone. Fathers rely, or are forced to depend upon their children for from one-quarter to one-third of the entire family earnings.”

Especially is this so, as we can find nothing in the subsequent reports of that bureau, to show that that condition of things has altered within the eight years since it was written.

JUDICIARY.

No substantial complaint is made of the manner in which justice is administered in the supreme or superior courts of the Commonwealth. The decisions of our law courts are cited as authority of the highest grade in all the States.

There has been, however, and still is, complaint of the delays of justice. These are not the fault of the court, but of the systems of jurisdiction under which they must act.

The people also may justly complain of the enormous and increasing expenses attending the administration of the criminal law of the State. But this, again, is not the fault of the courts, but of the system. The truth is, the legal business of the State has simply outgrown the system and method of judicial procedure. This subject is a very difficult and complex one. I will in another communication give to the legislature such views of changes and alterations of this system as I may be advised and believe are necessary to remedy the evils of which complaint is made.

MILITIA.

There has been, since the organization of our volunteer militia in 1840, an effective body of troops, ready, willing, and able to do all the duties which they should be called upon to do. What there is now of our militia is in a very good state of efficiency, and well officered. There seem to me to be but two defects in our militia system, — one is the very great expense, in comparison with their numbers; the other is in the manner of their training.

In 1859 there were in camp, for three days at Concord, 5,333 officers and men. As that was an encampment of the whole militia on one field, it was quite exceptional in the amount of its expenditures. They were paid a per diem of $2.50 for the men, and $5.00 for the officers. The whole military expenses of that year were $66,098.80.

They were the men, two regiments of whom, on the 20th of April, 1861, were thrown into Fort Monroe, and made it safe to the government from that hour. Another regiment, the 6th, met its baptism of fire and blood at Baltimore, on the 19th; and another, the 8th, opened, and kept open, the way between the capital and the North via Annapolis. Large numbers of our militia became officers of the volunteer troops of this and other States during the war. They left their homes at an hour's notice, and what they did demonstrates their efficiency.

In 1882 there were 3,274 officers and men in camp, at Framingham, for five days. The pay of the men per diem was $2.00. The pay of the officers had been enacted to be the same as in the regular army, and the amounts varied according to rank. The total amount of our military expense for the past year was $153,500, from which, for the purposes of comparison, the special expense of the reception of the President, of $9,926.76, should be deducted. Of this total expenditure, the pay of the men, including transportation, was $54,611.40. I submit, these men were just as good, and no better, than their fathers of 1859-61.

From these figures it will be observed that, while the cost to the State of the encampment at Framingham of 3,247 men in 1882, including the two days' extra time, shows a small proportionate reduction of expenses when compared with the cost of the encampment of 5,333 men at Concord in 1859; yet the total military expenses for the past year have exceeded by about $74,500 those of the year 1859; while the muster-roll at the encampment in the latter year as compared with 1882, shows over two thousand more men present.

I give these figures to show that, for some reason, we do not get, in the number of men who encamped, an increase in the proportion to the increased expenditure, but to the contrary.

My criticism upon the training of the militia is that there has been of late an attempt to make their discipline too much like that of the regular army. The privates of our militia are usually young men who enter upon that service for the purpose of learning something of military art, and also as a matter of relaxation and recreation. The privates are in many instances quite the equal of their officers in all social and other qualities. A Massachusetts militia-man will do anything for love of his officer. He will do nothing for fear of him. The rule is quite the reverse in the regular army. The militia, in the men who compose it, is quite as unlike the men who compose the regular army as can well be imagined; and any attempt to bring the militia-men when off duty into the same rules that govern the men of the regular army only disgusts the militia-man with the service, and accounts for the fewness of numbers who appear for camp duty.

So far as the commander-in-chief is concerned, this will be remedied; and if, upon further advisement, any change of law is necessary, it will be asked.

CRIMES.

No State in the Union has so large and full lists of crimes and offences of the petty sort in her statutes as Massachusetts. Our statutes punish as crimes many acts of children which are left in other States to be corrected by the discipline of the parent. Many laws against offences, such as the non-observance of the Sunday law by unnecessary labor, profane swearing and the like, which seem to deter nobody from their commission, as a rule are only enforced as a means of venting malice and spite by a few individuals against their neighbors. These laws bring Massachusetts into great disadvantage when her criminal statistics are compared with those of other States. To people out of the State, who look to the number only of our criminals, it would almost appear that criminal offences with us were a state industry.

To the contrary I know from observation and comparison of the statistics of crime for many years, that there is no State in the Union that in fact has better ordered communities, or fewer of what ought to be denominated crimes, committed within her borders than Massachusetts.

There is one crime, however, which indicates such depravity of heart, such disregard of life, such malice toward all mankind, that the doing of it should be visited with the swiftest and most condign punishment. I recommend an act, in substance providing that whoever wilfully and deliberately does an act with intent to derail a moving train, propelled by steam on any railroad, shall upon conviction thereof suffer death. Such a man is in his heart a thousand times, it may be, a murderer of innocent men, women and children, who have done and can do him no harm. If by accident he fails in his nefarious purpose to accomplish which he has done all he can do, their escape is in the providence of God, and no merit of his.

The public mind is shocked as we read, day by day, of defalcations of trustees, treasurers, cashiers, and others intrusted with the care of moneys not their own, and pained at the loss of the earnings of a lifetime by their owners, the cause being, in most cases, traceable to gambling, followed in many instances by heartrending suicides, increasing in number, of husbands and fathers.

We have laws now, to prevent losses by "games of chance," but they are very far from reaching the evil, as the amounts lost and won by them are trivial compared with those of another and greater species of gaming.

In gambling, by selling by the one that which he has not to sell, and the buying by another that which he has not the means to pay for, carried on by securing a contract for property by depositing what are known as "margins," in the hope of a rise or fall of the article gambled in, under the many forms in which it is done, most of the cause is found of such defalcations and ruin. These evils in their extent are, comparatively, of late development, but now affect the community itself. This gambling is extended to quite all merchandise, but preferably the necessities of life. By large combinations, the price of corn, wheat, and other articles of food is raised to almost starvation prices, while the granaries are bursting and the markets are overstocked; but food cannot be sold because of enhanced price regrated by such means.

This is an offence at common law, but is rarely prosecuted.

The price even of cotton, the enormous supply of which would seem to put it beyond regrating or monopoly, upon the use of which the happiness of so many of our citizens and the prosperity of our State so largely depends, has also been in a great degree regulated by these methods. Conservative business men, treasurers of large manufacturing corporations, have been tempted into buying their supplies of cotton in what are known as "futures," leaving the price to be determined by chance; that chance however controlled by wicked conspiracy, thereby ruining themselves, destroying the enterprises they represent, and thus reducing to starvation thousands of laboring men and women.

I admit that these evils are difficult to reach by legislation; but I believe that difficulty is not insuperable. I recommend the matter to your careful consideration.

THE REFORMATORY, CORRECTIONAL AND PAUPER INSTITUTIONS.

The greatest ordinary expenditure of the State is to defray the expenses of its reformatory, correctional and pauper institutions. I have chosen to group these. They consist of the state almshouse, the state primary school, the state workhouse, the reformatory prison for women, the state prison, the reform school for boys, and the industrial school for girls.

I have not been able to obtain in time all the actual expenditures of these institutions for the past year, and therefore take the appropriations passed by the late legislature for their current expenses, and for salaries, and expenses of salaried agents, in the following sums :—

	Current Expenses.	Salaries.
Almshouse, Tewksbury,	$73,000	$20,000
Workhouse, Bridgewater,	29,000	11,000
Primary School, Monson,	35,000	17,000
Reformatory Prison for Women,	47,200	23,000
Reform School for Boys,	15,000	15,000
Industrial School for Girls,	9,000	5,600
State Prison,	82,300	54,800
Total expenses,	$290,500	$146,400
Expenses of agent for discharged female prisoners,		$2,300
Salary of agent for discharged convicts,		1,000
Expenses of agent for discharged convicts,		3,000
Contingent and travelling expenses of prison commissioners,		1,600
Salary of secretary of prison commissioners,		2,000
Inspector of Charities?
Office and incidental expenses,		8,000
In-door poor, " "		24,000
Out-door poor, " "		17,000
		<hr/> $58,900

Add $58,900 for these salaries of oversight and inspection and we have the large appropriation of two hundred and five thousand three hundred dollars ($205,300) to be expended as salaries in one year for superintendence in taking care of the paupers and convicts of Massachusetts, or 70 per cent. of the whole amount appropriated for their support and well-being.

It is not forgotten that there are very considerable appropriations for payment to cities and towns for support of state paupers; but, of course, these paupers in the city and town almshouses have their own proper care and attendance. And I have also left out some minor items which will not very materially affect the result of comparison of salaries to other expenditures.

It is true that in the term "salaries" the legislature includes the payment of employes to have care of these prisoners and paupers, as salaried persons. The number of outside persons who ought to be hired to do any labor in those institutions other than for supervision should be very small; for most of them have laboring men and women under their charge, who should generally be able to do all the manual service required.

And it is also to be observed that I have not included the appropriation for the insane poor in hospitals, although I am inclined to believe the disproportion there would be quite as striking.

In addition to this, in my judgment, vastly disproportionate amount of salaries to all other costs, all the salaried officers and employés (with the exception of the inspectors of charities and of in-door poor and out-door poor, the agents of convicts and their clerks), have their living expenses furnished them at the several institutions where they are employed, which are taken from the expenditure for maintaining the paupers and prisoners, of the amount of which no items appear.

Now, it may be assumed that the lowest amount any officer or employé elsewhere, pays from his proper salary for himself and family, for house rent, heat, light, living and washing, especially if he entertains from the same fund his relatives and friends, is one-third thereof. We then have a further addition of $48,800, making salaries and agents' expenses in fact more than 87 per cent. of all other current expenses for the welfare of the prisoners and paupers, from which there should be a corresponding deduction of $48,800, showing that the appropriations for the expenses for salaries and agents are more than those of all other expenses for supporting the poor by $12,000.

To illustrate how this question of such support of so many officers and their families affects the amount necessarily expended for the care of paupers, I quote certain items which I find charged to expenses of living of the paupers at Tewksbury almshouse, taken from the auditor's report for the year 1882. It will be remembered that that almshouse is wholly devoted to the care of, foreign sane and insane persons, largely women and children, who, apparently, before they came there, were not accustomed to a very high style of living.

Taking as the principal articles of provision which should be used in such a house, fresh and salt beef, I find the amount expended for beef of both kinds during the year to be $6,847.75. I find also that for tea, coffee, butter, cheese, chocolate, tobacco, eggs, sugar and milk, the amount charged to the support of the paupers is $12,269.81, or nearly twice as much as the beef. This was in addition to the milk, butter and eggs raised on a farm of 245 acres. We can partly guess how much of these articles of luxury were given to the paupers, and how much was appropriated to the large number of salaried officers, their families, friends, and employés, who were in charge.

It may not be improper here to call to mind that, under our laws as they now are, all these expenditures are under the sole control of the state board of health, lunacy and charity, and the prison commissioners.

It will doubtless be remembered that in 1878, in the course of the political canvass, observations were made upon this class of expenditures, in connection with the several commissions of the State, calling public attention to what was claimed to be extravagance and impropriety of administration in this regard.

An executive and legislature were chosen that year, composed of the political friends of those holding places on the several boards and commissions. That legislature abolished and changed all boards, commissioners and agencies having anything to do with the pauper and reformatory institutions of the State,—some ten in number,—and created instead a board of health, lunacy and charity, consisting of nine persons, to be appointed by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Council, who shall hold their offices for five years; which board shall have all the powers, and exercise all the functions of the boards abolished, and all of the bureaus and their agents, and assign all the duties thereof to their agents, appointed for the purpose; and to exercise any of its functions by agents or committees appointed by said board. The board was given supervision of all charitable and reformatory institutions, and when directed by the Governor, may exercise the powers and duties of all boards of trustees of charitable and reformatory institutions, including the lunatic hospitals; and they were to act as commissioners of lunacy. They were given power to appoint, with the consent of the Governor, and he consented, such officers as were necessary, and fix their compensation; and were to make their own by-laws, and make a report of their doings to the Governor and Council, on or before the thirty-first day of December in each year, the report to be made up to the thirtieth day of September in each year.

The same Act provided that a board of seven trustees should be appointed, — two of whom were to be women, — to have charge of the state reform school at Westborough, the industrial school for girls at Lancaster, and the primary school at Monson, who were to hold their offices for five years; also, a board of trustees of the state almshouse, who should hold their offices for three years; also, another board of trustees of the state workhouse, who should hold their offices for three years; and that the superintendents and physicians of the state institutions, except the lunatic hospitals, should be elected annually by the board of trustees; and that the other officers of those institutions should be appointed by the superintendents, with the approval of the trustees.

This Act did not interfere with the appointment of the officers of the four lunatic hospitals, which already were governed by boards of trustees, having definite terms of office, who were to appoint their own officers.

The same legislature reorganized the board of harbor and land commissioners, giving them fixed terms of office.

The same legislature also created a board of prison commissioners, who should have the special oversight of the state prison, the women's reformatory prison, and a general oversight of the other prisons of the Commonwealth; and, with the exception of the warden, chaplain and physician of the state prison, and the superintendent, treasurer, chaplain and physician of the women's prison, all other officers and employees of these prisons were to be appointed subject to their approval.

This Act also legislated into office the three incumbents of the old board.

It will be seen that substantially every commission and their officers, agents, and employees, having to do with the expenditure of the money of the Commonwealth, were thus placed beyond the power of the Executive branch of the government, and beyond the possibility of any change in actual administration of the government by the people, in a single year, or even a series of years, of disturbing this body of commissioners, boards, and trustees, who were to have charge of very large expenditures and the appointment of nearly all the officers and employees thereof.

Beyond question, they were put out of the reach of the Governor and Council so long as they behaved themselves well in their offices. There was a doubt whether they and theirs were safe if they acted improvidently, carelessly, or corruptly. This sole possible danger to those commissioners and other officers must therefore be averted.

This was done; and all were saved, the good and the bad, by an Act of the legislature of March 3, 1881, as follows:—

“Appointments made by the governor, or by the governor and council, may be by them revoked at any time for cause, unless the tenure of office or trust is expressly determined by the constitution or by law.”

You will observe that “office or trust” will cover all classes of civil officers appointed by the Executive, who have charge of the expenditures and property of the State. By these statutes, substantially all expenditures of the State and all the officers who have to do with them, are wholly beyond the reach of the Executive power of the State or of the people of the State, save through the legislature which might reach them by abolishing their offices.

The novelty and ingenuity displayed in the phraseology of this act, — the first part of it conveying the idea to the mind that it was a law giving power to the Executive to remove for cause, the sweeping but apparently innocent exception seeming to provide only for the life tenure of judges, and its adaptation of means to the end, would entitle its inventor to a patent except for the doubt of its usefulness.

It is hard to resist the inference that such an ingeniously constructed enactment was not made with a purpose, and that purpose to remove all the lucrative offices of the State from the control of the people or the Executive. At any rate, as the law now stands, any of these officers may commit any crime and be put into the state prison for so doing, — and it is not unheard of that persons connected with the state government have committed crimes, — and still they cannot be removed from office.

Nay, these boards and commissioners were not only removed beyond the Governor's control by law, but, if possible, beyond the control given him by the Constitution. It will be observed that these boards are to report by law but once a year to the Governor and Council, whereas by chapter II., section II., article XII. of the Constitution : —

“ All public boards . . . shall, once in every three months, officially and without requisition, and at other times when required by the governor, deliver to him an account of all goods, stores, provisions, . . . and of all other public property whatever under their care, respectively; distinguishing the quantity, number, quality, and kind of each, as particularly as may be.”

Let me not be misunderstood. I say here and now nothing concerning the conduct, character or standing of any member of the boards or commissions. I am commenting upon the system of unaccountability and uncontrollability which may be the result of the Act establishing them, intrenching them and their subordinates in office. I call the attention of the legislature to the laws which put nearly all subordinate departments of the government beyond the power even, of the supreme executive department. That department cannot investigate them or their agents, officers, employees, or the acts, doings or official integrity of any of them. The Governor, or Council, or both, cannot ask of any of them a question relative to the public service or their public duties, which either of them is obliged to answer. The Executive has no power to correct abuses, even if known and flagrant.

The history of all governments has shown that administrative powers exercised by a board induces corruption and carelessness in its members and agents. This rule obtains, however high and noble may be the position of those composing the boards, or however humble and insignificant. The board of directors of the East India Company, and of the board of supervisors of the Union Workhouses in England, illustrate this truth.

Philosophic political writers have always maintained this proposition. Jeremy Bentham says a “ board is a screen.” That is to say, agents use the board to cover their acts, and it is all the more useful as such, if composed of men of high character who have only a perfunctory interest in its operation. No thing was ever well administered by a board in which the members had no interest. Therefore, all well considered laws, erecting corporations always provide that the directors shall be stockholders, whether in banking or other business.

Even in business corporations is it not a well-known fact that most of them are at last managed by one man, usually a subordinate? If he desires to do wrong the board becomes a shield, and no less an effective shield, if, as in the cases of the boards we are considering, a sprinkling of most estimable ladies are put into it to fill the eye, and administer to the sentimentality of the public.

To show the legislature that management by boards is expensive, and specially if a large one, I present the following table, showing the great increase of cost of taking care of the sane and insane paupers of the State, taken from the public records and reports. It will be remembered that for a series of years prior to the year 1864 the state paupers were under the charge of the "alien commissioners."

TABLE.

Comparative Costs of Supporting the Sane and Insane Paupers for Five Years from 1859 to 1863, inclusive, and for Five Years from 1877 to 1881, inclusive.

	Whole number for five years.	Average number of paupers each year.	Total cost to support for five years.	Cost of support of one pauper for five years.	Cost of support of one pauper one year.	Cost of one pauper one week.	Cost of one pauper per day.
Sane and insane paupers supported under Alien Commission from 1859-63, inclusive,	15,013	3,002.6	$1,115,145 28	$371 40	$74 28	$1.473	$0.204
Sane and insane paupers supported under Boards of State Charities from 1877-81, inclusive,	11,034	2,260.8	$1,740,347 47	$769 79	$154 00	$2.96	$0.423

By examining the table it will be found that the cost of supporting the same number of sane and insane paupers under the Boards of State Charities was slightly more than double the cost of supporting the same number of sane and insane paupers under the alien commission. If the Boards of Charities had supported the 15,013 paupers which the alien commission had in charge at the same cost as the 11,304 which the boards did support, the loss to the State would have been $1,096,141.84.

This table includes nothing but the sums actually paid for the costs of the support and supervision of the same class of paupers, all other expenses having been left out in both cases.

It might strike the mind in looking at these figures that the discrepancy in cost might be attributed to difference in price of provisions; but if it is borne in mind that the last three years we have taken of the alien commission were during the war, and that war prices obtained for all the staples of life in 1862 and '63, it will be seen that that consideration will in no degree account for this great difference in cost.

So far as I can see, this enhanced cost arises from the very large increase of expenses of salaried officers, agents, the difference in system and management, and the want of any sufficient accountability for expenditures.

In addition, I submit the following table of the comparative cost of support of the same class of persons by the state board and the counties, from report to Board of Health, Lunacy, and Charity, 1881, Pub. Doc., No. 17, Table VIII., p. 43: — Worcester Hospital and Asylum; Taunton, Northampton, and Danvers Hospitals; Tewksbury and Bridgewater Almshouses; and Monson, Westborough and Lancaster Schools.

It will be noted that of the $248,414 expense in Suffolk County, $148,000 were for insane; hence the high cost per person.

Why should it cost less in the town almshouses in the several counties, including the insane supported there and boarded in the state institutions, than it cost the State?

I shall have occasion further to illustrate the tendency to extravagant expenditure, in speaking specially of other institutions.

Management by boards always is the subject of scandals ; and sometimes without any sins of commission on the part of members of the board, but by their subordinates, who find the board a convenient cover for their nepotism and peculations. In one of our pauper establishments there have been employed, under the board of state charities, from four to seven, for many years, in the same family, in the higher, most responsible and best paid places, drawing as salaries from four to six thousand dollars, besides the expenses of the living of all of them ; all sons, wives, and daughters, by blood and marriage, to the superintendent. Could any intelligent head of a great business concern justify himself for such class of appointments ? Would anybody expect to learn anything of the misdoings or shortcomings of any of such officers from either of the others ?

Have there not been scandals, public and well known, for years in that institution ? Was it not charged, and never denied, that, for years, of the infants born in or sent to that institution, more than ninety per cent. died as such ? All of these did not fill an infant pauper's grave, even ; for it can be shown that from one hundred and fifty to two hundred and fifty infant corpses were annually sold as merchandise to a single medical institution in the State, for from three to five dollars each. Many, if not all, came from thence, besides large numbers of bodies of pauper adults, furnished for other medical purposes, and sold as merchandise for very considerable sums ; and that done secretly, and not under and in accordance with the provisions of the law, which, under certain safeguards, permit almshouses to furnish the unclaimed bodies of deceased paupers for dissecting purposes to surgeons and medical schools, according to the decent and humane provision of the statute. Was this not in testimony before a grand jury ? Has it not been publicly known ? What record has the State of these dead infant children, to whom it took the place of parent ? What account, even, has ever been returned of the price of this merchandise of the Ghouls ? What record of birth or death or burial place, by which such bodies could be identified or classified ?

It is also true that since these scandals were made public the infant children have been sent away from Tewksbury, so that, as was reported last year, there were one hundred and four births and only five infant deaths there. But as those were neither “deserted children nor unbound foundlings,” we have no statistics of what has become of them. But the following extract from the report of the state board of health, lunacy and charity for the year 1881 will throw some light on the question :

“After years of effort and careful experiment it was found impossible to save the lives of the foundlings sent to Tewksbury. [Why impossible for a healthy child to live in Tewksbury almshouse?] At the same time the large number found dead in Boston and its vicinity, and the great mortality among this class in that city, attracted public attention, and some action was desirable.”

Now such infants are soon removed, and farmed out for care, to various persons, and the public are shocked to hear in the public prints of their deaths in passage.

Baby-farming has always been, in all countries, and all times, a fruitful source of scandals and brutal crime ; and we have no sufficient record in the reports of what has become of the large number of children born in our pauper institutions, although we have some statistics of those taken up as “deserted or foundling.”

I have searched the book of reports in vain for facts by which I might be able to refute these scandals, but can find no data given by which I may.

I have heretofore spoken of the immoderate expenses of this institution.

The question may be asked : Why did not the trustees or supervisors expose those iniquities? To that I answer that, years ago, a reverend clergyman, speaking of one of the trustees of this institution, who was his parishioner, in a public sermon stated in substance that he asked his parishioner how he could afford to leave his business and be the trustee or supervisor of such an institution without pay? And his reply was that he made enough out of the commissions on what was bought by it to pay him for his time. And although this sermon was printed and published, yet no investigation was had known to me, and I am certain the facts never came to the late Executive, because that trustee was reappointed within a year, and remains under your laws a fixture in office, not to be turned out, or investigated even, by any power in the Commonwealth except the great legislative power, which from my knowlege and experience of public business in a cognate body is of necessity the most unfit of all possible tribunals for investigation of facts.

THE STATE PRISON.

The appropriation in 1882 for salaries was $54,800 ; for current expenses, $73,000. It is true that the necessary watchmen in the prison may well increase the number of salaried officials.

All these expenditures are substantially made by the warden, who reports to the board of prison commissioners, which board was, as we have seen, reorganized in 1879, and became a law unto itself.

It has passed into history that improvidence, to speak no more harshly, was shown in the removal of the prison and location of the site, and the expenditures in the erection of the building and the arrangement of the prison at Concord. All this was done against the protest of the ablest men having in charge the reformatory institutions of the State ; and it is now difficult to find who is responsible for this change.

The question is one not without argument in the affirmative, whether it would not be better for the State, notwithstanding the immense sums expended at Concord, to return to the old prison at Charlestown. The cost of transportation of prisoners, the most of whom must come from near the centre of population, and the freights on supplies, are no inconsiderable item. The sanitary conditions of the site are not what they might be.

The location of the Concord prison, away from any large population, which has its police and military forces ready to be called upon if needed by the warden, tends to incite in the prisoners hopes of escape by breaking out or insubordination within the walls of the prison. True it is that, for years past, there has been a very unsatisfactory state of discipline in that prison. It is historical, also, that the only dangerous outbreak of prisoners while at Charlestown had to be quelled by the assistance of the United States marines from the navy yard.

It would seem either that the causes that I have named, or the incompetency or impropriety of conduct of those in charge of the prison, must have produced this want of discipline and insubordination, for none other can hardly be conceived. Prisoners must be taught implicitly to obey all rules for their government, and it should be the duty of the Executive to see that those rules are reasonable.

The unwillingness of the convicts to labor, and, in some instances, the failure to find contractors competent to employ their labor, has, among other things, made the prison not self-supporting, but an actual charge to the Commonwealth. From 1866 to 1873 inclusive, the prisoners were self-supporting as to all expenses, and in the latter year they earned quite forty dollars per man above their cost, or $23,422.42 net income to the State. The prison has not been self-supporting since. In 1881 the prisoners earned $40.76 less per man than their cost, leaving $28,613.52 to be paid by taxation, or a net loss to the State of $52,035 94 as compared with 1873.

The commissioners in their report for 1881 state that the expenditures have increased ten thousand dollars over the previous year. This, they say, is due in part to advance in provisions and in the item of coal consumed. They also say that the average number of prisoners for the past year being only 702, is a cause of increased cost and decreased earnings.

But in 1873 the whole number of men was 586, against 702 in 1881, and the total cost per man was $193.18 in 1873, as against the cost in 1881 of $167.60; and in the first year the fewer prisoners earned $40.76 per man more than their cost.

Fortunately, this institution is, as to its management, in some degree, within the reach of the Executive.

I respectfully submit that much may be done by legislation to improve the discipline of the prison, and make the institution efficient as a reformatory, and to cause the labor of the prisoners to be self-supporting.

The prisoners are congregated there in large numbers, without hope — without anything to which they may look forward, except the expiration of their respective sentences, and without any sufficient inducement to good conduct because the time of a sentence runs as well for the insubordinate and sullen prisoner as for the good one. The prisoner has no encouragement to labor cheerfully and effectively. It profiteth not him or his. He goes to a daily task, irksome and hopeless.

Might not legislation change all this, by providing that every prisoner, by working steadily and efficiently, and obeying all the rules and regulations imposed upon him, may work off a portion of his sentence every month, according to his deserts — say ten days out of every thirty, as the highest reward of merit; and a less number for less exertion, and less obedience and good conduct. Now, only obedience to all rules counts.

I believe that this would do more to prevent insubordination and outbreak than guards, solitary cells, bread-and-water diet, or other punishments.

Of course, this could not apply to those with life sentences; but still, good conduct and assiduous labor by them could easily, by law, be made a merit to shorten even life terms, through the pardoning power.

Might not a certain percentage of the earnings of the prisoner be invested in a fund, apportioned according to his deserts and length of service, and be given the prisoner when he is discharged, to start him in the world again — this percentage to be enlarged when the prison becomes self-supporting? Would not such provision be much better for the self-respect of the convict, being his own, than the pittance that now is doled out to him by an officer known as the “Agent for aiding discharged convicts,” who spent, in 1881, $2,654.43 in relief of the convicts, and appropriated $1,340.80 to himself, for salary and other expenses, in so doing?

Would not another good result from this treatment of the prisoner? Experience, I doubt not, would show that, under it, nearly all of the convicts could be trusted to work out of doors, and upon that kind of labor which would not come in direct competition with the skilled labor of the honest mechanic outside, as the present system of employing convict labor in manufactures, in the state prison and houses of correction, now does.

This method of employing convict labor is not wholly theoretical with me, but experimental. Within the limits of my command during the war, I found a large number of men who for various crimes, military and other, had been sentenced to longer or shorter terms at hard labor by courts-martial and military commissions. Upon inspecting them I found that hard labor consisted principally in frolicking all night and sleeping all day, because of the lack of proper employment. No in-door work could be provided for them, but putting a distinguishing uniform on them, under a few men to guard and control them, I put them at labor in cleaning the streets of a hostile city, giving them the inducement to good conduct which I have sketched. Although they were employed afterwards miles away from the army in repairing a break in a canal in the enemy's country, not a man was lost by escape, and a better and more efficient body of working men I never saw.

Nor were they a different class of men from those men now in our state prison, except, perhaps, worse; for it is well known that the exigency of filling quotas largely emptied the prisons of Massachusetts and other Northern States into the army.

If the legislature will approve of this experiment, the Executive will give all needed thought and industry to organizing it into a successful solution of the questions which now make insubordination and sullenness "danger to officers, and cruel, although perhaps necessary punishments, to the men in our state prisons." If the experiment is successful it would probably be followed by employing the convict labor of our several houses of correction, outside their walls, in raising on the lands attached to them a large portion of the food they consume. It might tend to take the state prison back to its condition in 1870, when its salaries, including the pay of the inspectors, were $36,823.06 and its ordinary expenses $76,210 53, or a total of $113,033.59, and its income $138,900.

THE STATE REFORMATORY PRISON FOR WOMEN.

The expenses of keeping women there are by far too high for any good result that is attained. There are very few inmates, so that the average cost of their support is larger than any other institution. Most of them are there for the offences of lewdness, vagrancy, drunkenness and begging. The law is that a woman, for such offences, may be sent to this prison for one or two years, while men, for the same offences, are punished by small fines or imprisonment for hardly more than as many months, the theory of these long sentences for women being that long terms of imprisonment will work reformation. But there is a provision that the prison authorities, at their own pleasure, may send these unfortunates to other prisons, there to work out these long terms of sentence. Again, women are sent to the reformatory prison for from seven to ten years to be supported at this high cost. For such that is not a reformatory, but a punitive institution. The experiment seems not to be a success. The prison is by far too costly for any supposed good that it does, and should be abolished.

THE REFORM SCHOOL FOR BOYS.

Experience has also shown that the state reform school, at Westborough, is not a success. As you will see by the lists of appropriations, the proportionate expenditures for salaries are simply enormous, and there is a very large establishment kept up there, with a great quantity of land which might well be devoted to, and is needed, for other state purposes. With regard to this institution, I commend to you the latest recommendations of my immediate predecessor.

THE INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.

This institution has outlived its usefulness, if it ever had any ; and concerning it the retiring Governor says :—

“There were forty-six girls in this institution a week ago—their number also having greatly decreased, and no longer justifying so large a per capita expense for their maintenance.”

In this opinion and recommendation that the school be abolished I most fully concur. These recommendations of the Executive were not heeded by the last legislature, probably because there was a board, and its officials interested that they should not be. They are again submitted to you.

There is another school to support, for which there is annually appropriated $22,500, over the expenditure of which sum the State has no control, and of which no account is rendered. For the existence of this school, so far as the State is concerned, I can see no sufficient reason. This is

THE SCHOOL FOR IDIOTIC AND FEEBLE-MINDED YOUTH.

When the State shall have sufficiently educated every bright child within its borders, it will be time enough to undertake the education of the idiotic and feeble-minded.

I submit that this attempt to reverse the irrevocable decree as to "the survival of the fittest" is not even kindness to the poor creatures who are in this school. Give them an asylum, with good and kind treatment; but not a school. The report from that school shows that none of its pupils have been made self-supporting by its teachings. The report further shows that those in whom some spark of intelligence has been awakened, have become so ashamed of their school that when they write to their parents they beg for paper and envelopes which have not its card upon it. That is, they have been educated simply enough to know of their deficiencies and be ashamed of themselves and their surroundings. We do not contribute to their happiness by giving them that degree of knowledge. A well-fed, well-cared-for idiot is a happy creature. An idiot awakened to his condition is a miserable one.

THE INSANE OF THE STATE.

This pitiable and helpless class are, more peculiarly than any other, the wards of the State, appealing to us to care for them by every sentiment of sympathy and justice.

They have been treated, with slight variation for fifty years, since the establishment of the first hospital at Worcester, substantially in the same manner of confinement, save in the earlier days the paucity of their numbers gave opportunity for more assiduous care.

All classes of the afflicted with mental disorders have been sent to, and received in the same hospital, whether incurable or chronic, the violent with acute mania, the demented or imbecile. Those with mania for crime, those insane only from religious fervor, the pauper and degraded, men and women all herded together, separated only by necessities of restraint and safety.

As the increase of patients required new hospitals it would seem to have been obvious that some classification of the insane, from requirements of different treatment, would have been made, but this has not to any practical degree been done, although we have five hospitals—at Worcester, Taunton, Tewksbury, Northampton, and Danvers. Each was organized under the control of a separate and distinct board of trustees, with separate superintendence; each was filled up with all classes of patients as at first, save Danvers, which only differs in having a large proportion of pauper insane. In all but one of these hospitals private patients of the same differences in their madness are also cared for.

From the reports of the boards having them in charge it appears that the insane are increasing at the rate of two hundred a year, or five per cent. on the number of the insane, while population increases only two per cent., and that in the very near future more accommodation will be required for them. This increase may be accounted for because of the great excitation of the mind and overwork of the bodies of our citizens, in these days of intense activity which pervades every department of business and thought.

In the early days of our hospital treatment, we are told by the reports of the learned physicians who had them in charge, that a very large per cent. of cases of insanity might be and were cured, and the percentage was stated to be as large as seventy-five and afterwards sixty per cent.

We are now told by the latest reports of their scientific successors that sixty out of every one hundred afflicted must die insane. In every other department of therapeutics, increased knowledge of physiology, more accurate acquaintance with the causes of disease, the many additions to the materia medica, have softened, ameliorated and checked the ravages of other sickness, lessened its fatality, and increased the number of cures. Is it not to be hoped that even experience, research, and scientists are at fault when they pain us with so startling and terrible an announcement?

“ Oh star-eyed Science, hast thou wandered there,
To waft us back the tidings of despair? ”

May we not inquire if some change of treatment or of confinement will not bring alleviation? Is not the experiment at least worth trying? Can we not by classification, and putting together those in one institution who give hopes of recovery, in another those who are violent and need physical restraint, and in still another those afflicted with dementia or imbecility, who are harmless and need no restraint, but care only, do something to alleviate these maladies? This can be done efficiently only by consolidating all the hospitals under the charge of some one responsible head, of sufficient executive ability and scientific skill, who can, having full control, make this classification and separation which, because of our system of separate boards of trustees and separate government, cannot now be done. Naturally each board of trustees looks only to its own institution. It is a corporation put under its separate management. Indeed, some of the older institutions have been so far managed on that plan, that they have funds amounting to many thousand dollars each, which, as I am informed, they have accumulated from what they received from the State for the care of its own insane, in its own hospitals, over and above the cost of their support to their corporation. These sums, for purposes they doubtless think wise, the trustees control without any accountability to the State or its accounting officers.

Into that matter, of course, you will carefully examine.

The general supervision of these institutions is, by the Act of 1879, put under the board of health, lunacy and charity, who manage them, so far as they are managed at all, through a committee of lunacy, and this in addition to the other duties of this board, to take care of the health of the paupers and a large proportion of the criminals of the State, and also their duties imposed upon them by statute, of ascertaining the quality of everything that everybody in the Commonwealth eats and drinks, and all the drugs and medicines we consume, and the quality of the cosmetics that the ladies are supposed to use.

It will not be wonderful if we find some things have to be neglected by so versatile and overworked a board, especially as they all work without pay.

Members of the board, interested in and capable of taking charge of the sanitary condition of the State, find their duties in taking care of paupers distasteful; while those with an aptness for paupers have no sufficient knowledge of the laws of mental alienation to have superintendence of lunacy; and those having that scientific knowledge which would fit them for the latter work, have no taste for looking after the sewerage or paupers, prisoners or cosmetics of the State.

This incongruity has led to the resignation of nearly a majority of that board, losing to the State the services of some of the best-fitted men, for portions of the work, upon it.

All these establishments for the insane have large quantities of land. If you are called upon, as you will be, to furnish further accommodation for the insane, why not do so by the Swiss system of families in cottages, for the harmless and quiet, which may be cheaply constructed? A family of harmless chronic insane, for whom no physician is needed, could be taken care of by a single man and woman, and the cottages being contiguous, they may have a common dining-room for all. Thus they might have all the comforts of home, so that life would be to them quiet and endurable, even if without hope of change, save the last.

I trust, certainly, that no more architectural follies, to use no harsher term, will be permitted, like the Danvers Hospital. A board could allow that to be built at the expense of nearly two million dollars. If any man had built it, he would have been exiled by force of public opinion, if no other, or shut up in the monument of his own folly and recklessness.

The institution for insane, principally paupers, at Danvers, and the new hospital at Worcester, have cost the State for the few less than 1,250 patients there, $2,500 each, besides a weekly cost of nearly four dollars each.

The past is gone. Will not the legislature make some provision by which all this can be changed for the future, and managed upon economical and business principles?

There is another matter of very important concern which I commend to your consideration, in relation to the insane establishments, as well private as public, and that is, their doors open altogether too easily inward, and with too great difficulty outward, in the reception and discharge of their inmates. An allegation of aberration of mind is easily made and quite as easily proven by experts; and, although it may amount to no cause for incarceration, yet the very expert who gives his testimony is now allowed to adjudicate upon it sufficiently to sentence the accused to what may be perpetual imprisonment.

In no other case is the liberty of the citizen so loosely guarded, or so much in danger. Nor is his personal liberty allowed to be interfered with in any other case without the assistance of counsel, and full right and opportunity to appeal to the highest court.

For the patient to get away from the hospital, especially where it is making money by keeping him, is difficult, because of the temptation to hold him where those procuring the incarceration may be willing to pay a large sum for the care of the prisoner.

I submit that this matter ought to be carefully guarded by legislation, giving every facility for setting at large the imbecile and harmless insane, whenever they become hopelessly incurable, and relegating them, as other harmless people are, to the home care of their friends and relatives, who are bound to support them.

THE MANNER OF ACCOUNTING WITH THE AUDITOR.

The people of the Commonwealth generally suppose that their safety in the matter of expenditures is in the integrity and care of the state auditor in auditing all bills against the Commonwealth.

I must not be understood to say that the estimable gentleman who fills that office does not do, in that regard, all that he or any one else can do, under our system of auditing, nor that the committee of the council on accounts do not do their duty. The fault is in the system not in the officers. In the first place, many of these expenditures are audited by the boards or commissions which authorize them, and whose appointee or agent incurred them. Such system has grave and well-recognized faults. Again, I commend to your attention the statute requirement as to keeping the accounts, and the manner of stating those accounts in the auditor's report. Faithfully followed they lead to great confusion and uncertainty, so that even an expert book-keeper may well be puzzled in obtaining accurate results from them, certainly until he has learned the system. This should not be in reports of matters which ought to be examined by all, as in them all are interested.

SUPPLIES PURCHASED FOR THE STATE.

In view of the very large purchases of supplies of merchandise and materials of every description for carrying on the business of the State, now purchased in comparatively small quantities by a great number of persons without any responsibility as to price paid, or possible acquaintance with the actual price, amounting in the aggregate to quite a half million dollars annually, I would recommend that a purchasing officer for all state supplies of every name be appointed, with a salary sufficient to insure the services of a competent business man, to be commissioned by the Executive for three years, unless sooner removed for cause, to give adequate bond, with sureties, for the faithful performance of the duties of his office, who should be charged with the making of all purchases of supplies of every kind now bought, or to be bought, and paid for by the State. Purchases, in all cases where the amount of any one class of articles probably to be used in one year exceeds in amount one thousand dollars, to be made by advertising for proposals from dealers and manufacturers, according to samples, and contracts properly guarded made thereunder, save that in case of exigency, purchases may be made in open market upon approval of the Governor, as also the purchases of articles of less amount at current prices in open market; no officer or employee in any department of the state government to be directly or indirectly interested in such sales to the agent; all departments of the state government needing supplies to make timely requisitions specifically upon the purchasing agent. Of course the law would provide the proper details for auditing the accounts and paying for the purchases.

Experience in the conduct of very large business corporations has shown the necessity for such purchasing agent. Purchases made in any other way by a large number of persons, even if there is no suspicion of the integrity of the purchasers, must of necessity be at a much higher rate than if purchased in bulk.

Another advantage to be derived from such system of requisitions and purchases will be that the officers requiring the goods, if they do not come up to sample in quality, would immediately return them upon the hands of the purchaser, who would throw them back upon the seller; so that all complaints of inferior or damaged goods being purchased would cease. For example, no superintendent of an asylum would receive damaged provisions from the purchasing agent, and would have no temptation, as now, when he buys them himself, if damaged provisions should get into his possession, to feed them out to the beneficiaries under his charge. The most liberal salary and expenses to such a purchasing agent would still leave a very large margin of saving to the State.

Provision might also be made to allow counties, cities and towns, and perhaps private charitable institutions, to make requisitions upon the purchasing agent of the State, paying on delivery the net cost of the goods to the State, including, pro rata, the expenses of the purchasing agent, thus supplying themselves at a cheaper rate.

I also earnestly advise that such several branches of the business of the Commonwealth, each for itself, shall be put under the control of some one competent man, who shall be made directly responsible to the people, or the executive chosen by them, for its administration.

Surely such men can be found in this Commonwealth, if anywhere on earth. If the treasury department of the United States, with its varied duties, powers and responsibilities, can be administered by a single secretary, none of the institutions of which I have spoken ought to be beyond the competency of one of the many highly intelligent men of this Commonwealth, of large business experience, who would manage the affairs of the State upon the same business principles, and with the same success, that he manages his own.

Boards composed of numerous members, while they are a better shield, are always the most cumbersome and expensive.

The cost of one man, whatever the State might pay him, would be the most economical in the end. Were one man managing, say the pauper branch of the business of the board of state charities, he would, from the very nature of things, have but few relatives, and still fewer personal dependents, for he would not dare to open himself to the charge of nepotism by placing them in public office. Nine men of the board would have nine times as many as one man would have, and only a ninth of the responsibility for what was done. If one of a board wishes to have his son or nephew employed, neither one of the associates can well object, because of official courtesy, and specially if the others, or any of them, desire the appointment of his or their friends and dependents.

I recommend, also, to give the Governor and his Council the power to summon witnesses and to take testimony as a court would have, to investigate abuses in the conduct and administration of public affairs, and some power to apply the proper remedy, unless it is intended to put the whole Executive government of the Commonwealth into irresponsible commission. If so, abolish your Executive department and save its expense, because it is, in law and in fact, useless, and may not be ornamental.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

I congratulate the Commonwealth that one branch of what is known in political circles as "Civil Service Reform," is, and has been, since 1879, in most full, efficient, and thorough operation in this Commonwealth, and that is, fixedness of tenure of office, as I have before demonstrated.

The "civil service reform" manner of appointment, by competitive or other examination, has been wholly ignored. On the contrary, the practice has quite generally obtained, of the officer having the appointment putting his wife, his son, his daughter, his son's wife, and his sister in office as assistants and clerks, and into other official and salaried places. Whole families are sometimes appointed to salaried places. Besides, the rule is, with hardly exceptions enough to prove its correctness, that all the salaried and paid officials, at least of the higher grades, have been, and are, of a given political faith. If it were profitable I could give very many instances in illustration of each of the truths above stated, and will do so whenever called upon.

In addition to these there are other defects in the civil service of the Commonwealth which need reformation very much indeed, which have never been discussed, so far as I am informed, even by any of the clubs of political reformers. Certainly they are of as great interest to the people of the Commonwealth as either of the other matters of civil service reform. They are these:—

First. There are very many more officers and salaried agents and employees in the Commonwealth than are necessary to do its business.

Second. They are paid, on an average, quite one-half more than the salaries for which competent persons could be obtained to do the same work, or which are paid in other like business by employers in the State.

I would therefore advise, as a measure of "civil service reform," that at least one-third of the paid officials doing the business of the Commonwealth, who are not imbedded in the Constitution and cannot be reached by law, should be cut off by stringent enactments of law, and the salaries of the remainder reduced, on the average, at least one-half in amount and emoluments, travelling and official expenses. These latter items are a fruitful source of abuse.

If the legislature will cut down and limit the officers and salaried agents of the Commonwealth, and the amounts of their salaries, as I have indicated, and give power to the Governor so to do, he will undertake to carry on the needed business of the State with the reduced number of officers, agents and employees, and if the present officers and agents resign their places (which most of them will not do) on account of the reduction of their salaries, will fill their places, and any others which may become vacant, with equally good and efficient incumbents selected and appointed under the most carefully prepared rules of competitive examination, for the establishment of which he trusts the legislature will make provision. Especially would this be true in the higher grades of educational schools of the State.

Would it not be better to enact by law that two of a family, by blood or marriage, should not hold appointive office in the same department of the State government, like the provision adopted by the Senate of the United States in the bill recently passed by that body; and further, that if there are two or more already in, the one who appointed his relatives shall go out; because the appointment may not be the fault of the relative appointed, as in the case of a son who would feel obliged to obey his father. The same rule should apply where there has been an exchange of offices; i. e., where the head of one department appoints the relative of the head of another department, who had appointed or will appoint the relative of the first to some office in his department.

There will be no need of any provision in this regard in relation to the military department, for it is already under the control of the Governor.

MORTGAGES ON REAL ESTATE.

By the benevolent spirit of the common law of England, in case of land mortgaged, a right of redemption remains in the debtor for three years. This was the law in this State until about 1835, when a practice grew up, unknown to the common law, of introducing power of sale into mortgages, by which, upon a certain notice therein contracted for, the mortgagee could sell the whole estate at auction, and return the balance, if any, which it brought over the debt and expenses, to the mortgagor. Afterwards, this practice was sanctioned by legislation, and that legislation grew more and more stringent in favor of the mortgagee, until 1879, when an act was passed, to take effect upon its passage, by which the mortgagor could be summarily ejected from the land after it was sold.

In practice now, all mortgages require a release of rights of homestead and dower by the wife, so that for a mortgage debt the family can be driven from their homestead after the shortest possible notice.

Whether the right of homestead should be permitted to be mortgaged at all, is a question of public policy which might well engage your attention.

As the mortgage is given only as a security for the debt, and as all the mortgagee ought to have is his debt, and as in practice, sanctioned by law, the mortgagor, or some one for him, is the buyer at the sale, I would recommend that a time of redemption, say one year, be given upon all mortgages of real estate, the mortgagor to retain possession after sale during that time, provided he pay a rental, monthly in advance, equal to the interest upon the debt, costs and expenses of sale, the property to be deeded to him by the purchaser at any time when he shall have paid the costs and expenses of sale, and the debt and interest for which the property is sold, within a year and a day. Land taken on execution for debt has this right of redemption. Why make a difference between the two classes of real estate securities?

TAXATION.

The amount of taxation collected for state, county, city, and town purposes, in 1882, as reported by the secretary of state, was $26,090,000. The amount assessed directly by the State, in addition to the above, was $4,662,000, making a total taxation of $30,752,000.

The legislature of 1881 enacted a statute which took effect on the first day of January, 1882, to apportion the taxation upon mortgaged estates between mortgagee and mortgagor, according to their respective money interest in the property, the sequence of which law was a decrease in the amount of taxable property secured by mortgage of nearly $48,000,000. Of course there was no such amount of debt secured by mortgages collected in the Commonwealth in that year. What has become of it?

It is a misfortune which follows all taxation, and is as actual in this State as anywhere else, that a large proportion of the property escapes taxation; and that portion belongs to a class of citizens the most wealthy and able to pay taxes.

One method of such escape is to invest in property out of the State, i. e., enjoy its benefits and escape its burdens. Another is to invest it in United States untaxable securities. Still another: the person who ought to be taxed makes his residence in a town other than where he does his business, and where he may escape taxation, which protects that business, by going into a town where a lower rate of taxation obtains. He thus can lessen his tax very considerably if he chooses the right town for a residence, because there is one town in this Commonwealth where the taxes are only $4 on the thousand, and there is another where the tax is $35 on the thousand.

The tax-evader makes a still larger deduction, being of large wealth, by making a bargain with the assessors of a town that he will move into that town if he should be taxed for a certain amount of property only; which sum, may make a very considerable addition to the taxable property of the town, and so the assessors make the trade. There was still another hiding-place, before the late law in regard to mortgaged real estate. It was the custom of the tax-shunners to invest money and take mortgages in the name of some friend or relative out of the State as trustee.

There would seem to be no promptings of conscience as to escaping taxation, because this is known to be done, and there have been convictions before the courts for doing it, by men who otherwise claim to be reputable, and who make special assertions of their honesty and integrity.

Nothing can be more inequitable or unjust than these practices. Legislation should be framed with the utmost vigilance and stringency to correct or remedy them. "Equality of right and equality of burdens under the law" is fundamental. Such acts ought to be fully punished. The disastrous effect of this evasion of taxation is to throw all of the burdens of the government of the State upon its enterprise and business. They fall only upon property which is in the sight of the assessor, the manufactory and its supplies; the stock in trade; the buildings used for mercantile pursuits; the machine-shop and workshop, and their supplies; the dwelling-house, however spacious or humble; but, above all, upon the farm and its stock — every head of cattle upon which is numbered, the exact value of both being well known — and upon the investments of laboring men and women in savings banks and co-operative societies. So disastrous to many kinds of production is this matter that some States are obliged to relieve them from taxation to foster them, which only increases the burden on their other industries. So onerous is our taxation upon the agricultural interests, from which, as a rule, money comes slowly in, that the cultivation of farms is being to a considerable degree abandoned; and there are portions of the Commonwealth, where agriculture is the leading business, which have retrograded both in wealth and population.

During the preparation of this Address I have been asked to recommend some measure of aid to agriculture, through legislation. I know of but one, and that is the reduction of taxation. A sop thrown to farmers, in the shape of a few hundred dollars given to agricultural societies, "breaks the word of promise to the hope."

I know of no measure of relief which will reach the farmer, except relief from taxation.

To do that it may be necessary to extend to the farm, actually occupied and wrought upon by the owner, some exemption.

The law now exempts "a thousand dollars worth of household furniture to the householder, and three hundred dollars worth of tools to the mechanic."

I am aware of no correlative exemption to the working farmer; for his household goods are rarely worth half that, and his stock less than one year old, and sheep and swine less than six months old, now exempted, will not average three hundred dollars in value.

We now permit property used in the production of beet sugar to be exempted from taxation; might not the same exemption be extended to the production of sugar from sorghum, which is claimed to be a coming industry?

If all the property in the State could be reached and proportionately taxed, even if our expenditures were not lessened, our taxes would be reduced one-half; they now being nearly equal to one-half the income received upon a perfectly safe investment in the public stocks. Why should not this be done? The neighboring States of New Hampshire and Vermont have already enacted some very carefully prepared, and as the result shows, effective legislation in that direction, which they are improving year by year, which I commend to your special attention. No candid man can state an objection to laws directed to the equalization of the burdens of taxation.

One of the best methods to lessen taxation is the strictest economy in making appropriations for public expenses, whether for State, county, city or town.

Let me repeat: Abolish all unnecessary offices and paid employments of the State, cut off all questionable expenditures.

The expenses necessarily attendant upon legislation are very large, and there is no easier way of reducing them than shortening your session. I know the legislators, staying here away from their homes and business, desire it, as you know your constituents so do.

FIRE INSURANCE.

The standard of the fire insurance companies doing business in the Commonwealth is deservedly high. By the discrimination made against the home fire companies by taxation, for a reason that I cannot discover, their business suffers in competition with foreign, i.e., European companies, insuring here. The premiums paid in cash, for the year 1880, amounted to $5,479,825. Of those premiums $1,187,022 were paid to European companies. These companies pay to the Commonwealth a tax of two per cent. upon such premiums. The aggregate taxes paid by Massachusetts companies in various forms under existing laws, have averaged for a series of years little less than five per cent. on their premiums received. Your attention is called to the reasons for this discrimination, and to provide, if wise, for an equalization of this taxation, which would add to the revenues of the State the sum of about $25,000 annually.

RAILROADS.

Our railroads are working in a manner creditable to themselves and the State as carriers of passengers; certainly so far as the safety of the general public is concerned.

There is one matter, however, which I think the managers of every well-regulated railroad will agree with me needs attention, — the overworking of railroad employees who have to do with the running of trains, whether on them or as switchmen, gatemen, or station-men. Faithfulness, care and activity in all these are imperative for the safety of travellers. On some railroads these men work too many hours, and a number of accidents occur from their inactivity and exhaustion from this cause. I suggest that legislation be had by which no employee connected with the running of trains on any steam railroad should be employed more than ten hours in any one day, with a proper interval for food, except in case of accident or emergency. This would be economy in the management, because, to say nothing of regret for loss of life and limb to the passengers, a single accident would cost the road much more than an amount sufficient to duplicate even, the salaries of such employees for a considerable length of time.

To make this law self-executing would only require provision that in case injury came from the working of a train where any one connected with it had been employed more than that number of hours, such fact should be prima facie evidence of negligence on the part of the road.

The number of employees injured and killed during the year calls for legislative action. During the last year 198 were hurt on the roads in this State, of whom 56 were killed. Nor is this an unusual number of such fatalities. A very considerable portion of these accidents happened in the coupling and uncoupling of freight cars.

Are not such accidents preventable? If so, preventable accidents become crimes. If railroad managers were as careful of the lives and limbs of their employees as the verdicts of juries have made them of the safety of their passengers, some means of automatic coupling and uncoupling cars would have been adopted. May not legislation require it?

A part of this carelessness as to the safety of the employee has arisen from the interpretation of the law that employees insure each against the carelessness of the other, and the company is not liable. How far this rule ought to extend when the employees are co-operating together to perform a given service for the road at the same time is one question, but quite another when the employees are not so engaged. I submit the rule ought not to apply in the latter case. For example, if an employee is riding in the car on the business of the company, or his own business, by permission of the company, going to his home, which privilege may in fact be a part of his compensation for services, he having nothing to do with the working of the train, — should he not rather be considered a passenger when the rules of law are applied to him?

There are foreign railroad corporations operating trains within this Commonwealth. Would it not be better that some legislative provision should be made requiring them to give security to indemnify any person injured by their operation? There are claims now existing where there is practically no remedy for such class of injured persons.

PUBLIC CORPORATIONS.

Under this head I class all those corporations which serve the public and have, under the law, a right to use the public property in carrying on that service.

The people of the Commonwealth and their representatives have a right to know the exact condition, standing, earnings, disbursements, dividends and conduct of all such corporations. Some of them, for example the railroads, are obliged to make and do make full and satisfactory returns to give such information. I suggest that like provisions be extended to gas, telegraph, telephone, passenger steamboat, water supply and other like companies.

EDUCATION.

Massachusetts has claimed, and justly, as large a proportionate expenditure of money on the education of her children as any State in the Union. From the long continuance of her government, the substantial stability and compactness of her population, the influence of this vast expenditure upon the education of her people, if efficiently and properly administered, should appear in a more extended as well as higher educational standard of her citizens.

Such result is especially necessary to her people, because she has by constitutional enactment made reading and writing a pre-requisite to suffrage.

I assume that all will agree that the instruction to be furnished by the State, derived from the resources and taxation of all, should be equally for the benefit of all.

Any system of education which takes from such fund, belonging to all, for the special education of a few, which is not and can not be given to all, is a misappropriation. It should be the aim of the State in education, as well as in everything else, to raise up the mass of her citizens to the highest possible plane. If the substratum is raised, all above it will be raised in equal degree.

There are two States in the Union—Iowa and California—which appropriated for 1880 more money per capita for education than Massachusetts. It appears by the report of the commissioner of education for 1880, that the State of Iowa expended for education the total sum of $5,621,248; and that Massachusetts expended the sum of $5,156,731. The population of Iowa was 1,624,619; the population of Massachusetts was 1,783,085, — not far from equal.

In 1880 the native-born population of Iowa above ten years was 926,301. The native-born population of Massachusetts above ten years was 1,005,576. Or, Iowa had 75+ per cent. of such native-born population, while Massachusetts had 70+ per cent., or 5 per cent. less than Iowa.

Now the illiteracy of Massachusetts, i.e., those of ten years and upwards who could not read, was by the same census 5.3 per cent.; and the illiteracy of Iowa by the same census was 2.4 per cent., or 2.9 per cent. less than Massachusetts.

This difference of illiteracy as against Massachusetts in the comparison between her and Iowa cannot be accounted for from the fact that Massachusetts had more foreign population, because the excess of our foreign population was only 5 per cent. over Iowa, which would only reduce the per cent. of illiteracy in favor of Iowa and against Massachusetts to 2.32 per cent.

What distinguishing difference is there in the systems of education of the two States in their administration? Iowa, of the $5,621,000 expended for educational purposes, expended only $2,901,948, for salaries, including superintendents; while Massachusetts, of $5,156,000, expended $4,494,225 for salaries for teachers, including expenditure for apparatus and school-books.

Cost to Iowa per capita of her school population, $8.17; Massachusetts, $14.91.

Iowa paid an average of $31.16 per month per male, and $26.28 for female teachers. Massachusetts paid an average of $67.54 per month for male, and $30.59 for female teachers.

One noticeable fact will appear from these figures: that not only is the percentage of illiteracy less in the State where the salaries of teachers are less, but while the amount paid for salaries and other expenses in Massachusetts has been steadily increasing for years, the percentage of illiteracy has not decreased with equal step.

Boston affords a curious illustration of the increase in cost of teaching in her schools. I take that city for illustration, because she has every class of schools; they are claimed to be the best in the Commonwealth, and the city has quite one-fifth of our population. In 1854-5 the whole number of day scholars was 22,528; the salaries of teachers, officers, and school committee, $198,225; the net rate per scholar, $10.94; the total expenditure, $274,847. In twenty years, 1874-5, the whole number of day scholars and evening scholars, 46,464; salaries of teachers and officers, $1,249,498; rate per scholar, $36.54; total expenses, $2,081,043. Increase in number of scholars, 106.7 per cent.; increase in cost of teachers, 530.3 per cent.; increase in cost per scholar, 231.6 per cent.; increase in total expenses, 657.1 per cent.

As an example of what these expenses consist, I give the following items:—

Superintendent,	$4,200 00
Six supervisors, at $3,780 each,	22,680 00
Secretary,	2,000 00
Auditing clerk,	2,000 00
Assistants,	2,400 00
Copyist,	720 00
Messenger,	1,400 00
16 truant officers,	18,360 00
Salaries of instructors of high schools,	153,830 74
Special instruction in music,	10,920 00
Tuning pianos, covers and repairs,	1,321 00
Drawing schools,	11,136 00
Drawing, penmanship, etc., normal,	1,380 00
Military drill, armory and calisthenics,	3,111 40
Instruction in French,	3,870 00
Instruction in German,	952 00
	$240,281 14

Some of the matters to be taught, as the teachers are examined in them, are music, drawing, physiology, physics, botany, zoölogy, geology, astronomy, chemistry, psychology, Greek, Latin, French and German.

But the spelling-book is banished.

It will be observed in this list of studies, and the list of salaried teachers, that while drawing is taught at great expense, there only appears the sum of $1,380 that has any relation to penmanship, and that in the normal school. Nor is there any provision for teaching book-keeping, even in the lower and most simple forms; and the same may be said of other cities in Massachusetts. Now, we know it to be true, as a fact, that in almost all the cities and many of the large towns of the Commonwealth, there are private schools to teach book-keeping and the manner of transacting commercial business, sometimes called commercial colleges, and whose advertisements and circulars show that they claim the necessity for their existence is, that such branches are not taught in our schools. Why not, rather than physiology and psychology? And the pupils in those schools are usually graduates from our high schools, where these fancy branches I have named are taught.

I submit these are not subjects to be taught in a common-school education; certainly not until the high percentage of illiteracy in Massachusetts, i. e., persons ten years of age and up who cannot read, of 5.3 per cent., is brought down to the grade of a far western new State, hardly yet wholly reclaimed from the wilderness, Iowa, which has 2.4 per cent. of illiteracy.

Notwithstanding all boasts of what we had been led to believe was rightful of our school system and schools; in spite of the learning and culture of Massachusetts; of our enormous outlay, — more in proportion than any of the other States, save two, one of which, California, is more illiterate than we are in percentage, — Massachusetts has a greater percentage of her citizens who are illiterate, i.e., above the age of ten years, who cannot read, than the States of Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Vermont, and Wisconsin, so that she is the nineteenth State in the illiteracy of her population of the thirty-eight.

The deductions which I make from these facts are :

First, That we have schools for special classes which draw from our general school funds, which should be for the use of all alike, by far too much.

Second, That the salaries of the principals in most of the higher schools, teachers and supervisors are very much more than they ought to be. Or, to use other words to express my meaning, higher than other like business pays, and higher than the sum for which equally good services could be, and are, obtained. As a rule, salaries do rise, but rarely or never lower; and the larger the salaries the more surely this rule works.

But this is not true of the teachers in the lower grades, of whom more than 84 per cent. are women, whose salaries, in comparison, are by far too low, being, as we have seen, only 44 per cent. of the salaries of men. I believe that the best teachers are wanted for the lower grade schools, and that a woman who can teach successfully such schools does the most service to the State, and ought to be correspondingly paid therefor.

Not till after the children of the whole people are furnished with opportunities to have the rudiments at least of an education, such as will best fit them for the positions they must occupy—and the statistics show that 91 + per cent. of them have gone from school to their avocations in life at the age of fifteen — should the higher branches of education be given to any, and when given, equally to all, only so far as they can be afforded within the limits of proper, nay, generous taxation.

To state my views in another phrase: as a prevention of pauperism and crime, to fit our people for suffrage, use all the educational force of the State, educate the masses up to a certain necessary point. The classes above will and ought to educate themselves up to a still higher point.

Do not take the common fund and give it to the few, or have it expended in such a manner that all cannot equally enjoy its advantages; and, above all, have that expenditure an economical one, and not pay low salaries to the teachers of the many, and high salaries to the teachers of the few.

It is impossible to pursue this subject, in all its ramifications, in the limits of this Address. I give you some of the results of a somewhat patient investigation.

In order that I cannot be misunderstood when I say that our school-fund money is diverted extravagantly from the many to whom it does belong, to the use of the few to whom it does not belong, I illustrate this topic by the facts concerning an industrial school established in this State in 1873, under the name of the State Normal Art School. It had been in existence eight years up to the time of which I have a report. During its existence the whole number of pupils resident in Massachusetts had been 1,047, an annual average of 131, who attended it for any time at all. Of the whole number 42 resided outside of the State. Most of its pupils attended the school a very short time each. Only seventeen of the whole number graduated from the full course, and only a small part of the whole number were ever qualified to teach in one or more branches of art education. Of the total number of pupils residing in the State, to wit, 1,047, 839 came from two counties, and 44 only came from six other counties of Massachusetts, or only two more than those who came from other States. Can such a school as that be deemed to be a common school of Massachusetts, equally open to all her citizens, or is it a special and very uncommon school, for a few only?

Each Massachusetts scholar ever in that school has cost the State $128.46, being his proportion of $134,507.16 which the school has cost the State during eight years.

A large proportion were evening scholars; the percentage of whom was 30, in 1881. It is fair to conclude that the same percentage obtained during the eight years of its existence.

Ought the common-school fund, or money derived by taxation, to be given to such a school? Are the branches of learning taught in it those necessary to the common education for the whole people?

A committee of the late legislature made an investigation of this school and I give an extract from the report of the minority of the committee which is not in conflict, as to facts, with the majority report:—

“What the Commonwealth needs, and all that it ought to foster, in the way of art education, is that part of it directly relating to its industrial interests. For this the school was established. From its original and ostensible design it has widely departed. How, for instance, teaching water-color [painting], modelling in clay, and modelling from the nude human figure, has any connection with industrial education, it would be difficult to imagine.”

I read from the report of the majority these words, which may or may not refer to what I have quoted from the minority:—

“Many things connected with the case should be left to fade into oblivion as unfortunate occurrences which cannot be too soon forgotten.”

Should there have been taken from the educational funds of the Commonwealth $10,696.42, for salaries of teachers alone in a single year, and $5,234.37 for other expenses, making a total of $15,930.79, for such a school of such usefulness? Is the poll-tax to be wrung from the earnings of the laboring man to support, under penalty of disfranchisement, this school? The primeval curse was, “In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread,” not to teach the youths of other States to model nude human figures in clay.

This art school was under the control of a Board composed of some of the best and purest men of earth. Their very purity and goodness was the shield which made its existence, and what was done in it, possible.

The State has five normal schools which it carries on from the common-school fund. In 1881 those schools had 836 scholars (about two-thirds of whom were young women), of which total number 184 were graduated. The expense per average scholar to the State was $73.85, of which expense $61.63 was for salaries of teachers, the total expense being $61,760.79. Assuming that a corresponding number will be graduated every year, then the whole cost to the State of each graduate will be $335+; to this I do not add the cost of the land, and the very large establishments built by the State for these schools, because, I am informed by the auditor's reports that the "value of the five normal school establishments has not been ascertained."

What right had these 184 young men and women to so expensive an education out of the common-school fund, at the hands of the State?

Honorable Senators, and Gentlemen of the House of Representatives: What is the practical solution of the educational question? Take the matter into your own hands. You are practical men. You know what kind of an education the people need and ought to have. Restrict the branches taught in the primary schools by law specifically to spelling, reading, writing, grammar, arithmetic, geography, history,—preferably of the United States—and require that those shall be taught upon the same system, to the same grade of scholars, in every common school in the Commonwealth. When the scholar can show by an examination that he is well grounded in the elementary English branches, then let him be admitted to a school of higher grade, where line-drawing for industrial purposes shall be taught, book-keeping, algebra, geometry, the rudiments of the Latin and French languages, chemistry, physics, with natural philosophy in a rudimental degree; and there a common-school education should stop. When by this system of schools we have brought Massachusetts from her present position to be the first State in the Union in the reading and writing of her citizens, there will be somebody here, doubtless, more competent to advise what is best to be done.

Legislators: I have presented the result of my best thought upon the topics occurring to me as of interest to you, and the discussion of which would benefit the State. Time has not been possible to me to give to them the needed care, classification, and condensation. It has been my endeavor to exclude therefrom every partisan consideration. I have every inducement and no temptation to do otherwise, for I much desire that my suggestions shall have weight with all of you. From my recommendation no personal advantage can come, for I now and here declare that I have neither wish nor intention again to ask the suffrages of the people of the Commonwealth for the position I hold ; for which high honor I am filled with the most profound sensibility. It is both my pleasure and duty to give one year of the best energies of my life to the service of the Commonwealth, thereby to pay the earnest penny of my gratitude.

SPECIAL MESSAGES.

THE FOLLOWING SPECIAL COMMUNICATIONS WERE MADE BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR TO THE LEGISLATURE
DURING THE ANNUAL SESSION.

[To the Senate and House of Representatives: transmitted by His Excellency
Benjamin F. Butler, Jan. 15.]

I have the honor herewith to present, in compliance with chapter 50 of the resolves of 1860, a report of the thirty-eight pardons issued by the Governor and Council during the year of my administration just closing.

JOHN D. LONG.

Pardons.

No. 1. WILLIAM HENRY HALE. Sentenced Nov. 23, 1881, District Court of Central Berkshire, for cruelty to animals, to three months in House of Correction. Pardoned Jan. 5, 1882, on recommendation of the judge who tried the case; excessive sentence having been imposed through a mistake of the facts.

No. 2. THOMAS POORTELL. Sentenced January, 1874, Superior Court, Berkshire County, to the State Prison for life, for complicity in robbing one Rhodes of a silver watch and other articles, in a drunken affray. Pardoned Jan. 25, 1882. From the testimony of Mr. Thayer, who prepared the case for the government in the inferior court, and of Mr. Stearns, the district attorney who secured the conviction in the Superior Court, it appeared that Poortell, a young man of twenty-three years, being under the influence of liquor, was an accomplice of a greater criminal, one Bernard Haggerty, who is now in the State Prison on long sentence for other crimes. At the time of the conviction the penalty provided by law was imprisonment for life. The circumstances of the crime were such as appeared from the testimony of the same government officers that if the court could have exercised any discretion as to the term of imprisonment, not more than a few years' sentence would have been asked for by them. Since then the law has been changed, reducing the penalty from imprisonment for life to a term of years, determinable by the court. Poortell has already been in prison eight years,—equal, with the allowances for good behavior, to ten; and, making every allowance for his worthlessness and guilt, the Committee on Pardons, concurring with the district attorney who tried the case, recommend the pardon of Poortell, the change of the law justifying them in exercising the discretion which at the time of the sentence could not be exercised by the court. Parties from North Adams who appeared to represent the opposition to the petition, withdrew their objection after hearing the case. Poortell was a resident of Troy, N. Y., and a certificate was filed by a manufacturer of that city, agreeing to employ him there. New testimony was also introduced of a credible witness who saw the transaction, but who said he did not dare testify at the trial for fear of Haggerty, which tended to show that Poortell was not a party to the crime till after the robbery.

No. 3. LAWRENCE QUINN. Sentenced April 11, 1881, Superior Court, Norfolk County, for two years to the House of Correction, for breaking and entering a blacksmith's shop, and stealing twenty-one dollars' worth of iron. Pardoned March 4, 1882, solely on certificate of the physician that the convict was mortally sick with pulmonary consumption, and could not survive his sentence. The master of the House of Correction, and the party, whose property was taken, joined in the petition. He died in June following.

No. 4. JOHN KENNEY. Sentenced October, 1880, Superior Court, Middlesex County, for breaking and entering, to three years in House of Correction. Pardoned April 1, 1882, on recommendation of the prison physician, as the prisoner was very low with consumption, and would not live till the expiration of his sentence, if obliged to remain in prison. Dr. Latimer of East Cambridge confirmed this statement. Mr. McCaffrey, the person whose property was taken, appeared and joined in the prayer for pardon.

No. 5. THOMAS MURPHY. Sentenced, Sept. 16, 1881, Superior Court, Suffolk County, for assault, to House of Correction for two years. Pardoned April 10, 1882, on recommendation of the master of the House of Correction, the physician of the institution, and the district attorney, solely because of the necessity of a surgical operation which could not be properly performed without taking Murphy to the city hospital. This transfer could only be made by granting a pardon. The operation necessary consisted either of removing the knee-joint, or cutting off the leg.

No. 6. DENNIS GREEN. Green was convicted of rape in December, 1870. He was pardoned Feb. 4, 1876, with the concurrence of the district attorney, upon evidence which satisfied the Governor and Council of that year that he was entitled as of right to his release. The pardon contained the usual condition, that if convicted thereafter of any crime punishable by imprisonment, he should serve the remainder of his sentence. In October, 1879, Green was convicted in the District Court at Fall River of a petty theft, and fined $15 and costs, and in default thereof committed to the House of Correction. For this breach of the conditions of his pardon, he was, after his term expired in the House of Correction, recommitted to the State Prison upon his original sentence, where he has remained now for more than two years. If entitled to the pardon granted him by the Governor and Council in 1876, upon the grounds then given, there is no justice in punishing him a second time for an offence already expiated. If deserving of punishment for breaking the condition upon which he was released, the more than two years already served is a sufficient penalty. Pardoned April 12, 1882.

No. 7. JOHN JONES AND MICHAEL SULLIVAN. Convicted Jan. 4, 1882, District Court, Eastern Hampden, of being tramps, sentenced to House of Correction for six months. Pardoned April 12, 1882, on the certificate of the opinion of the county commissioners of Hampden County that the parties were innocent.

No. 8. JAMES T. POWERS. Sentenced December, 1881, by Trial Justice Ely of Dedham, for vagrancy, to ten months in House of Correction. Pardoned April 19, 1882, on recommendation of the master of the House of Correction, Dr. Miner, and many prominent men, the defendant being entirely innocent of any crime, a clergyman of good character, and overtaken by poverty; and the gentlemen who asked for his pardon standing ready to provide for him. Pardons.

No. 9. JOHN E. MICHARD. Sentenced Feb. 4, 1881, Superior Court, Essex County, for eighteen months to the House of Correction, for larceny of a trunk and contents. Pardoned May 5, 1882, on the recommendation of the assistant district attorney, Sheriff Herrick, the city marshal, and the chaplain and keeper of the House of Correction. With the allowances for good behavior, only one month of the sentenced remained. It was a peculiar case. Michard, up to the time of his offence, was an industrious, well-behaved man. He moved from Lynn, where he took the trunk, to Fall River; found good employment there; but, at the end of eight months, though no suspicion attached to him, came back voluntarily, confessed his guilt, restored the trunk and its contents, and took his sentence. The Governor and Council, therefore, as soon as the case was brought to their notice, relieved him from the remaining month of his sentence, which, in any view, seems to have been too long. Michard had a dependent and needy family.

No. 10. QUINLAN LEARY. Sentenced June 21, 1880, Superior Court, Bristol County, for three years (two indictments) to House of Correction, for breaking and entering. Pardoned May 10, 1882, with the concurrence of the district attorney, and on the certificate of the prison physician, on account of serious illness, which promised a fatal termination if the petitioner was longer confined.

No. 11. JEREMIAH CONNERS. Sentenced Feb. 6, 1880, Superior Court, Essex County, for three years to House of Correction, for larceny. Pardoned May 21, 1882, on the earnest recommendation of the master of the House of Correction and the physician, that he was in advanced stage of consumption, and liable to speedy death.

No. 12. CORNELIUS LUCY. Sentenced Jan. 16, 1882, Superior Court, Suffolk County, for two years in House of Correction, for lewd and lascivious cohabitation. Pardoned May 24, 1882, upon the recommendation of the Directors of Public Institutions of Boston, and the certificate of the physician of the House of Correction, that the prisoner was in the very last stages of consumption, and could live but a short time. He died May 30, 1882.

No. 13. JAMES CRAWFORD. Sentenced Oct. 21, 1881, Superior Court, Essex County, for one year to House of Correction, for larceny. Pardoned July 19, 1882, after an investigation by the Councillor from that district, on the ground of excessive sentence. The property stolen was a lasting-jack, valued at $3, belonging to a fellow-workman, and taken from the shop where both worked, by the convict when intoxicated. His employer appeared, and offered to take him back to work.

No. 14. WILLIAM MARTIN. Sentenced Sept. 19, 1879, Superior Court, Bristol County, for five years to House of Correction, for breaking and entering. Pardoned July 30, 1882. The prisoner and one Chase committed the crime. They were sentenced at different terms of court. Chase's sentence was for three years, and Martin's, by another judge, under exactly the same circumstances, for five years. This was so egregiously unjust, that, with the cordial concurrence and recommendation of the district attorney, Martin's sentence was commuted to three years; and, with the allowance for good behavior, he was pardoned as of the date last above recited.

No. 15. JOHN T. RINGELS. Sentenced Dec. 13, 1881, Superior Court, Bristol County, for eighteen months to House of Correction, for attempting to pass counterfeit money. Pardoned July 31, 1882, on the ground of incurable sickness, certified to by Drs. John H. Mackie and M. H. Leonard, physicians at the New Bedford House of Correction. Pardon was recommended by them, and concurred in by Hon. H. M. Knowlton, district attorney.

No. 16. PATRICK KELLY. Sentenced March Term, 1881, Superior Court, Suffolk County, for twenty-five months to House of Correction, for breaking and entering. Pardoned Aug. 3, 1882, on the recommendation of the master and physician of the House of Correction, on the ground of incurable consumption. Pardons.

No. 17. JAMES C. MURPHY. Sentenced Nov. 14, 1881, Superior Court, Suffolk County, for one year to Suffolk Jail, for larceny in a building. Pardoned Aug. 26, 1882, on certificate of the physician that Murphy was in "consumption, and has only a short time to live." The district attorney and keeper of the jail joined in the prayer for pardon.

No. 18. MARY J. McLAUGHLIN. Sentenced April 19, 1882, Municipal Court, Roxbury District, for one year to the Reformatory Prison, for being a common drunkard. Pardoned Aug. 31, 1882, at the request of her husband, who was the complainant, and with the recommendation of the judge; the woman being about to give birth to a child. The husband is a man of character and abundant means, and desired to save his child the disgrace of being born in the State Prison.

No. 19. THEOPHILUS YOUNGS. Sentenced Aug. 11, 1882, Municipal Court, Boston, to pay a fine of $50 and costs (and in default of same was committed to the Suffolk Jail), for larceny. Pardoned Sept. 12, 1882. Youngs was convicted of stealing $25. After his conviction the money which he was charged with stealing was found by the persons who accused him where they had themselves put it. At their request and personal intervention, he was pardoned, being clearly innocent.

No. 20. CHARLES OAK. Sentenced August Term, 1880, Superior Court, Suffolk County, for three years to the House of Correction, for polygamy. Pardoned Sept. 12, 1882. The Committee were satisfied that the defendant's second marriage was in good faith, and in ignorance of the law; and that, having been in prison more than two years, further imprisonment would be excessive. Oak has two children by his second wife (one continuously sick), a very respectable and deserving woman, whom he now can and will marry within the time allowed by the statute, his first wife having some time ago obtained a divorce from him.

No. 21. DANIEL HURLEY. Sentenced Oct. 29, 1880, Superior Court, Middlesex County, for two and a half years to the House of Correction, for breaking and entering. Pardoned Sept. 20, 1882, solely on the certificate of the prison physician that the convict was mortally sick with consumption, and could live but a few weeks. The district attorney concurred in the recommendation of the physician.

No. 22. MARTIN JENNINGS. Sentenced, May Term, 1882, Superior Court, Hampden County, for six months to the House of Correction, for violating license law. Pardoned Sept. 28, 1882, on the ground of dangerous illness, and necessity for treatment outside of House of Correction. The pardon was recommended by the district attorney, a probation officer, and the prison physician.

No. 23. CORNELIUS HORAGAN. Sentenced, August Term, 1881, Superior Court, Suffolk County, for two years in the House of Correction, for breaking and entering. Pardoned Sept. 30, 1882, after a personal investigation by one of the members of the Council, and upon the recommendation of the master of the House of Correction and the prison physician, the prisoner being in the last stages of consumption, and liable to speedy death.

No. 24. WILLIAMS J. GRAVES. Sentenced Aug. 4, 1882, First District Court, Eastern Middlesex, for assault, to four months imprisonment in House of Correction, and to pay a fine of $30 and costs. Pardoned Oct. 26, 1882, at the request of the judge who sentenced the prisoner; and who stated that he was misinformed as to the facts when sentence was passed.

No. 25. CHARLES E. WHITE. Sentenced, July Term, 1882, Superior Court, Suffolk County, for embezzlement, to one year in House of Correction. Pardoned Oct. 26, 1882, at the personal and written request of the district attorney who tried the case.

No. 26. JOHN O'HERN. Sentenced July 20, 1882, ^{Pardons.} Superior Court, Berkshire County, for larceny, to nine months in House of Correction. Pardoned Oct. 27, 1882, at the special recommendation of the district attorney who tried the case.

No. 27. ANDREW J. GILSON. Sentenced Nov. 27, 1878, Superior Court, Plymouth County, for attempting to procure an abortion, to six years in the State Prison. Sentence commuted to five years, upon the recommendation of nearly all the jury, there being reason to doubt whether the prisoner intended the crime charged.

No. 28. FREDERICK S. BLODGETT. Blodgett was convicted of rape in 1868, and sentenced to the State Prison for life. He was pardoned Oct. 30, 1874, on the recommendation of the then district attorney, there being some doubt as to the crime committed. The pardon contained the usual condition, that, if convicted thereafter of any crime punishable by imprisonment, he should serve the remainder of his sentence. In the spring of 1882 he was convicted of taking and driving away a horse and carriage, and sentenced to the House of Correction in Worcester for two months. This, though a light offence, was a breach of the condition of his pardon, and July 22, 1882, he was recommitted, after the expiration of the last named two months' sentence, to the State Prison, in pursuance of his original sentence. If entitled to the pardon granted him by the Governor and Council in 1874, upon the grounds then given, there is no justice in punishing him a second time for an offence already expiated. If deserving of punishment for breaking the condition upon which he was pardoned in 1874, the three months already served is perhaps a sufficient penalty. In view of this, and of the recommendation of the officials, the parties owning the property, and other leading citizens, a pardon was issued Nov. 4, 1882.

No. 29. WILLIAM EDWARDS. Sentenced May 22, 1880, Superior Court, Hampden County, for larceny, to ten years in State Prison. Pardoned Nov. 16, 1882. Edwards has been a painful sight in the hospital, lying on his bed there for over two years. Pardoned on physician's certificate that he has Bright's disease and is liable to die any day, and on the agreement of friends to take him. He died Dec. 1, 1882.

No. 30. WILLIAM E. COGGESHALL, alias BARRY. Sentenced May Term, 1882, Superior Court, Suffolk County, for larceny, to one year in the House of Correction. Pardoned Nov. 21, 1882, on recommendation of the district attorney and of the chairman of the Board of Directors of Public Institutions of the City of Boston.

No. 31. JOHN T. MANNING. Sentenced Dec. 24, 1880, Superior Court, Hampden County, for larceny, to three years in House of Correction. The boy being in feeble health, and having served two-thirds of his time, was pardoned Dec. 1, 1882, on the special inquiry and request of the probation officer in Springfield, charged with such cases. The pardon was recommended by the prison physician, the sheriff and master of the House of Correction, the chaplain, probation officer, and the district attorney.

No. 32. JOHN ROBERTS. Sentenced Jan. 27, 1882, Superior Court, Worcester County, for larceny, to one year and eleven months in House of Correction. Pardoned Dec. 8, 1882, on recommendation of the district attorney, the sheriff and the physician, it appearing that Roberts was in very feeble health, and it also appearing from the affidavit of two others, who were convicted with him, that they, and not he, were guilty of the larceny.

No. 33. BRIDGET GAFFNEY. Sentenced January 28, 1882, Police Court, Lawrence, for drunkenness, to two years in the Reformatory Prison for Women. Pardoned Dec. 8, 1882, at request of the Commissioners of the Prison, her son taking her to his home in Wisconsin. As the sentence, half of which had expired, was made a long one solely with a view to her reformation, the Commissioners were of opinion that this would be promoted by her removing from the Commonwealth and her former associations, and living with her son.

No. 34. JOSEPH D. KING. Sentenced May 23, 1876, Superior Court, Hampden County, for receiving stolen goods, to ten years in State Prison. Twenty-five years old. Pardoned Dec. 20, 1882. The district attorney Pardons. who tried the case reported that the articles stolen, being of no great value, were stolen by a woman from the rooms of a hotel in Holyoke, and were received from her by King, who was there with her, and who had previously resided in New Haven, Conn. At the trial he was without counsel, pleaded guilty, and received, what in view of the circumstances, and in comparison with usual sentences, seems an unaccountably excessive sentence of ten years. The mayor and many of the leading citizens of New Haven certified in his behalf. The district attorney aforesaid recommended a pardon.

No. 35. LUCIUS W. POND. Sentenced Jan. 25, 1876, Superior Court, Worcester County, for forgery, to fifteen years in State Prison. Pardoned Dec. 25, 1882, as an act of clemency on Christmas Day. The pardon was requested by the almost unanimous sentiment of the city of Worcester, in which Pond resided, and by nearly the entire number of creditors. The district attorney, who tried the case, now a judge of the Superior Court which pronounced the sentence, certified "that in his opinion, upon a careful review of the facts, justice had been answered by the punishment already suffered."

No. 36. PATRICK WHALEN, PATRICK DWYER AND THOMAS O'CONNELL. Sentenced Jan. 7, 1882, Superior Court, Hampshire County, for setting fire to a saloon, for three, two and a half, and two years, respectively, in the House of Correction. Pardoned Dec. 27, 1882. From the uncontroverted representations and petition of the leading citizens of the vicinity, and an examination of the facts and of the detailed report of the district attorney, there was not sufficient evidence that the prisoners were guilty of the crime at all.

No. 37. EDWARD J. CAMPBELL. Sentenced Oct. 29, 1878, Superior Court, Middlesex County, to ten years in the State Prison, for setting fire. Pardoned Dec. 30, 1882, it appearing from testimony of his employers, a leading firm in Lowell, whose property was the subject of the offence, that Campbell committed it without malice, when intoxicated. Little damage was done. He was an industrious man, with a worthy, dependent family; and his employers, to whom he was much attached and whom he injured without knowing that he was doing so, cordially recommended his pardon, agreeing to do all they can to surround him, if released, with good influences. The mayor and other city officials joined in the recommendation, the city marshal being himself present at the hearing.

No. 38. PHILIP S. RILEY. Sentenced June 12, 1880, Superior Court, Middlesex County, for setting fire to a barn, to five years in the House of Correction. Pardoned Jan. 2, 1883, on petition of the mayor and leading citizens of Lowell, including the city marshal at time of the conviction, it appearing that Riley was a young man, according to the district attorney of "rather a weak mind," and according to other witnesses, who had known him for years, as "of such weak intellect as to be hardly responsible for his acts." The damage was to an out-building, and the loss was very small, the owners joining in the petition for pardon.

Wrecks and other Obstructions to Navigation.

My attention has been called by the Harbor Commission to a matter which seems to need legislation in order to protect our harbor and shipping.

We have, under our laws, wreckmasters; but their jurisdiction does not meet the evil, and so far there is no power in them, or jurisdiction or power given to the Harbor Commissioners to deal with the trouble, which is this:

A vessel comes into a harbor, and may, at its very mouth, or anywhere else in the channel, as has been done in many instances, become a wreck, and sink, especially from leakage. If neither the owner nor underwriters care to go to the trouble and expense of removing her, I am not aware of any provision of law by which he or they can be compelled to so do, except, possibly, by suit; by which suit compensation may be obtained: but the compensation affords no protection to the mariner who may run into the wreck in the night-time, or when in a fog.

I suggest, therefore, that this is a matter to be examined into by the legislature, and legislation enacted by which the Harbor Commissioners shall have the authority to remove such wreck or obstruction, after having given notice—and the notice should be a pretty summary one—to the owner or underwriters what to do; and the owner or underwriters should be forbidden to take anything from the vessel until they have given bond, to the satisfaction of the Harbor Commissioners, that they will raise her. The method generally adopted is to strip her of anchors, chains, sails and spars, which latter may serve as beacons, and then the sunken hulk is left in the channel to destroy still other vessels.

Wrecks and
other Obstructions to Navigation.

In case the vessel is not raised by the owners or underwriters, then the Harbor Commissioners should have the right to sell her to any person who will raise her, at their discretion, or to raise her themselves and sell her after being raised, to reimburse the expenses.

And if the amount realized by the sale be not sufficient to pay the costs, an action should accrue to the Commonwealth, to be brought by the Harbor Commissioners in the name of the Commonwealth, and conducted by the district attorney in whose district the trouble happens, to obtain reimbursement for the expense.

It will readily be seen that, in addition to legislation, some appropriation should be made—and it should be for a very considerable amount—to do this most necessary work; the money not to be drawn from the treasury except upon vouchers showing the work performed.

I can conceive of nothing more necessary, because, although the general government has, in some instances removed wrecks situated as I have indicated; yet that is never done until a special appropriation is made for that purpose. This is quite too tedious a process to await, even if it is done at all.

I am not aware of any law that makes it the duty of the United States to remove such wrecks within a marine league of the shore, and of course they are not usually troublesome beyond that. If there is any such duty devolving upon the United States, why, of course, the State would be reimbursed for doing what the United States ought to have done.

This would be especially advantageous to the United States, because it is well known that, unless a wreck is speedily removed, it forms the nucleus of an embankment of sand which so covers it up as to render the process of

other Obstructions to Naviga-

removal very expensive, it being necessary, in some instances, to even resort to the explosion of dynamite and other explosives under it, and even those agents will hardly blow to pieces a wreck so imbedded.

If the wreck is taken in hand at once by intelligent, competent men, such as we must assume our Harbor Commissioners to be, the vessel, if it would not pay the cost of raising, would be, at a very small expense, blown to pieces and gotten out of the way, after the apparel and equipments had been removed; and these latter would probably largely reimburse the expense.

I am not aware of any one thing to which I can properly call the attention of the legislature more necessary for the safety of our commerce, and giving greater protection to the lives and property of those who "go down to the sea in ships," than judicious legislation upon this subject, thoroughly executed.

[To the Senate and House of Representatives, Feb. 9.]

Rhode Island Boundary.

I have the honor to enclose herewith the Report of the Commissioners on the Rhode Island Boundary, and also a proposed bill for settling that boundary according to the report of the commissioners.

As the matter is now before the legislature of Rhode Island, and, as I understand, that legislature is taking action upon it, it may not be inconvenient that the legislation of the two states should go on pari passu, in order that a vexed question, of many years' standing, may be amicably and quietly brought to a close.

[To the House of Representatives, Feb. 23.]

Agricultural College.

I have the honor to transmit herewith the twentieth annual report of the trustees of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, and in so doing I take leave to more than make a formal transmission of that document to the House. I especially call attention to its contents, and submit that in the opinion of the Executive it would be for the benefit of the people of the Commonwealth, that a very considerable number of copies of it should be printed and widely distributed.

I am convinced, both from the state of my own knowledge heretofore, of the Agricultural College, and from conversation with several gentlemen of intelligence, that that institution is entirely misunderstood as to its purposes, its methods of instruction and the scope of its educational power. A too commonly received opinion seems to be that at that college only some information is imparted to the pupil concerning soils, the methods of treating them, and the practical work of the farm, and therefore that only sons of farmers, or those who are intending to devote their lives to farming, should seek to obtain an education therein. While it is true that these things are taught and well taught therein, they are by no means the limit of the educational course.

Agricultural College.

For practical instruction, to every branch of professional life except perhaps theology, the curriculum, and the methods of imparting knowledge to the pupil, are as beneficial as those of any other institution of learning. In addition, the elements of military science, so far as the "school of the soldier," and the officer of the battalion are concerned, are imparted to the pupil, and he is fitted, if attentive and apt, to take a commission in any regiment, practically quite as well in so far as if from West Point.

The instruction in the order of business, in neatness and care of the person, in habits of cleanliness in the care of apartments wherein men live, which are the embodied results of the experience of all armies, are as useful to the civilian who shall have the care of others, especially if dependents, as they are to the officer in the care of his men. From experimental knowledge I testify to the value of this branch of instruction.

From the economy which can well be practised by the student at the Agricultural College, because of the cheapness of living, the absence of those inducements to extraordinary expenses by the pupil which render a college course so burdensome to men of moderate means, the sons of such men will be enabled either by their own exertions, or the support of their parents, to obtain at a cost within their reach a good practical education, as good in my judgment as anywhere else to fit them for the business of life.

I commend, therefore, this institution, founded both by endowment by the United States and the State, to the attention of the legislature, and ask for it such appropriations as may meet its very economical needs.

[To the House of Representatives, Feb. 26]

The Union Safe
Deposit Vaults.

I have received from the legislature a bill to incorporate "The Union Safe Deposit Vaults," passed to be enacted in the House of Representatives Feb. 20, 1883, and in the Senate Feb. 21, 1883.

This bill incorporates certain persons therein named, and their associates, by the name of "The Union Safe Deposit Vaults," for the purpose "of receiving on deposit or storage, or for safe keeping, government securities, stocks, bonds, coin, jewelry, plate, valuable papers and documents, money and other property of every kind; of collecting and disbursing the income or principal of any of said property when due; of receiving, investing and disbursing money for parties when so requested, and of renting safes for the storage of said property in vaults constructed for the purpose."

It then provides that "nothing herein shall authorize said company to do a loan and trust business," but also provides "that said corporation shall have all the powers and privileges, and be subject to all the duties, liabilities and restrictions set forth in chapters one hundred and five and one hundred and six of the Public Statutes, and in all general laws which now are, or hereafter may be, in force relating to similar corporations."

It then provides for a capital stock of $300,000.

This amount would seem to be sufficiently large for a simple safe deposit vault.

I am inclined to believe that the legislature has been misled as to the scope and action of this bill. The title, "The Union Safe Deposit Vaults," is misleading. It gives no idea of any other business than the one well known of letting vaults for the deposit of valuables. The bill itself allows the collection of income on all classes of securities, and would permit, as I am inclined to believe, doing a business of a bank of deposit, and I do not see any difficulty in the way of the corporation's acting as a savings bank, without the liability to the savings bank tax and the supervision of the bank commissioner.

Perhaps, however, that class of business might be restrained by the courts, and if the bill stopped there it would not be so open to objection.

The proviso itself is a strange one: "That it shall not do a loan and trust business."

There is no general statute specifically defining what is a "loan and trust business," but chapter 80 of the statutes of 1881 defines in part what the loan and trust business in future may be.

The Union Safe
Deposit Vaults.

But some of that business is provided for in the body of the bill itself, before the proviso, so that the bill is self-contradictory.

But the bill further provides that the corporation shall have all the powers and privileges and be subject to all the liabilities of chapters 105 and 106 of the Public Statutes. Chapter 106 provides for corporations to do every kind of business except "buying and selling real estate, banking, insurance, and any other business the formation of corporations for which is otherwise regulated by these statutes." Therefore it may carry on every kind of mechanical, mining and manufacturing business, printing and publishing books, making and selling gas, and maintaining hotels.

Did the legislature mean, in this bill, to invest the corporation with these powers? If it did not, then the legislature has been misled. If it did, which I cannot conceive, it would be a very vicious form of legislation, not to be tolerated.

I have done my duty in calling this matter to your attention, and I leave the bill to your action and wisdom, with the desire only, that hereafter when the legislature intends that corporations shall have powers so widely different from those to which attention is called by the title of the bill, that the powers may be more clearly defined, so as not to throw upon the Executive the labor, by long investigation, to find out what the bill presented for signature means.

I therefore return the bill to the House, in which it originated, with these my objections in writing.

[To the House of Representatives, March 13.]

The bill entitled "An Act making appropriations for expenses of the various charitable and reformatory institutions, and for other purposes," came to me on the evening of the 8th inst.

Appropriations

and Reformatory Institutions.

I have examined its provisions with the care and attention that its importance demands. I grieve not to be able to approve the bill, so that it may become a law, and am obliged to ask the two houses of the legislature, in the language of the constitution, "to proceed to reconsider

Appropriations

and Reformatory Insti-

the said bill," so that after weighing the objections to it, if it shall become a law, the responsibility of it may rest upon the legislature and not upon the Executive.

It is a misfortune that the bill contains appropriations for several entirely distinct and separate classes of public expenditure, some of which are not objectionable, and some are, as if it were intended that the necessity for the good should carry the bad. Of course this was not the intention of the legislature, but has come to pass by following what seems to me to be a vicious practice of uniting in one bill many different appropriations for entirely diverse objects. Some of the States, by their constitutions, have made provisions against this difficulty by requiring that one bill shall contain matter pertaining to one subject only.

This method of legislation in the Congress of the United States has been found a great inconvenience to the Executive and a detriment to the public service, because many things requiring to be appropriated for, to keep the departments of the government in motion, must be sacrificed, or extravagant and worse than useless appropriations must be approved by the Executive, being found in the same bill.

A good illustration of the vices of this form of legislation was seen in the river and harbor bill, which was vetoed by President Arthur, although there were some very important provisions in it, which he himself had recommended. Fortunately, in this case, if the legislature should agree with the Executive that there are objectionable matters in the bill, either in whole or any part of the appropriations, another bill can easily be passed through the legislature appropriating all the money that is needed for valuable subjects of public expenditure. I am emboldened to say this, because the bill passed through the House and Senate without any examination, opposition or debate, so far as I am informed by the reports of the proceedings of the two houses, and without a division upon any of its details.

In order that the extent and scope of this legislation may be fairly manifest, I give the following analysis of the appropriations made for each object in detail in the year 1882, the expenditures under these appropriations, the estimates for the year 1883, and the appropriations made by the bill in accordance with, or in correction of, those estimates:—

Appropriations for Charitable and Reformatory Institutions.

Appropriations
for Charitable and Reform
atory Institutions.

It will be seen that the bill appropriates nearly a half million dollars, to wit, four hundred and seventy-four thousand nine hundred dollars ($474,900), and quite one-half of the amount of any state tax that ought, in my judgment, to be imposed upon the towns of the Commonwealth for the present year.

Leaving out of the discussion three of the items, to wit, the sum of two thousand dollars ($2,000) for expenses incurred in the arrest of fugitives from justice, the appropriation for the district police force, and the appropriation for the state prison, as they are under the control of the Executive, and, therefore, need not be considered by him here, as he has it in his power to give such direction in this regard as economy may require, all these appropriations are for the payment of salaries, expenses and cost of supervision of the state almshouse, the workhouse, the primary school, the reform school for boys, the reform school for girls, and the reformatory prison for women, but are by no means all those institutions cost the State.

The amounts appropriated by this bill for expenses and salaries are as follows:—

	Expenses.	Salaries.
For the state almshouse,	$70,000	$20,000
For the state primary school,	37,000	17,000
For the reformatory prison for women,	40,000	23,000
For the state reform school for boys,	20,000	15,000
For the state reform school for girls,	10,500	6,000
For the state workhouse,	29,000	11,000
Agent for aiding discharged convicts,	3,000	1,000
Agent of discharged female convicts,	2,300	700
The total amount appropriated for these several institutions, therefore, is,	$211,800	$93,700
Now, all of the officers and employees of these institutions are maintained at the public charge, and receive, of course, quite one-half, but say one-third, in addition to their salaries, in their living expenses; add this one-third to the appropriation for salaries, and deduct it from the appropriation for expenses, out of which it is paid,	31,233	31,233
And we have for "expenses" and "salaries" respectively,	$180,567	$124,933

From which figures it will appear that the appropriation for salaries is sixty-nine and one-sixth per cent. of the total amount to be expended for the maintenance of these institutions.

In my inaugural address I called attention to these appropriations for salaries, and stated that, in my judgment, they were very much too large. That statement was criticised by the chairman of the state board of health, lunacy and charity in an interview, in which he stated that I took, as representing these salaries paid by the State, and I quote his words, "what somebody guessed a year before it might have to pay," instead of "what the State actually paid in 1882."

Appropriations
for Charitable and Reformatory Institutions.

With the single exception of the workhouse at Bridgewater, the salaries have not been diminished in expenditure, and in a single instance they are increased by this bill. And if a former governor, the present chairman of the state board of health, lunacy and charity, was accustomed to consider appropriations of money made by the legislature as "guesses," I am not so accustomed, and cannot conscientiously approve bills containing "guesses," especially when they are such enormously and extravagantly disproportionate ones. I am bound to conceive that, when he approved such bills, he did not consider them "guesses," but that, since he has been chairman of the board, he has ascertained their true character. The reason for the latter supposition is this: As I have shown in the analysis of the bill, in comparing the expenditures and appropriations of last year and the estimates, in no case has the estimate for salaries been diminished, and in one case increased, although in a few cases the expenditures for the support of the institutions were slightly decreased from the amount appropriated.

I learn that the estimates are made up by the superintendents of the institutions, approved by the board, and in matter of salaries they are adopted substantially as they are sent to the House. And now the chairman of the board says that his estimates for appropriations of public money were simply "somebody's guess." Although there seems to be some diminution in the amount of expenditure for the state almshouse, yet I find a resolve reported to the House which brings the amount of the appropriation for that institution this year quite up to the old standard.

Perhaps as good an illustration as any of the difference of carrying on these state institutions will be seen by a comparison of the expenditures for the sick, as they appear

Appropriations

and Reformatory Institutions

in the auditor's report during the year 1882, in the state prison and in the state almshouse.

There was a weekly average of about 700 convicts in the state prison. They were cared for by one physician, who received a salary of $1,000 per annum, and an expenditure of $643 for "medicines and medical attendance," making a total of $1,643, and the physician did not reside in the prison. During the same period there was a weekly average of about 900 inmates at the state almshouse, and to take care of their health required the services of one physician and five assistants, at an expense of $2,657.31 for salaries paid. To this amount add one-third for living expenses, as they all resided at the almshouse, and we have paid at that institution as salaries of physicians $3,543.08, and $1,478.87 was spent for medicines and hospital stores, making a total of $5,021.95. This sum, however, does not include the salaries and living expenses in the almshouse of eleven nurses and three supervisors of insane. It may be explained that a portion of the inmates at Tewksbury were insane, but it takes but little medicine to a mind diseased.

I also stated in my address that "there were very many more officers and salaried agents and employees in the Commonwealth than are necessary to do its business; that they are paid, on an average, quite one-half more than the salaries for which competent persons could be obtained to do the same work, or which are paid in other like business by employers in the State."

Upon further and better acquaintance with the cost of doing business for the State, and the number and cost of its salaried officials, I am more and more confirmed in that opinion.

In that address, I asked of the legislature that at least one-third of the paid officials doing the business of the Commonwealth should be cut off, and the salaries of the remainder reduced one-half, including travelling, contingent and other expenses. I also said that there would be no need for any enactment in this behalf in regard to the military, for that was under the control of the governor, and in the military department the expenses have already been reduced in quite that proportion.

I also stated to the legislature that I saw no reason for the existence of the reformatory prison for women, where the salaries, calculated as above, are over ninety-one per cent. of the total amount of the other expenses of carrying on the institution.

This prison is for the safe keeping and assumed reformation of the lowest and worst classes of women, with occasionally an inoffensive drunkard, who may be shut up with them for a term of two years. The average number in custody in the prison for the past year was 222, and to take care of these poor creatures there are sixty-four paid employees of different grades, drawing the aggregate salaries that I have shown, of which eighteen are men, and forty-six are women; and some of them are employed at an expense, with the living of their families, of quite $2,500 a year.

I must decline to make myself responsible in any way for any such institution.

The reform school for boys and the industrial school for girls both met the condemnation of my predecessor in the Executive chair, and their expenses are quite as remarkable. Their bill contains an appropriation for the reform school for boys of $20,000 for expenses and $15,000 for salaries. Add to this amount appropriated for salaries one-third for living expenses, as before, and deduct the same sum from "expenses," and we have expended in that institution for salaries $20,000; and for all the other expenses of carrying it on during the year $15,000. From these figures it will be seen that the salaries amount to 133 per cent. of the general expenses of the institution. This enormously disproportionate amount paid for salaries may be accounted for by the fact, as shown by the auditor's report for last year, that eighty-nine persons were employed at the reform school, while the average number of inmates during the year was one hundred and eighteen, or one employee to each one and three-tenths boys. During the same period, as appears by the report of that institution, the average net cost for the maintenance of these one hundred and eighteen boys was six dollars per week.

For the industrial school for girls $10,500 is appropriated for expenses and $6,000 for salaries. Add one-third, to be taken from expenses, for cost of living, to salaries, and we have for salaries $8,000, and for support of the institution $8,500, the salaries being slightly more than ninety-four per cent. of the amount to be expended in carrying on the school. The average number of inmates for the year 1882 of this institution was fifty-five, and to care for them the services of thirty-four persons, nine males and twenty-five females, were employed, at the cost to the State above set forth, or one employee to every one and six-tenths girls.

The bill appropriates $34,000 for current expenses, and $17,000 for salaries at the state primary school. By adding to the amount appropriated for salaries, one-third for living expenses of the employees, and deducting the same amount from current expenses, we have for salaries $22,666, for expenses $28,334, the salaries of officials amounting to eighty per cent. of all other current expenses of the institution. The average number of children and adults maintained during the past year was four hundred and thirty-five, to take care of whom, seventy-seven persons were employed, or one attendant to five and two-thirds children.

The bill also appropriates for salaries at the state workhouse $11,000, and for other current expenses $29,000, increasing the former amount by one-third, and decreasing the latter by the same sum as before, for living expenses of employees, and it appears that the salary account of the workhouse, if the amount appropriated for the current year shall be all expended, will be in the aggregate $14,666, the other current expenses for carrying it on amounting to $25,334, and also that the salaries will be a fraction more than fifty-seven per cent. of the other expenses. But it is to be observed that, by the statement of actual expenditures at the state workhouse for 1882, the total outlay was some $4,176.42 less than the amount appropriated, the expenditures for salaries being $8,324.23, and for other expenses $27,499.35, as appears by the foregoing statement. Adding to this amount of salaries, and deducting from expenses, the cost of living, we find that during the past year the salaries have amounted to about forty and six-tenths per cent. of the other expenses, a reduction as compared with the ratio of salaries to expenses authorized in the appropriation bill, creditable to the management of this institution, as is also the fact that to take care of its average of two hundred and forty-two inmates during the past year, there were required but twenty-eight employees, or one to about every nine inmates.

It will be observed that the bill appropriates for the salary of the agent for aiding discharged male convicts, $1,000, and for the expenses of said agent a sum not exceeding $3,000, to be used in rendering assistance to convicts. It appears by the auditor's report for 1882, that the expenses of the agent, including salary, amounted to $1,283.94, while the total amount disbursed in aid of discharged convicts was $2,598.10. It will be seen from these figures, that the State is employing the services of an agent to disburse a small amount of public money, for which he receives as compensation for his labors, a sum equal to fifty per cent. of the amount so disbursed.

Appropriations
for Charitable
Institutions.

The bill also contains an item, $700, for salary of the agent of discharged female convicts; and for the expenses of said agent, and for assistance to said convicts, $2,300. If no portion of the latter amount was used for office and other incidental expenses, the State would be paying a fraction more than thirty per cent. on the amount disbursed for services. And in this case, as in the case of the agent for aiding discharged male convicts, it is difficult to see a necessity for the offices, except to afford an opportunity for those officials to be supported at the public cost.

It will be remembered that in my inaugural address I called the attention of the legislature to the fact that at least one of the board of trustees who made these estimates and approved the expenditures, was himself a contractor for supplying the same institution of which he was a trustee, with supplies, and to other abuses concerning which no investigation has been made, so far as I am advised, by either branch of the legislature, nor has investigation been made into the condition of the accounts of these several institutions, or of the propriety of their items of expenditure, so far as I am informed. Certain it is no report has been made to either branch upon this subject for their instruction.

Entertaining these views of the expenditures to be authorized by this bill, the legislature will see that it would be impossible for me to approve it. If I should approve it I should do a confessed wrong. I might escape some responsibility by allowing it to become a law without my approval. In that case I should suffer a wrong to be done. To do right I must return it with my objections to it in writing, and leave the responsibility with the legislature.

But it may be said, all this money will not be spent. It must be accounted for, and the account audited by the state auditor. Upon his good faith and propriety of conduct the people of the Commonwealth rely to be protected from frauds, overcharges and commissions, and all the paraphernalia by which bad men in office seek to rob the State. Would it were so; but the state auditor has nothing to do with auditing these accounts. The boards having supervision allow the expenditures to be made substantially by their subordinates. Their subordinates fix the prices at which they buy, and approve the bills which they contract, and the board approve what their subordinates have done, and the state auditor only examines the figures and sees that they are correctly added, subtracted, multiplied or divided, as the case may be.

The auditor's report will show that the expenditures on behalf of the Commonwealth, passing mediately or immediately through his office, have amounted to more than thirty millions for the past four years. From the first of January, 1879, to January, 1883, there is no record in his office of more than two subjects upon which he has made any reduction whatever; one in the bill for paper for legislative and other printing, and the other in the bill of the warden of the state prison for legislative refreshments. And yet he has done his whole duty according to law, the law requiring him, unless he knows something to the contrary, which substantially he never does, to pass the bills upon the approval of the boards or persons who contract them. After the state auditor has approved a large number of accounts, they are put together in one warrant, which is sent to the council on the day it meets; it is examined by a committee, which knows nothing and can know nothing about it; it is reported to the council, and is passed without any examination, simply because no examination can be made, and the warrant is signed by the governor, and the money departs from the treasury; the treasurer then gives to the officer incurring the liabilities, the money in gross sums, and he takes it and goes around and pays his bills, and may divide commissions with the persons whose customer he is.

Therefore, with no sufficient examination by the legislature of estimates made by the party or board which is to expend the money, and then the bills to be approved by the same board, and then the money to be paid over to the same subordinate who contracts the bills, to be paid out to his contractor, I cannot, with my views of what is the duty of the Executive to the people of the Commonwealth, approve this bill of appropriations, but must send it back to the legislature, asking the several branches thereof, as they cannot amend it, to pass another bill, cutting off these large amounts of salaries, placing proper guards and checks upon this immense expenditure of money, so that it can be known by somebody except those who can make money out of so doing, how it has been spent and where it has gone.

[To the Senate, March 19.]

There has been presented to the governor for his revision a bill allowing the Somerville Wharf and Improvement Company two years further time in which to organize, which bill originated in your honorable body.

Somerville
Wharf and Improvement
Company.

This company was incorporated by chapter 147 of the Acts of 1880. Upon an examination of the report of the committee of the Senate, I find no reason stated why this time should be extended, nor am I informed from any discussion which took place in either branch of the legislature of any reason presented to either house why the company should have this extension of time.

I am led, therefore, to look into the provisions of the original Act of incorporation for the object of its existence, and the subjects upon which it may operate.

The Act provides that certain persons therein named "are made a corporation by said name, with power to purchase and hold in fee simple or otherwise, all or any part of a tract of land bounded as therein described, containing about two hundred acres. Said corporation shall have power to sell and convey, lease, mortgage, and otherwise dispose of and deal with said corporate property, or any part thereof, and to manage, improve, fill and grade the same, with authority to construct docks, wharves and buildings, and to lay out streets and passage-ways, and otherwise improve the same, as it shall deem expedient," with a restriction upon building further into tide-water than the harbor commissioners may permit, and subject to all the liabilities, duties, limitations and restrictions imposed by the general laws, "applicable to such corporations." The capital stock shall be six hundred thousand dollars, and the corporation may increase its stock from time to time to an amount not exceeding one million dollars.

It will be seen that the original Act was for the incorporation of a company for the sole purpose of holding and trading in real estate, with one extraordinary power, which would seem to be in contravention of all laws relating to public ways. The quantity of land to be held by the company is stated to be about two hundred acres, or about one-thirteenth of the territory of the city of Somerville, this territory to be increased as much as it may by filling in tide-water, up to the commissioners' line. Over this territory the company has "power to lay out streets." Being so empowered by a direct Act of the legislature, it is difficult to see why such streets would not be public streets, and the maintenance and care of them become a public burden. If not, it might be that they would be wholly within the jurisdiction of the company.

The great and controlling objection to the original charter, which, having expired by limitation, this bill proposes to revive, is that it gives to the corporation the right to hold land in perpetuity, and to act for no other purposes whatever.

This land, in the language of the books, would be held in mortmain, or by the dead hand.

In all ages, and in all civilized governments, to hold land in perpetual succession has been held to be against public policy, except that corporations have been allowed to hold land in limited amount, sufficient to enable them to carry out the other purposes of their incorporation.

It is said that as early as the third century the Christian emperors of Rome found it necessary to pass decrees against this method of holding land. Such holding of land was the fruitful source of the wrongs and oppressions which caused the French Revolution with all its frightful results. And of all the laws enacted by the National Assembly which obtained power in that revolution, substantially that which now remains in force is the one that requires the division of lands among certain heirs-at-law of the deceased at death; the result of which is that the lands of France have now become divided into very small holdings; and this is the source of the great prosperity and wealth of her people, which enabled her to recover so speedily from the immense losses and vast military impositions of the conqueror in the Franco-German war.

This evil was felt in England as early as the reign of the III. Henry, principally, however, by reason of the action of the religious societies, which then were the absorbers of lands. Very stringent laws were passed against it, known as Magna Charta, which laws were re-enacted under the I. Edward, and have been the policy of England from that day to the present, in regard to corporations, which can only hold lands for their own purposes by license of the king, as they are now limited here by acts of our legislature.

But England had another form of holding large bodies of lands in perpetuity through the laws of primogeniture and entail. And I suppose it is a familiar fact that those laws have resulted in making a privileged class of landlords and a pauper class of tenants, to the great detriment of the realm of England, and still worse in Ireland.

At least, so our fathers considered, because they sternly swept away the laws of primogeniture and entail, and enacted laws against perpetuities in the holding of lands, limiting the power of tying them up by wills, and requiring them to be divided at the death of the holder, after a limited period.

Such is still the policy of our legislation. And while we permit corporations to be formed by general laws for doing almost every other kind of business, save banking and insurance, an inhibition has been placed in the general corporation law against forming corporations for the purpose of holding and trading in lands.

All monopolies are bad enough, but of all monopolies that of the land on which men are obliged to exist is the worst.

It is true that in a few instances corporations have been formed which were permitted to acquire large bodies of land. But those corporations have usually been created for the purpose of some great public improvement; generally for the purpose of improving the navigation of rivers, or the creation of water-power by dams for manufacturing purposes.

Examples of these are the Proprietors of the Locks and Canals at Lowell, the Essex Company at Lawrence, the

Somerville
Wharf and Improvement

Holyoke and Turner's Falls companies upon the Connecticut, and the Boston Water Power Company.

This last corporation, by the obliteration of its water-power from the growth of the city of Boston, has degenerated into a land company, pure and simple, and its stock has become a mere fancy stock for manipulation of the stock market — not a very creditable exhibition to the State of Massachusetts.

The East Boston Land Company, by which Noddle's Island was improved and communication established between it and the city, stands upon a different footing.

The Hyde Park Company was purely a land company, ruining all who had anything to do with it, and would seem to me ought to have served as a warning against any like legislation.

The "Fifty Associates," who have absorbed so large an amount of the real estate of Boston, is a company sui generis, commencing with very small beginnings, has now become one of the richest and most powerful, by its power to hold land, none of which, so far as I am informed, it ever sells. It is believed that no similar body could obtain corporate powers to-day.

Many reasons could be stated for this public policy, but its universality, which I have shown, is the strongest evidence of the necessity for preserving it.

Holding lands in perpetuity in the form of shares in a corporation deprives the widow of her dower, and the children of their inheritance, and renders it possible for the price of land to be regrated for the benefit of the corporators as against the ordinary purchaser.

Of course, no body of men desire a corporation to hold and trade in lands except for their own benefit, and that benefit is to be had by holding the lands and raising the price thereof, thus making money out of the community without any specific advantage coming to the public which would offset the inconvenience.

Perhaps there can be no better illustration of these facts than that afforded by the act we are now considering, which seeks to revive itself by this bill. It was passed in 1880. That there was no public, or proper private exigency for it, is seen by the fact that not a dollar of its capital stock has been paid in; it has not had even strength enough to organize for three years, and now asks the legislature to continue the cloud upon the title of one-thirteenth of the land of the city of Somerville for two years longer that it may organize.

Somerville

Company.

In my opinion every possible restriction should be removed upon the sale and division of lands, and especially in the suburban cities of Boston; so that they can all be thrown upon the market for sale, in order that the mechanics and laboring men who have their employments in Boston can find cheap lands on which to build their homesteads, easily accessible, in its immediate vicinity.

I have looked in vain to find any reason officially stated, for either the passage of the original act or of this bill continuing it. Certain it is that no report of the committee accompanies the bill which gives any such reason, nor do I find that there was any discussion of the matter in either branch. The Executive therefore is left without any knowledge of the grounds of public policy which require the passage of the bill.

It is a fact which might excite curiosity that this bill comes from the Committee on Mercantile Affairs. While I admit that either House can refer a bill to any committee it chooses, by any name it chooses, yet it is usual to refer it to a committee which has other matters germane thereto under consideration. And what mercantile question is involved in a simple land company I am at a loss to discover.

In the hope that the legislature will "proceed to reconsider" this bill, if it has ever been considered by it, and that, if it ought to pass, the Executive as well as the people of the Commonwealth will be shown the reasons why it ought to pass, should any exist, I respectfully return it to the body in which it originated, with these objections in writing.

I have the honor to lay before the House the following claim of Theodore E. Davis of Washington, D. C., the grounds upon which it is based, and the amount of which are fully set forth in his affidavit hereto attached. The facts are briefly these: Mr. Davis is a practising lawyer in Washington, engaged in settling war claims with the treasury department. While so engaged he discovered that, under certain rulings of the accounting officers lately made, some items of account which had been theretofore claimed by the State against the United States, and not allowed, would now probably be allowed, provided he could get authority from the State to investigate them, and could get possession of the original vouchers upon which the claims were made. For that purpose he came to Boston, armed with the recommendations as to his character for probity and intelligence, from Hon. Amasa Norcross and Hon. George D. Robinson, then representatives in Congress; and, after conference, received from His Excellency Gov. Long a letter, dated Oct. 20, 1882, addressed to the secretary of the treasury, a copy of which from the archives of the executive department is hereto annexed. His Excellency the Governor, in giving this letter of authorization, appears to have acted under the advice of the attorney-general. Mr. Davis was permitted by the secretary of the treasury to examine the accounts and vouchers then in the department, to ascertain what accounts of the State had been allowed and settled. It would seem that the last account which had so been allowed of the State of Massachusetts was in 1870. Mr. Davis, finding that there were claims which would be allowed if properly prepared and presented, again came to Boston, and, with the consent of the executive, was furnished with the original vouchers for presentation. The results of the labors of Mr. Davis were that of these rejected claims, the sum of $11,754.12, was allowed by the accounting officers of the treasury, and, through the efforts of Mr. Davis, aided by our representatives above named, a report of the amount so allowed by the accounting officers was inserted in the bill of appropriations for deficiencies, which bill was passed by Congress, and the sum of $11,754.12 was placed to the credit of this Commonwealth in the treasury of the United States. For that sum Mr. Davis has handed to me a draft payable to my order, on the assistant treasurer of the United States at Boston, which draft, properly indorsed, I have deposited with the treasurer of the Commonwealth to be by him collected. It will be observed, in reading the letter of authorization to Mr. Davis, that payment for his services was to be dependent upon the action of the Legislature. I therefore forward his claim, and state these facts for the information of the House of Representatives, where alone an appropriation can originate for this purpose. It will be seen that Mr. Davis has incurred some expenses and performed services which have resulted in a benefit to the State in the sum of nearly $12,000, which, without his action, would probably have been lost. For this benefit thus rendered the State, it seems to me that Mr. Davis is entitled to a just and liberal compensation, the amount of which I submit to the wisdom of the Legislature. Mr. Davis also assures me that there are still other claims of the State which have not been favorably passed upon by the accounting officers of the treasury, which may be obtained by proper examination and prosecution. I am also informed that the statute of limitations, as the law is interpreted by the accounting officers, will run against these claims, and they will be forever barred if not prosecuted in proper form before a day which I do not remember, in June next. I submit to the Legislature whether, if it see fit to pass a resolution in favor of Mr. Davis for his services, it should also make provision that he may be authorized upon the same terms as to payment, under which the former authorization was made, to present and prosecute such remaining claims. If the Legislature should find that there are any further or other facts within the possession of the executive which are needed to assist it in its deliberations, such facts will cheerfully be furnished to the House or its committee.

[To the House of Representatives, April 10.]

A bill has been sent to the Executive for his action, entitled "An Act to enlarge the Jurisdiction of Notaries Public," which appears to have originated in the House. It provides that hereafter notaries public shall have jurisdiction and the right to act in any and all counties. The provisions of this act also apply to all notaries public now appointed, and provide that the commissions of notaries hereafter appointed shall be made out for the Commonwealth.

Jurisdiction of Notaries Public.

I regret that I am not able to concur with the two Houses in causing this bill to become a law.

A notary public is, in fact, an international officer, to the testimony of whose acts all civilized states give credit.

In countries governed by the civil law, or codes growing out thereof, he is one of the most important functionaries of the law; almost all civil acts must be sanctioned by him, and he becomes the depository of the wills of decedents, and, practically, in many cases, has the settlement of such estates.

Jurisdiction of
Notaries Public.

In England and America, where the common law prevails, he has less extended power; but both England and America have conferred upon their consuls in foreign lands, powers exercised by notaries public.

By our own Constitution he is recognized as a judicial officer, appointed and to be removed in the same way as are judges.

By statute, as well as by international law, he must have a distinctive seal; and for the protection of all parties he must keep a record of all of his official acts.

Until quite recently the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace was confined to the county in which he was commissioned; but when all judicial power was taken away from justices of the peace, the legislature very properly enacted a law of general jurisdiction throughout the Commonwealth; but now a justice of the peace has neither a distinctive seal, nor is he obliged to keep any record of his official acts, which are extremely limited in number, and generally of small moment.

Not so with the notaries public; their certificates of acts done, and of the verification of records, go to foreign countries, and under the law impart absolute verity. No notary should act except in his own office, where both the seal and records are to be kept. He ought not to be peripatetic. He is now, and ought to continue to be, a local officer, so that he can be readily hunted up, and his records examined. Now his acts must be shown to have been done in the county in which he acts, which furnishes the means of finding him.

If this bill should become a law, the notary might live in Boston and act in Berkshire, and vice versa, and this difficulty would increase more and more as time went on.

There seems to be no good reason why parties to be affected by the acts of a notary should be compelled to encounter these difficulties. There is a notary in every town of any considerable importance, and there are fifteen hundred, more or less, in the Commonwealth,—some seven hundred in the county of Suffolk alone.

If the legislature should, or could, take away from the notaries any of their powers, and reduce them to the level of justices of the peace, perhaps some show of reason might be given why they should be appointed to the whole Commonwealth. But the legislature has not taken away their powers, and, as international officers, it might well be questioned whether the legislature could do so.

Jurisdiction of
Notaries Public.

I feel obliged, therefore, to ask the legislature to reconsider this bill; and, in the light of the objections I have made, to see if there is any exigency which demands its passage.

Fortunately for all concerned, there is no political significance in it.

[To the Senate and House of Representatives, April 30.]

I have the honor to call the attention of the legislature to a fact brought to my attention, if I had no other means of knowing it, by the State Board of Health, Lunacy and Charity, that the appropriation for carrying on the State almshouse for the year ending Dec. 31, 1882, was nearly all expended before that date.

State Alms-

From considerations of public duty I have ordered that Board to assume the duties of the trustees of that institution, which direction, after some delay, I am informed by a vote of the Board they have determined to obey. They inform me that in part their hesitancy so to do was because of the want of appropriations to meet the expenditure, being apparently in dread that they might be personally responsible therefor. I have assured the Board that until proper time for legislative or other action in this behalf, I will personally see to it that the money shall be forthcoming for the future use of that institution.

There can be no fear that Massachusetts will suffer any person to go unclothed and unfed for want of appropriation of money for that purpose, if it is her duty to see to his sustenance. Such has been her history. Most ample, nay, lavish appropriations for all charitable and educational purposes have characterized her legislation, and been sustained by her people. And this remark is equally true of our Commonwealth as to every object proper for State appropriations; and if there has been mischance to any person in this behalf it has not been her fault, but her misfortune in having unworthy servants.

I take leave further to say that while heretofore I have informed the legislature that very large reductions, in my judgment, can be made in the expenditures of that institution, yet the legislature will take into consideration that the same course of lavish and unnecessary expenditure to which I have heretofore called attention, has been going on for one-third of the present fiscal year. A sum considerably in excess of $90,000 was appropriated and spent for the expenses of last year, yet I still have no doubt that with proper supervision and administration seventy thousand dollars ($70,000) would have been ample for the expenses of the State almshouse for the present fiscal year,—assuming the same number of inmates as in the last; and that two-thirds of that sum would now complete the fiscal year. I am so strongly of that opinion that if the legislature will make such an appropriation, and put the expenditure and care within the control of the Executive, and the auditing of the bills with the Council, I would not shrink from undertaking the labor imposed by such a duty. If at the end of the year it turns out that it cannot be done it will be the best answer to any suspicion of extravagant expenditure in the past. If it can be done, then it will be easy for anybody to follow the example. If such a course is desirable it can be easily reached by a single sentence attached to the appropriation bill authorizing and directing such control of the expenditure as above suggested.

I have the honor to have received a bill for consideration, entitled “An Act to extend the charter of the Ocean Terminal Railroad, Dock and Elevator Company, and to revive, confirm and extend the charter of the Ocean Terminal Railroad Company.”

As the original action was had upon this bill in the House, I return it to that body with my objections.

The title does not give the scope of its action, although it embraces within it two corporations supposed to be existing, one under an act of incorporation passed in the year 1881, and another supposed to be organized under the general laws. But upon examination it will be seen that the act itself revives, extends and gives different terms and conditions of existence to another corporation, the Mystic River Corporation, which in my opinion ought to give reasons for its present existence. This will be seen by an examination of the act of incorporation of the Ocean Terminal Railroad Dock and Elevator Company, which is revived by this Bill. Section 4 of chapter 239 provides that,— act may purchase and hold all or any portion of the lands, wharves, property, rights, privileges and franchises of the Mystic River Corporation." And it authorizes said corporations to "sell, convey and transfer . . . all or any part of their respective lands, wharves, property, rights, privileges and franchises" to said Elevator Company. And the identity of the persons interested in the three corporations will be shown by the fact that the incorporators of all are in a majority the same persons.

To understand the scope of this bill it becomes necessary to examine the provisions of law creating the Mystic River Corporation. That Act, chapter 105 of the laws of 1852, permitted the city of Charlestown, and such other proprietors of lands and flats situated in Charlestown "as shall vote to accept this act at a meeting called for that purpose, are hereby authorized to enclose by a good and sufficient sea-wall, and to fill up a portion of the flats lying between the north or main channel, and the south channel in said river," bounded as in said act set forth, which are the same lands and flats, the unsold portion of which are now claimed by the Mystic River Corporation.

The act provides that "the proprietors shall be required to keep open to its present depth the south channel of the Mystic River from the point of termination at Elm Street to the main channel near the easterly angle of the timber dock at the easterly corner of the Navy Yard."

"That they shall widen the north channel by excavating the mud from the southerly side thereof to the depth of the present channel," from point to point named in said act, "and shall remove the whole of the shoal in the middle of said channel opposite Chelsea Creek, to the general depth of the channel, and keep the same clear for the convenience of navigation; and if, in consequence of this widening of the channel, there shall be any shoaling of the same on the northerly side of said river, in front of the wharves belonging to the United States, said proprietors shall restore the channel in that part to its original depth. That the enclosed flats shall be filled to the depth of eight feet. That the work is to be supervised by a commissioner appointed by the Governor, who shall be paid by the proprietors, and said proprietors shall keep up and maintain the excavations so made above these improvements. This act to be void unless the structure and excavations above described shall be commenced

within three years, and completed within eight years from and after its passage; and all right and title to the land to be filled up by virtue of this act shall cease if the owners of such land shall fail to maintain all the excavations hereinbefore required to be maintained."

And by an act of the same year an addition is made which provides what special lands shall be released to the Commonwealth, and also provides how the sea-wall shall be built and how far extended. The acts show that the purpose of the Commonwealth was to improve the navigation of that part of the river by a grant to the city of Charlestown and the proprietors, to do certain work in filling flats and building a sea-wall which should bound and deepen the north and south channels of said river. And for that purpose the grant was made to the city of Charlestown, in which the tide-waters were situated, jointly with these proprietors.

This improvement, if undertaken by the city of Charlestown, would doubtless have been carried out according to the terms of the act; but it does not appear that the city of Charlestown ever did anything about it. It is certain, however, that said structures and excavations were not commenced within three years and completed within eight years, which was a condition; otherwise the act would be void, because we find that by chapter 55 of the Acts of 1855 the time was extended three years.

Again, by chapter 481 of the Acts of 1855, the Mystic River Corporation was substantially granted a new charter, giving, in addition to the other provisions, the right to build docks, and extending the time of commencing said structure and excavations three years, and the time for the completion ten years.

Substantially no work was commenced, and in 1859 another act was procured, allowing the Mystic River Corporation to sell its land, not exceeding four-fifths, under the supervision of the commissioner; that is to say, under the supervision of a commissioner paid by themselves. Thus a third extension of time for the completion of the improvement was made for ten years, which of course would expire in 1869.

In 1867 the company applied for a fourth extension of time to complete the improvement, and obtained one for ten years after 1869.

Again the improvement was not made, and in 1878 a still further extension was asked for, and ten years more were given them, under which fifth extension the corporation now claims to exist.

Ocean Terminal

By chapter 145 of the Acts of 1880 the Mystic River Corporation was "authorized to extend its band of pier wharf beyond the line now provided by law on the main channel of Mystic River;" and by the second section the corporation is authorized to purchase and hold shares in the Ocean Terminal Railroad Company, which was incorporated in that year, under the charge of the same corporators. This was a corporation to be organized under the general law, but which has not, in fact, been organized under the general law, not having vitality enough to organize itself, or to pay a single dollar towards the construction of its railroad, within two years from which its charter lapsed and its corporators applied for an extension for two years more in 1882, and obtained it by the provisions of chapter 9 of the acts of that year, extending the time of its organization to the 6th day of May of the present year.

Meanwhile, in 1881 the same corporators obtained an act incorporating the Ocean Terminal Railroad, Dock and Elevator Company, with the provision of which I have spoken, giving them a right to buy, and the Mystic River Corporation a right to sell, all its property and franchises to that company. But that company had not vitality enough to complete its organization within the terms of the general law, or to do anything whatever, and it now seeks by this bill to have the time for its organization extended two years longer; and the question which presents itself to me is, is there any public exigency for so doing?

It will be seen that the provision for the Mystic River Corporation to sell to the Dock and Elevator Company, and the authorization of that company to buy, would operate substantially as a confirmation of all the acts and doings of the Mystic River Corporation.

I have traced thus carefully this legislation because it illustrates and explains what has long been complained of as an evil, and which has increased to such an extent as to lead the legislature to inquire whether we ought not to have biennial instead of annual sessions of the legislature.

Suppose every private and public corporation in this Commonwealth should apply, as each would have a right to do, to the legislature for so many acts, and so many grants to cover their incapacities and delinquencies, then the legislature would have to sit every day and every hour during the whole year. But happily that supposition is not the fact. We have before us, however, the fact of this one corporation substantially requiring all this legislation, besides taking advantage of our general laws to perpetuate itself. Each one of these Acts required a hearing before a committee of the legislature, and we are to assume at least full investigation, and then consideration by the two Houses.

The House will do me the favor to remember that I returned to the Senate a similar bill, with my objections, for the extension of the Somerville Wharf and Improvement Company. You will remember how much of the time of the legislature was consumed in the investigation of the validity of those objections, and the propriety of passing such a bill. As an example of the necessity for far-reaching examination, the considerations of the expediency of that bill extended to an investigation of the religious character of the emperors of Rome in the third century, — a topic of research which has consumed much time of ecclesiastics and historians, and covered many pages of sacred and secular history of the conditions of religion and government of that remote period. Even with all the care and attention so properly bestowed upon that investigation by the Senate, this important fact bearing upon the effect of holding land in mortmain was not discovered by the legislature, or either body thereof, so far as appears by their official documents, namely, that Philip, the Arabian, was a Christian Emperor of Rome, reigning from the year of our Lord 244 to 249; which would have been discovered, no doubt, if the demands of the public service would have permitted sufficient time to have referred to the letters of Origen, and the writings of Eusebius and Jerome, wherein Philip is alleged to be highly honored for his adherence to Christianity, and is styled as one “qui primus de regibus Romanis Christianus fuit.”

In their necessary haste, the Senate was probably misled by looking after a Christian empire, which was established in the fourth century, and not a Christian Emperor who reigned in the third century.

I hope it may not be out of place here to observe that I do not confound Philip, who baptized the heathen treasurer of Queen Candace, with Philip the Arabian. I say this to prevent mistakes which would be no more palpable than for a lawyer to confound the Magna Charta of King Henry, an act of Parliament concerning mortmain, with the great charter of liberties extorted from King John by his barons.

Former legislatures have been criticised because they occupied more than half of the year to do sufficient legislation to serve the people of the Commonwealth for the remaining six months. The legislation deemed necessary to be had to regulate a single corporation would seem to be a sufficient apology for them.

I am informed the fact to be that the Mystic River Corporation has done no such dredging as is required by the charter in this series of years; and one evidence of that fact is that Joseph E. Bartlett, the leading incorporator, took an individual contract from the United States to do dredging in that vicinity, using the excavated mud to fill up the Mystic River Corporation lands in 1878.

If the House, by one of its committees, will examine this tract of land, as it is within a mile of the State House, I think they will see that I am correct, that the fact is that no amount of dredging, filling or construction required by the act has been done.

Another fact which tends to show that the corporation has been fully reimbursed for all possible expenditures is that the corporation sold lately less than one-half of the land included within its limits, to the Boston & Lowell Railroad, for two hundred and eighty thousand dollars ($280,000), which was within twenty thousand dollars ($20,000) of the extreme limit of its capital stock. The corporation has now on the west side of Chelsea Bridge, some fifty acres of flats remaining substantially unfilled, most of which in my judgment are clearly the property of the Commonwealth, and are worth quite as much as the land already sold to the Lowell Railroad on the west side.

Now these flats will probably be shortly needed for the use of the railroads running into Boston for elevator and dock purposes, some of the best water of Boston harbor not occupied by the United States for naval purposes, being adjacent to those flats. Why should the corporation claim these flats as their property, when they have failed to give to the Commonwealth the consideration for which they were to have them, to wit, the completion of a sea-wall, which has not been done, and the filling up of the flats, which would prevent their unhealthiness from the miasma at low tide water, which also has not been done. And why should the legislature pass this bill and sanction the selling of them to another corporation which yet has not had vitality enough in a series of years to raise any capital or complete its organization, and which, when called upon by the tax commissioner to pay a corporate tax, excused itself from so doing because they had not organized. Why, for two years longer, should this cloud be upon the title of the lands of the Commonwealth, or of the adjoining proprietors; and why should it not be open to sale for the purpose for which it is needed, without any interference on their part.

Perhaps there is no better illustration of the mischief of holding land in mortmain than the one before us. Quite a generation has passed since this land was granted to this corporation in consideration of certain public benefits. If it had been in private hands it would have been long since divided, and probably sold by the heirs of the proprietors. The new corporations, the Terminal Railroad, and the Dock and Elevator Companies, have had now three years in which to do something. They have done nothing. The Mystic Corporation has had more than thirty years, and they have done nothing substantially to fill their obligations, but have simply held their lands and waited until they could sell them at an enormous price to a railroad company, which must increase its freightage to the people of the Commonwealth for the purpose of paying the income on that expenditure.

Failing to see any claim that these corporators or corporations have to further existence as organized, I would say that if the legislature does not rehabilitate them, and give them a new existence beyond the reach of the Executive, it will be the duty of the Executive to see that they cumber the ground no longer.

Examination of
panies.

I have the honor to enclose herewith a copy of a communication addressed to me by the insurance commissioner, disclosing a fact of which I had before no official information, although I had some unofficial knowledge. To this communication I beg the attention of the legislature.

Examination of Insurance Companies.

By the statute the insurance commissioner is made "commissioner and actuary."

In practice I believe an actuary is one who examines, as an expert, the condition of insurance companies and insurance business, and very frequently employed by large insurance companies from private life to make such examinations for the satisfaction of the officers and stockholders themselves.

The legislature will see that the provision of law in regard to examinations of insurance companies, has been wholly ignored and unfulfilled.

That provision is a very important one. It requires the examination of the affairs of all the companies of the State to be made by the commissioner or deputy commissioner, acting as actuaries in fact, once in three years. This has not been done within the last three years, and it appears that it has not been previously to that time. Therefore there is no official knowledge in the possession of the insurance department of the actual standing of the State companies. From my own examination I know that one or more of them are not in a safe and proper condition, and have not been for some time. The present commissioner of insurance finds the alleged reason of the neglect of this duty in the office to be a want of sufficient force to do it. This arises because the statute directing this to be done by the insurance commissioner or his deputy is supposed to limit that examination to one or the other of them only.

As the legislature is doubtless aware, the examinations of companies out of the State, both fire and life, which are made, are paid for by them; but there is no provision for the companies in the State paying for any such service, as the law supposes that the salaries of the commissioner and deputy commissioner are a sufficient remuneration for that service. It will be seen, therefore, that there is an urgency that these examinations should be at once made, for the safety of all concerned, as well the companies as the policy-holders and the public.

The commissioner has no funds at his disposal with which to employ any clerical force to take the place of himself and deputy while engaged in those examinations; and it would appear that they have enough business to do with their duties in relation to foreign companies, and in their official positions in the office to employ all their time.

I am very unwilling to recommend the appointment of new officials, and I do it with great reluctance; but it would be a false economy to allow the necessary business of the State not to be done for want of sufficient force to do it. I therefore recommend to the legislature either to so change the law that these examinations may be made by some person appointed by the insurance commissioner for the accuracy of whose work he shall be responsible, and provide a sufficient sum to pay him, or that a law be passed providing for an actuary to be appointed by the Governor and Council, or the commissioner, with their consent, with a sufficient sum for salary to obtain the services of a skilled and competent person for that work so that it may be done at once.

I commend this to the attention of the legislature most earnestly, and hope that its judgment in this matter will confirm my opinion.

Resolution of the Legislature of Tennessee.

I have the honor to transmit herewith a copy of a joint resolution of the Legislature of the State of Tennessee, forwarded to me by the executive of that State, in regard to the commemoration of the one hundredth anniversary of the inauguration of President Washington, by holding at that time a national and international exhibition, for such action as to the wisdom of the legislature shall seem proper.

[To the Senate, May 28.]

Election of
Aldermen in the
City of Boston.

I take leave to return, with my objections in writing, a bill entitled "An Act concerning the election of aldermen in the city of Boston," which I pray the Honorable Senate to proceed to reconsider in the manner prescribed by the constitution.

It cannot be doubted that this bill, if it becomes a law, would change very substantially, and in very material matter, the organization of the government of the city of Boston.

By the present charter of the city the aldermen are elected by the votes of the whole people of the city. The bill proposes that each alderman shall be elected in a separate district, which is presented in the bill itself.

Election of
Aldermen in the
City of Boston.

As a determining objection to this bill lies against its whole intent, scope and action, I proceed first to consider that; and afterwards some objections to its details, which would seem to me of formidable weight.

Under our constitution, until the amendments of 1820, no power was given, or claimed by the legislature to charter a city municipality in this Commonwealth, with or without the consent of its people.

By Article II. of the amendments referred to, the general court was given full "power and authority to erect and constitute municipal or city governments in any corporate town or towns in this Commonwealth, * * * * and to prescribe the manner of calling and holding public meetings of the inhabitants in wards or otherwise, for the election of officers under the constitution, and the manner of returning the votes given at such meeting."

If that article had stopped there, then the bill would be open to no constitutional objection. But to that article there is a very material proviso, containing two restrictions on the power of the legislature in this regard.

First, That no such government shall be erected in any town not containing twelve thousand inhabitants.

Second, "Unless it be with the consent and on the application of a majority of the inhabitants of such town, present and voting thereon, pursuant to a meeting duly warned and holden for that purpose."

The construction of that proviso has necessarily been that no municipal corporation or city has been erected in this Commonwealth without the previous application of the citizens duly expressed in a constitutional manner by a majority vote, and the charter submitted to be adopted by the same vote at a legally warned and holden meeting.

The question then presents itself; a municipal corporation, having been created, its form of government established by its charter, which charter could only take effect, and has ever taken effect, by the adoption of its citizens expressed through their vote—can such form of government be constitutionally altered by the legislature without a like vote? Or, in other words, can the legislature, after it has erected a city government by a charter acceptable to the citizens of a town, and it has been accepted by them, then exert the power to change the whole form and substance of that charter, and impose upon them a burdensome, unjust, partisan and iniquitous government?

Aldermen in the

Would such a proceeding be claimed by any just-minded person to be a form of government with the consent of the governed which is fundamental in a republic, as to its details as well as in the general. A statement of this proposition is all the argument needed to have it pass in the negative. And so have the former legislatures, except in very unimportant points, treated all the cities of the Commonwealth in relation to any changes in their chartered rights, and have always submitted every material change of the form of action of the city government, to the ratification, by their acceptance, of the people of the city, by their votes in a legally organized meeting, such as that by which they at first accepted that charter.

And in these unimportant changes, which might seem to be exceptions, the legislature has conformed to the spirit of the constitution by requiring them to be accepted by a vote of the city council.

In 1822, chapter 110, "An Act establishing the city of Boston;" 1823, chapter 107, "An Act in addition to an act establishing the city of Boston;" 1825, chapter 49, "An Act in further addition to an act to establish the city of Boston;" an act of the same year, chapter 52, "to establish a fire department;" 1827, chapter 144, "An Act for the protection of the city against fire;" 1830, "An Act providing for the election of the mayor;" an act of the same year, chapter 7, for the same purpose; 1834, chapter 158, "An Act in further addition to an act establishing the city;" an act of 1835, chapter 128, for the same purpose; an act of 1846, chapter 167, "for supplying the city with pure water;" an act of 1851, chapter 337, being "An Act in regard to the organization and power of the city council;" 1852, chapter 266, "An Act in regard to the city;" 1854, chapter 449, "An Act in addition to an act to revise the charter;" 1854, chapter 443, "An Act for the annexation of the city of Charlestown;" 1867, chapter 359, "An Act to unite the city of Boston and the town of Dorchester,"—were all submitted to a vote of the people, being the only cases which directly interfered with the charter provisions of the city of Boston.

In 1824, "An Act concerning the house of correction in the city of Boston and providing for filling vacancies in the board of aldermen," and "An Act concerning elections;" 1845, chapter 1, "An Act to establish a municipal court in the city of Boston;" an act of 1871, chapter 280, "to provide for the regulation and inspection of buildings, and for more effectual protection against fire;" 1876, chapter 246, "An Act in relation to ward officers of the city of Boston;" being matters not interfering with the chartered rights of the citizens, but giving them additional powers and privileges, were not submitted to a vote of the people.

Aldermen in the
City of Boston.

"An Act to authorize the city of Boston to establish a public library," in the year 1848, and "An Act in addition to an act supplying the city with pure water"—the original act having been submitted to the people—and "An Act to amend an act establishing the city;" 1850, chapter 262, "An Act in regard to the fire department;" 1853, chapter 33, "An Act to allow the city of Boston to found and maintain a public library;" 1858, chapter 86, "An Act in further addition to an act for supplying the city with pure water;" and in 1859, an act in further addition to that act; in 1874, chapter 60, "An Act establishing the Board of Registrars of Voters"; 1874, chapter 400, "An Act to authorize the city of Boston to obtain a further supply of pure water,"—were all submitted for ratification by vote of the city council.

In 1875, chapter 243, "An Act to allow the division of the city of Boston into twenty-five wards, and to fix the number of members of the common council, provided that the division should be made by the council."

An act of 1876, chapter 242, relating to the division of ward twenty-two into wards, had been passed by the city council, and was only ratified by the legislature; and in 1878, chapter 244, "An Act in relation to the police department of the city of Boston" was petitioned for by vote of the city council.

I have seemed tedious, I fear, in the enumeration of all these acts; but, so far as I can learn from the debates, they have not been brought to the attention of either branch of the legislature.

But this right to control their own government is a matter of such importance to the nearly score of cities in this Commonwealth, that I have thought it my duty to so far present the details.

Election of
Aldermen in the
City of Boston.

It would lengthen this paper by far too much to examine the legislative action toward other cities of the Commonwealth in the same detail; but the same general facts as to the course of legislation will apply to them, with some isolated exceptions. But even those exceptions, I believe, upon careful examination, will be found to contain this element, — that, where the revision of any portion of the charter has not been submitted to the people of the cities for their adoption, that the cities, by vote, either of their councils or of their people, had applied for such amendments and revisions, or, in other words, previous application of the city had been made to the legislature for the desired changes.

It will be observed that no party or political question or considerations have entered into the constructions of the meaning of the constitution by these acts. They have been made by legislatures of all parties.

Perhaps no more partisan legislature, using that word in its mildest sense, ever heretofore sat in your halls than the legislature of 1879, under the executive guidance of His Excellency Thomas Talbot.

Certainly no more able committees of the judiciary have, for years, sat in your houses than the judiciary committees of that year; and they were so imbued with the spirit of the constitution in this regard, that, by chapter 138 of that year, a slight change was made in the charter of the city of Lowell, without submission to the people; and also, by chapter 3, in the charter of the city of Haverhill: yet, even then, a submission to a two-thirds vote of the city council was required.

Again, by chapter 162 of the acts of that year, an act providing for increasing the salary of the mayor of the city of New Bedford a few hundred dollars per year was submitted to a vote of the people; and by chapter 190, a change in the mode of choosing assessors in the city of Cambridge was submitted to a vote of the people.

And by chapter 146, an amendment changing the tenure of officers from one to three years in the city of Somerville, was submitted to a vote of the people.

Your honorable body has not been unmindful of the spirit of the constitution in this regard, in that you have, at the request of the city of New Bedford, changed the salary of the mayor and submitted that to a vote of its council; and a change in the salary of the mayor of the city of Worcester was also made upon prior request of that city.

Election of
Aldermen in the
City of Boston.

But in these several changes there was nothing partisan whatever.

All the law books say that contemporaneous construction of constitutional and other legal provisions is the highest and best exposition of the law.

Were the constitutional power as clearly in favor of this bill as it seems to me to be against it, I should still interpose, and feel myself constrained so to do, objection to its passage.

No exigency for it is shown as apparent.

For sixty-two years Boston has had its present form of electing, by general ticket, its upper branch of the city council, and has flourished exceedingly, rising from an insignificant town of twenty thousand inhabitants to a city of 363,000 inhabitants, and it has been the boast of her citizens and is claimed with pride by the State, that she is one of the best, if not the very best governed cities in the United States, having by her charter a check upon the local interests of her council, which is elected by wards and districts, in the balancing power of her board of aldermen, every member of which must be elected by her citizens at large, and therefore feel that the city, and not a locality, is their constituency.

Has the experiment of electing aldermen by districts, in New York, worked so favorably that we are now to fall in love with it here, and bow down and worship it?

Nay, has it been deemed a fortunate circumstance that, under the constitution of New York the legislature of that State can impose any sort of a charter it pleases, and as often as it pleases, upon that great city?

Has that been productive of so much good that we can afford to violate both the letter and the spirit of our constitution to attain such an end?

If I could believe the newspapers I should be taught, that the citizens of New York look upon that power of the legislature to impose any form of government upon them, year by year, sometimes, as it is claimed, by bribery and corruption, as a tyranny; and changes of charter as arbitrary, whenever, as it is claimed, it has been done when there is a change in political parties in the State, and sometimes, as has been asserted, in order to affect elections in the State of New York by legislative power.

Aldermen in the
City of Boston.

Of course, nothing of that sort could by any possibility affect the action of a Massachusetts legislator.

But ought we not to see to it that a precedent shall not be established in these, the pure days of Massachusetts politics, which may hereafter be quoted against us when bad men and partisan politicians may sit in our seats?

Again, I suppose there is no exigency for this bill because, if I may quote the same authority, I should be taught that the same men who now favor this change in the city charter opposed it one year ago, showing that full reflection upon the same topic has had its due effect in enlightening the consciences and forming their judgments.

True the force of this argument is weakened by the fact, learned from the same source, that some men who oppose it now favored it then, both of which "modern instances" convince me that we had better go on in the good old ways of our fathers.

Second, Upon examining the details of the bill, I fear that the legislature have not had time 'mid their arduous duties to observe its full effect.

I suppose that equality of representation in every legislative body is fundamental, that is to say, it has always been held unjust to so arrange representative districts as to give to a few more power than the many.

Unfortunately Massachusetts has had a bad eminence in that regard which no act of mine shall exalt.

A division of Massachusetts into districts in the olden time, even in the pure days of our Revolutionary fathers, gave birth to a new word in the English language—"Gerrymander"—so named after one of my predecessors in this chair who was supposed to have planned the districting of the State into unequal representative districts, for political purposes.

The map of Massachusetts, when those districts were made, being painted in colors, made a picture of a strange looking animal, to which this term was applied, and I fear, in examining the outlines of the districts provided for in this bill, if correctly sketched and colored by a comic artist, they would produce an equally uncouth looking, if not as monstrous, a bird.

I find that in district number three, the bill requires eight thousand five hundred and sixty-seven (8,567) legal voters to make an alderman, whereas in district number twelve it only takes two thousand eight hundred and seventy-two (2,872) to have an alderman of equal weight with the other; that is to say, in district number twelve one voter has just as much power in the city government as four voters in district number three.

Election of
Aldermen in the
City of Boston.

If these stood alone I might suppose it was an inadvertence; but district number eleven, with four thousand and fifty-four (4,054) voters, has the same aldermanic power as district number two, with seven thousand nine hundred and twenty-four (7,924) voters.

With my limited acquaintance with the city of Boston, I do not know but that the weight of the voters in the small districts might outbalance the numbers in the larger ones, but such is not the theory of our constitution and of our government:—equality of rights, equality of power, equality of burdens and equality of privileges under the law, are fundamental and axiomatic.

I return to your honorable body a bill to authorize the County Commissioners of Plymouth County to enlarge and remodel the House of Correction at Plymouth.

House of Correction at Plymouth.

This bill, if it should become a law, authorizes the county commissioners of that county to enlarge the house of correction at Plymouth at an expense not exceeding forty thousand dollars ($40,000.00), and for that purpose to borrow, on the credit of the county, a sum not exceeding forty thousand dollars ($40,000.00), and to employ, so far as may be, convict labor to aid in the construction; and, further, to sell the jail and jail-houses, and to use the materials thereof in the construction.

Prior to this bill reaching me, I had received a considerable number of petitions, signed by a large number of the most respectable citizens of that county, asking me to take measures that the same shall not become a law.

These petitions are certainly entitled to weight, at least in so far as to cause me to give the bill the most careful consideration.

Turning to the financial reports of the county, I find that it makes a very creditable exhibit, in so far that its cash debit, above its cash assets, does not exceed the sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000.00).

Correction at Plymouth.

It is to be strongly wished that the indebtedment of other counties in the Commonwealth could make, as a rule, any like showing; because, if they could, the people of those counties would not be burdened with very large taxation to meet great liabilities largely incurred for the purpose of the construction of numerous and expensive county buildings, the objection to which is not only the too burdensome interest upon the sum expended in their cost, but also the very large outlay necessary to keep them in repair and to care for them.

In the earlier history of the State, when locomotion was both tedious and expensive, lawyers, judges and other persons who had business to do were compelled to spend a large portion of their time while doing it, in the shire towns.

It was, therefore, then desirable that the courts and their machinery should be brought into as close proximity as possible to the people of the several parts of the county, and so several shire towns were established with county buildings therein, but since the State has been absolutely "gridironed" by railroads, so that every person in the county, as a rule, can, in the course of three hours at the most, reach every other portion of the county at small expense, transact his business in the day and return home at night, the requirement for a number of shire towns in the same county, and their attendant county buildings, has largely ceased.

But it may be said that there need not be, and, as a rule, there is not but one House of Correction in a county for the incarceration of prisoners sent to it.

True; therefore it is all the more necessary that such House of Correction should be at, or as near as possible, the centre of the population of the county.

The convicts sent to such county house largely come there on the sentences of trial justices or police courts, and the cost of their conveyance to and from their places of detention, with the accompanying official fees, become a very large item of county expenditure.

The large sum appropriated by this bill, and the fact that the jail at Plymouth is to be torn down and the materials used in constructing a House of Correction, shows substantially a new jail is to be built in the town of Plymouth.

Now, Plymouth is at the extreme border of the county;

a town of some seven thousand inhabitants, and nearly stationary in its growth.

House of Correction at Plymouth

It is surrounded by a sparse, and, I am fain to believe, a virtuous and quiet population, who would have little occasion to use a House of Correction.

The larger and more populous and growing towns are, as a rule, near the other extremity of the county, where there is also a rapidly growing city which claims some fifteen thousand inhabitants.

These are economic considerations, which are entitled to some weight in the consideration of the exigencies for this bill.

All the supreme and superior courts now are, or may be, held at Plymouth, and I suppose it is a fact that can hardly disguise itself, that one of the reasons for the promotion of this legislation is, that this large expenditure may tend to fasten the courts in Plymouth as the only shire town.

This appears from the fact that application has been made for another half-shire town in the county, to the present legislature, which application had so much of apparent merit in it, that it had been referred to the next legislature for its consideration, together with the proposition to rebuild the House of Correction.

But this bill, by the energy of its proponents, was brought back again into this legislature by a motion to reconsider, and has passed both branches. The shire-town bill still remains referred to the next General Court.

It may be considered an agreed fact that the present House of Correction is not sufficient to accommodate those sent there, its actual accommodation being only for thirty-two, while there are sometimes more than fifty sent there to be confined.

But the county commissioners have adopted the plan of having the excess confined in the House of Correction, in the neighboring county of Norfolk, where there is ample room, at a cost of some three dollars per week.

The average whole number is forty.

Now, as I am informed that thirty-two can be well enough accommodated in the present House of Correction at Plymouth, and supposing the average excess to be twenty, it will be seen that this large expenditure, if it were $40,000 only, would be equal to the construction of a building at an expense of $2,000 for each such inmate in excess of present accommodation.

Correction at

This seems to be wholly disproportionate, but of itself would not be a conclusive reason why I should interpose my own judgment against the judgment of the people of that county, but I have no evidence that the people desire this expenditure.

Indeed, I am told, that but three only of those representing wholly that county in the House, voted for this bill.

The determining objection with me is a deeper and farther reaching one.

The bill authorizes the Board of County Commissioners to burden the county with debt in order to construct this building.

Neither of those officers was elected with a view to this exigency, and the people cannot pass upon their fitness to do so grave a work until this debt, eight times larger than the present debt of the county, can be fastened upon them without their desire, and, so far as is apparent, against their consent.

But, beyond this, under our system of constitutional government which recognizes towns, cities and counties as independent bodies for all purposes of local self-government, I do not believe that the legislature has any right to fasten upon such municipal bodies a debt for local purposes without the consent of the people, duly expressed at the ballot-box, upon the very question itself.

This was the earlier and better legal doctrine of the Commonwealth. Our cities, towns and counties existed as independent, local, self-governing bodies before the Commonwealth existed, and I do not believe that the people of the Commonwealth, in framing the Constitution, did surrender the rights of local self-government when they framed our Constitution and erected our General Court.

I find no language in the Constitution aptly describing such surrender, and I am sure our sturdy fathers, who fought in the Revolution against taxation being imposed upon them without their consent, would never have surrendered such a right without putting such surrender in the plainest and most guarded words.

I take it that the constitutional distinction is this: That the General Court can impose equal taxation upon all the people, because all the people are represented therein, for the general purposes equally affecting all, but cannot impose a burden of debt on any less than the whole.

House of Correction at Plymouth.

But the General Court cannot, and, if they can, ought not to impose burdens and taxes upon the local municipalities for their local purposes, only when the consent of the people of such municipalities has been obtained.

By the earliest legislation the duty of building "fit and convenient" houses of correction was imposed upon counties by the legislature authorizing the Court of General Sessions, which was composed of the several justices of peace of the county, to levy a tax for that purpose, but not to run the county into debt for it.

The legislature left it to the county to determine what was a "fit and convenient" House of Correction, making the county liable for the escape of a prisoner, if the escape was owing to the faulty construction of the building.

When the Court of General Sessions was abandoned for county commissioners, by what was an oversight of legislation, the power to build county buildings was left to the discretion of such board; but the discretion was so extravagantly used, and such loads of debt were thrown upon the counties, that the legislature had to interfere and restrict the building of county buildings to a certain percentage on the debt, without leave from the legislature, hence this application to octuple the amount of debt of Plymouth County.

As a result enormous burdens of debt have been imposed upon some counties for such purposes which never would have been imposed upon them if the question of the expenditure had been referred to the people of the counties respectively.

I therefore respectfully call a halt in this direction, and ask the legislature, in the light of these, my objections, to reconsider this bill, and I return it to the proper body thereof for that purpose.

I crave indulgence for supposing that I can now be permitted to take official notice of the public action of your honorable body in relation to the message I had the honor to forward to the House on the 23d of February, because of the report of a committee of the House upon that

Union Safe
Deposit Vaults.

Union Safe

subject. Up to this time I have not felt at liberty in any public manner to say anything upon the topics treated upon in that report.

If the honorable House had asked the "Supreme Executive Magistrate" of the Commonwealth for any information to guide its action in that spirit of courtesy and proper official relations that ought to exist between two co-ordinate, and in their spheres equal branches of the government of the Commonwealth, I should have answered an intimation or request in that regard to the House with the frankness with which I am certain the House will do me the credit to say, I have always addressed them. Of course I should not have submitted to the action of any committee of investigation of the action of the Executive, because I respectfully submit the House has no authority to investigate the action of the Executive, or to question it, any more than the Executive has authority to investigate the action of the House, or to question it, its regularity and propriety, except in the manner pointed out by the constitution. The House, as the grand inquest for the purposes of impeachment, can always inquire into the action of any executive officer of the Commonwealth, from the highest to the lowest; and for that purpose may call upon the confidential servants of such officer for any information tending to show him guilty of high crimes and misdemeanors, but for no other object or purpose whatever. The Executive may object, and communicate his objections to the House, to any official act of the House, within the constitutional limit, and no other, and must look only to the official journals of the House to ascertain what the action of the House has been in any matter about which the Executive requires instruction; but the Executive cannot ascertain the official action of the House by inquiring of its clerks or servants, of what it has omitted to do; and any attempt of the Executive to summon them before him for that purpose and oblige them to disclose any action of the House—it might be in secret session—would be a grave contempt of its authority and an indignity shown to its high position, worthy of and demanding attention as very reprehensible, even if there might be no constitutional authority for the redress of such a wrong.

I gather from the report of your committee that the House desires to know when, how, and under what circumstances the message of the 23d of February, in regard to the bill to incorporate the Union Safe Deposit Vaults was prepared and sent to the House; and I also infer that the committee of the House have not been so fully successful, in gathering that information for the House, as the House might well have hoped it would have been. I therefore take leave respectfully to supply the defects in that information by the following statement:

Union Safe Deposit Vaults.

The bill in question was handed to the private secretary of the Governor late in the afternoon of the 21st of February. Upon examination of it, certain objections impressed themselves upon my mind, which were of weight. I had been called upon to go to Washington by the exigencies of certain private affairs, which demanded my attention, some of which I had been putting off from day to day, in order that I might not be required to go more than once, and also some public business, i. e., business which concerned the Commonwealth, which required my attention there; and I proposed to leave the Commonwealth on the evening of Friday, so as to avoid being absent any more during legislative time than was necessary. Some time after two o'clock on Friday, when, by the rules of the Executive office, the general public would be excluded from the Executive chamber, I called upon one of my stenographic secretaries to take down from my dictation a portion of my message. As I can dictate in a quarter of an hour more than any secretary can write out in an hour, after I had dictated for a proper time to one, I directed him to write out what I had dictated, and sent for the other and dictated to him the remainder, so as at as early a moment as possible I might be able to present the message to the legislature. I was under the impression at that time that the bill had originated in the Senate, and I had so at first written the message. With reasonable speed the message was prepared, written out and presented to me for revision and signature. I corrected it by striking out, on the first page, the words "To the Honorable the Senate," and inserting the words, "To the Honorable the House of Representatives." The only other corrections, if any, were of mere verbal errors. While doing so I was called upon by the Lieutenant-Governor concerning another matter, and I was obliged to show curt courtesy in that interview, and gave him as a reason for so doing that I was writing a message of objections. He asked me in regard to what bill; and I told him in regard to the bill incorporating the Union Safe Deposit Vaults; and he, with his accustomed courtesy, left. Meanwhile, I had sent one of the clerks to ascertain whether the Senate was in session; he reported that it was not; that it had adjourned some time about two or three o'clock. I then asked him if the House was in session, and was told that it was not. I then signed the message, and said, perhaps irreverently, to my secretary, "Take this message, and when you can catch a legislature, have it delivered to the House. Meanwhile, before you have it presented, have the first sheet, which contains the alteration from 'Senate' to 'House of Representatives,' recopied, as I do not choose to have the message go with that change interlined in it." And from that moment I have never seen the paper containing the message.

At six o'clock that evening I left Boston, and about half-past eight o'clock I left the Commonwealth en route for Washington, and I did not return until I got ready.

There is no other fact that I know of that will be of the slightest importance to the House, and as the honorable House of Representatives will see, there has been no reason why every fact should not have been known.

Tewksbury
Almshouse.

I have permitted the several appropriation bills for the charitable and reformatory institutions of the State, except the Reformatory Prison for Women and the State Prison, to become laws by lapse of time.

As I have heretofore stated in a message to the legislature, I could not approve them in the form in which they were presented to me, and I cannot approve them now.

Some of the institutions I do not think ought to exist in their present form, and those I have already designated; but so long as the legislature sustains them, so long the Governor can have nothing to do but to execute the laws.

I had thought the appropriations would be diminished very largely, saving some one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) to the State, which I believed could have been done; and as a guarantee of that belief I offered, in regard to one institution, to pledge my own means to do it. Further investigation made into the expenditures of the Tewksbury almshouse convinces me, the more I probe them, that I am right.

I desire to call the attention of the legislature to the following table taken from the official reports of that almshouse, for the years 1862 and 1882, when under the same superintendence, the only change being in the Board of Inspectors, which table shows the fact of enormous extravagance at the present time, conclusively :—

The foregoing table shows that less than one-half the amount was expended for current expenses of the institution in 1862 for a larger weekly average of inmates, and but little more than one-third of the amount was paid for

Expenses of Tewksbury
Alms-house.

“services and wages” in that year, that was spent for the same purposes in 1882, and the legislature of 1883 has appropriated nearly three times as much for salaries, and quite double the amount for current expenses for the support of a less number of inmates in the same institution, the only difference being that a larger portion of the inmates are quiet, chronic insane people. Surely an able-bodied insane pauper will eat no more than an able-bodied sane one, and the more of the insane that are sick the less will be the cost of their support.

Another matter to be taken into account is that 1862 was the second year of the war, when the superintendent of this institution, in his report for that year, said:—

“I am happy, moreover, to be able to report that notwithstanding the increased prices of most articles of consumption, and the withdrawal of nearly all our able-bodied inmates, — in consequence of the war,—the expenses of the institution have been materially reduced.” “One reason for this pleasant result is to be found in the fast-growing productiveness of the farm, which contributes largely toward supporting the alms-house.”

I desire further to call attention to the comparison of the death-rate between 1862 and 1882.

In 1862 the whole number of deaths with the larger number of inmates was 132, and at that time they had foundlings at the institution; and the same official reports show substantially all died that were there in 1872. And the whole number of deaths in 1882 was 235. Or $14\frac{4}{10}\frac{5}{10}$ per cent. of the average number supported in 1862 died, against $26\frac{2}{10}\frac{5}{10}$ per cent. of the average number supported in 1882, when they had no foundlings; thus leaving no apparent cause for this nearly doubled death-rate in 1882, except over-feeding, which would be an adequate one if they consumed all the provisions which the expense account shows they purchased.

A careful examination of this table will show some very astonishing facts, which are worth more than pages of argument. Therefore, as they are simply extracts from official documents, to bring them to the attention of the legislature, and of our common masters, the people of the Commonwealth.

tures should be reduced, or the legislature, the issue is made up and has gone to the people and must be determined by them. Neither the Executive, nor the Executive Council can do anything in cutting down the expenses of these institutions. They are all managed by boards and officers beyond our control. If the expenditures for them come to the Governor and Council only in the shape of bills already incurred, and the warrants are for the payment of parties who have furnished labor and material, of course our refusal to pay any one of these bills would only throw the burden upon the unfortunate merchant or laborer who had furnished his merchandise, or had given his labor, respectively, and if refused payment by the Governor, would remain a valid claim against the government to be paid hereafter through the courts. In the case of two or three officers only, amounting to a very small sum comparatively, is there any veto power in the hands of the Governor and Council, the great bulk of the salaries being wholly within the control of the officers of the several institutions. Under the circumstances, the money appropriated by the legislature must be spent, and from the statistics I have shown you above, in my judgment wastefully and recklessly spent. I do thus enter respectfully my protest against these bills becoming laws, and suffer them so to do because further contention upon them would be useless, and delay the legislature in their adjournment without day.

[To the Senate, June 2.]

I return to you a bill to incorporate the Newton Associates, which originated in your honorable body, and ask that it may be reconsidered in the light of my objections in writing, sent herewith.

Newton Associates.

This bill was reported from the Committee on Mercantile Affairs, although what the incorporation of a company to buy and sell land has to do with mercantile affairs, I am at a loss to conceive, and I draw some argument from the fact that this bill was referred to such a committee, that it has not heretofore been the policy of the legislature to grant charters to land companies, for I find that there never has been a committee on private lands in either branch of the legislature.

The bill provides for the incorporation of certain persons named therein, and their associates, for the purpose of purchasing, holding and possessing in fee simple or otherwise, selling, mortgaging, leasing and improving the real estate in the city of Boston now held by James C. Bayley, Edwin W. Gay, and George A. Valentine as trustees of the Newton Associates, said three trustees being a portion of the incorporators named in the bill, said land being described in said bill, "with all the powers and privileges, and subject to all the duties, restrictions and liabilities set forth in all general laws which now are, or may hereafter be in force, applicable to such corporations."

Of course neither your honorable body, nor can I, know what powers will be given to "such corporations" by the legislature hereafter in their wisdom; but, so far as I am informed, there are no "general laws" which give either powers or privileges, or make any restrictions upon "such corporations," for there are no "such corporations" under the general law. On the contrary, land companies are expressly excepted from the general statutes allowing the organization of corporations; so that, so far as I can see, the powers of this corporation would be substantially undefined. And when the legislative policy of the Commonwealth is so far changed as to allow the incorporation of land companies under the general laws, then these associates will have an opportunity to organize.

I have heretofore given to the legislature my objections to this, and any other class of corporations created solely for the purpose of buying, selling, trading and mortgaging lands. In addition to those objections, to which I respectfully beg leave to refer, my further objections are so well stated, clearly, distinctly and cogently set forth in the report of the minority of the Committee on Mercantile Affairs, which has been sent to me as a part of the papers accompanying this bill for my guidance and instruction, that I have chosen to adopt the language, spirit and argument of that report, and make it my own, in the hope that when it is read and considered by the two bodies of the legislature, it will prevent the passage of this bill, as I have no doubt it would have done in the first instance, had it been printed and considered.

The minority of the committee say:—

The bill reported by a portion of your committee, comes before the legislature in consequence of a petition from a certain number of gentlemen who ask for an act of incorporation for the purpose of purchasing real estate in the cities of Boston and Newton. A bill to this effect was presented to your committee and has been withdrawn.

Newton Associates.

No person has appeared before your committee in support of this bill reported, and no person has made, in the presence of your committee, the claim that any necessity exists for the passage of said act, or that any public benefit will accrue in consequence of its passage.

The two parcels of real estate which are designated in the reported bill, are now owned by the same gentlemen who ask for an act of incorporation which, if granted, will give to them rights and privileges which they could not enjoy as individuals.

If the rights and privileges asked for by these petitioners are proper ones to grant, if it is right to create a corporation for the purpose of buying and selling real estate, or for the purpose of holding real estate as an investment of money, an act should be incorporated in the general laws, which would give to all men equal privileges under the law.

Under the general laws now applicable to corporations, it is provided by Sect. 14 of Chap. 106 of the Public Statutes that "for the purpose of carrying on any lawful business not mentioned in the preceding sections, except buying and selling real estate, banking and insurance, and any other business, the formation of corporations for which is otherwise regulated by these statutes three or more persons may associate themselves with a capital of not less than one thousand, nor more than one million dollars," the preceding sections alluded to provide for the organizing of corporations for all the various kinds of business named therein; and Chap. 118 and Chap. 119 respectively, in like manner, provide for the formation of corporations for the transaction of the business of banking and insurance. Thus it will be seen that the general laws provide for the formation of corporations for the transaction of any lawful business except for the purpose of buying and selling real estate.

It is contrary to the spirit of our government to give privileges to one class of persons which are forbidden to others. The result sought to be obtained by these petitioners if it ought to be granted, should be granted by a general law, and not by a special act granting exemption and immunity to these petitioners, and not to the general public.

The right of holding real estate by corporations has been carefully guarded and limited by law.

that to be used for the transaction of their business, and all real estate of which a savings bank may become the owner must be sold within five years of the date when the title becomes vested in the corporation, excepting only the building occupied for its business.

The legislature of former years has followed closely in the well-defined line of public policy which in this country and Commonwealth has ever been that the aggregation of land is a public evil.

It is desirable, morally, politically and socially, that a large proportion of the people should be land owners.

Upon the individual holding, depends the success and prosperity of our country.

The population of the world comes to this country in search for homes; for the opportunity to purchase land. The desire to own land seems to be instinctive in every man. They come here from countries where it is difficult to purchase land.

The majority of the emigrants who come to our country, come from what might well be called a nation of tenants. They come here to become freeholders — to become freemen.

This State should do no act which will tend towards permitting the holding of lands by corporations. It should rather do all in its power to encourage individual holding, and discourage anything that bears even the semblance of monopoly.

Every corporation to which is granted the right to hold land is given a privilege which is an invasion of the public right. Such a right should never be granted unless it is made manifest that it is a matter of necessity to grant this right, or that it is for public good and not for private gain.

Great power and privilege is given to railroad corporations, to telegraph and other similar corporations, and to our great manufacturing interests; but all these corporations in return are of benefit to the whole community — almost a necessity. Their interests are provided for and the public right is guarded by general law; yet with all this care we are daily confronted with the cry of monopoly.

A monopoly of land in the strong grasp of corporations would be one of the greatest evils that could befall a nation. Now is the time to firmly discountenance any such evil and to say to the people of this State that we, as law makers, recognize their rights, and will protect them from the power of monopoly.

It is the distinctive quality of a corporation that it never dies. The vesting of the title to lands in a corporation may permit the holding in perpetuity.

The life of one man does not admit of great accumulation; and if the State does not create fictitious personages, and vest the title to lands in these creatures of the law, and if the general law of distribution was inflexible, our laws upon this subject would need no amendment.

The vesting of lands in any corporation is an obstacle to their free sale and transfer, and every such obstacle will hereafter be accounted an evil. Newton Associates.

This Commonwealth has ever been regarded as the place above all others where public rights and public liberty have been carefully guarded; where the rights of the people have been considered superior to the rights of the monopolist.

We are now feeling the strength and power of great corporations, and while we have given to some great privileges, they have proved to be of benefit to the community at large; but the passage of such a bill as the one reported cannot be a benefit to the public. It will be an evil.

The common law gives to a wife the right of dower in the lands of her deceased husband, and our statutes more particularly define her rights.

The wife of any one of these petitioners, he being possessed of lands in his individual capacity, is entitled to her dower in such lands, but the formation of such a corporation as the one now the subject of discussion will enable him or them to hold and convey lands in defeat of the rights of the wife.

The property described in the bill reported was valued by the assessors of the city of Boston on the first day of May, 1882, at the gross amount of $38,500, and divided as follows: The land and building on Columbia Street (see Suffolk Deeds, Lib. 1500, Fol. 615) were valued at $19,500, and are apparently unincumbered; the land and building on Washington Street (see Suffolk Deeds, Lib. 1571, Fol. 381) was valued by the assessors at $19,000, and is incumbered by a mortgage of the amount of $20,000, apparently leaving an equity of $18,500 in the whole property. Such an amount of property does not necessitate the creation of a corporation for its management.

The holding of such an amount of property does not necessitate the issue of stock to the amount of $40,000, and the right to issue stock to the amount of $100,000 does not appear to be proper on the small equity represented.

All of the property described is now improved, covered with substantial brick buildings, and occupied for mercantile purposes and for dwellings; and the title to all this property is now in these petitioners, who have presented no reason for any change in the manner of holding.

Unless some strong necessity exists no act should be passed which would give to any person or association immunity and privileges which cannot be enjoyed under general laws.

For the reason before given, and believing that the establishment of a corporation for the purpose of buying and selling real estate is contrary to public policy, we recommend that the petitioners have leave to withdraw.

MICHAEL SEXTON.

Newton Associates.

I desire to add to those views of the minority of the committee which I have so adopted, only the observation that with a few, as I deem unfortunate and unhappy exceptions, to the interests of the Commonwealth, as I have before explained to the legislature, land companies have only been incorporated as incidental to some great public improvement. As, for example, the Essex Company of Lawrence, which was chartered for the purpose of improving the navigation of the Merrimack River; The Proprietors of the Locks and Canals at Lowell, which was chartered for a like purpose, and the Holyoke and Turner's Falls Company at Holyoke, which was chartered for a like purpose on the Connecticut River, and with the power of holding lands and using the water-power as simply incidental.

I desire to do all that I may to hinder and prevent the establishment of land companies in this Commonwealth, and believing most fully that there is no exigency for this company for the reasons before stated, I am constrained to interpose these my objections.

Investigation of Departments and Bureaus.

It having come to the knowledge of the Executive that there are certain departments of the government of the Commonwealth, and certain administrative bureaus, wherein malfeasance and misfeasance in office, and in administration, do now exist, and have heretofore existed, that require to be investigated and the facts brought to light for future guidance of legislation and administration, and that the officers therein may be dealt with as justice and proper administration demand, I respectfully ask that a joint committee of your honorable bodies be raised in the ordinary manner, and empowered to sit during the recess of the legislature, and investigate such cases as may be brought before them, with power to send for persons and papers, and employ a stenographer and clerk.

I would not trouble the legislature in this regard, except that I have had the honor to bring to the attention of both branches heretofore, the fact that the Executive Department is substantially powerless to make such investigation. There is no appropriation to pay the expenses, and there is no power, in most instances, to carry them on; and I have asked of the legislature that such power might be given to the governor and council to make such investigations. But the legislature, in its wisdom, has declined so to do, perhaps not wishing to trust the administrative branch of the government with that power, fearing that it might be wrongfully used. I now respectfully ask them to trust themselves to do it, being willing to go before any body of honorable and just-minded men with the matters that I think ought to be looked into, and to present to them such abuses as I think should be remedied, if on an investigation they are found to exist.

[To the House of Representatives, June 7.]

House of Correction at Plymouth.

I believe it my duty to make a more formal communication to your honorable body than was informally made by me to the Honorable Speaker of the House, about the loss of the bill in regard to the Plymouth County House of Correction. I find it necessary so to do, because I now find that another bill is missing from my table.

The custom was, when I came into the Executive office, to have the engrossed parchment rolls containing the bills brought and laid upon my desk, without any record of their receipt, so far as I knew. I requested that they should be laid on the desk of my private secretary, so that he might make a memorandum of their reception, and he then lays them upon my table. After examination they are returned to him to be deposited in the office of the Secretary of State if they are signed. If they are allowed to pass into laws by absence of my signature they are retained until the five days have elapsed. In case of bills to which I make objection, they are left upon my table to be returned with the message of objections to the proper house.

In the case of the Plymouth bill, it was lying on my table, and was examined by me, and the message prepared; and it was lying there while the message was being copied.

On the next day, when the message was to be sent in, it was looked for among the bills on my table, and could not be found. Every inquiry was made for it, and it could not then, and has not since been found.

When the several appropriation bills came, among them was a bill relating to the appropriation for the Tewksbury almshouse. They laid on my table together until I signed certain of them, and certain of them I gave to my private secretary, to be by him retained until the five days had expired, then to be sent to the office of the Secretary of State, as laws without my signature. I retained upon my table the bill in regard to the Tewksbury almshouse until I could prepare a message to the House, which I sent in to them, stating the fact that I had come to the conclusion to allow it to become a law. When that message was prepared and sent in, I looked for it among the bills on my table, and could not find it. I then inquired of my private secretary whether he had it, or had returned it to the Secretary of State, and was informed by him that he had not, and search was then made, and that bill could not be found.

outh.

It is difficult to see what object any one could have in taking away that bill except pure mischief.

Meanwhile I have lost some small articles from the drawers of my desk, which I either kept unlocked, or locked and the key deposited for convenience in another drawer. That has happened more than once.

I should feel myself responsible for these mischances and losses were it not that there are several duplicate keys to the Executive offices, by which they can be entered at any time by others than my secretaries and messengers, and I understand I have no control of any of the offices in the building. I suppose those keys are kept for the purposes of inspection of the Executive offices, watching against fire, and for the convenience of access of officers of the several departments when anything may be needed in the Executive Department.

I neither desire so to do, nor can I make any charges against anybody, of wrong-doing, but simply make this statement of facts for the information of the House, that they may take such action as they may be advised in regard to remedying such losses of bills.

There is no safe, or other place of deposit in the Executive offices in which these bills could have been any more protected than where they were.

Brockton Real Estate Improvement Company.

I feel obliged to return to your honorable body the bill to incorporate the "Brockton Real Estate Improvement Company."

My objections to the bill becoming a law, so far as its scope and action are concerned, have been set out already in my message to the legislature concerning the bill to incorporate the Newton Associates.

Brockton Real Estate Improvement Company.

All the evils of a company empowered to hold and sell lands, so far as the scope and action of that bill are concerned, are intensified, in my judgment, in the provisions of this bill, and I respectfully refer to those objections in writing sent to the legislature, as a part of my objections to this bill, except certain ones that are particularly applicable to the condition of the real estate mentioned in that bill.

To lock up fifty acres of land in a landed company in perpetuity, and alter the laws concerning succession in lands, the rights of inheritance and of dower, I hardly need reiterate, is against the public policy of the Commonwealth. And the fact that those objections were held tenable and valid by the requisite vote of the Honorable Senate, emboldens me to present them to the legislature once more through the House, in which this bill originated.

As an additional objection I take leave to refer the legislature to a matter which seems to me of very considerable importance. Chapter 2, sections 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13 and 14, inclusive, of the Public Statutes, contains certain provisions of law which are designed, if they are followed, to shorten the sessions of the legislature, which I cannot doubt both houses will agree with me, would be highly desirable, if it can be effected. Those sections provide that whoever intends to apply for an act of incorporation shall give certain notices to the public of that intention, at a suitable time therein stated, before the meeting of the legislature, in the manner and at the times therein stated. It is further therein provided that petitions for such bills shall be presented to the legislature within the first ten days of the session there-afterwards. It is further provided that in case of exigency, when all parties interested in the subject matter of the petition have waived notice, no other or further proof of notice shall be required. And when it appears that by unavoidable accident, and without default, or that the subject matter of the petition did not admit of such previous notice, that the notice shall be sufficient if given for the required period of time, as soon as the petitioner has discovered his omission, or within a reasonable time after the subject matter of the petition has arisen, or become known, provided that such petition is presented within thirty days after the assembling of the General Court.

This is the law, and is binding as well on the houses of the legislature as it is on the Executive, and every other citizen of the Commonwealth, until it is repealed, and nobody can waive its provisions.

I find by looking at the papers containing the action of the two houses upon this bill, sent to me with it for my information, that no notice whatever had been given; that there has been no waiver of such notice, nor is there any evidence accompanying the bill that any such exigency has arisen as might in any way dispense with that notice.

Perhaps I might be called upon to presume that all that had been made known to the two houses of the legislature in due form, but that they have failed to report it to me by accident. And if I were satisfied that such were the case I possibly ought not to make objection to the bill on that account.

But I must not forget that the Executive in this regard is a third branch of the legislature, and the evidence of the proper inception of the bill should be brought to me as well as to the two other branches. But, if that were all done, I cannot but observe that the petition, which is among the papers sent to me, shows officially that it was not presented until the fourteenth day of February, which was more than thirty days after the assembling of the General Court. And this plain provision of law cannot be disregarded. It was made for the wise purpose which I have at first indicated, and is to be enforced by the Executive in whatever sphere of his action.

I must therefore ask the reconsideration of this bill, in the light of my objections in writing hereinbefore mentioned.

House of Correction at Plymouth.

I send herewith the enrolled bill relating to the Plymouth House of Correction, which was not in my office at the time I sent in the message.

I have placed in the hands of the Secretary of State the bill making appropriation for the support of the Tewksbury Almshouse. Both of these bills came to me from outside of the State House, being found in the city.

I do not, at the present time, feel at liberty to give any further information as to when, how, and where found, because I am causing an inquiry to be made, in an endeavor to trace the loss, or taking, as any disclosures might interfere with the progress of that inquiry.

House of Correction at Plymouth.

I feel certain, so far as I have gone, that they were in some way taken from the Executive office, but by whom, how, and when, I cannot possibly tell. The latter bill I find upon reliable evidence was outside of the State House on June first. How much earlier than that, I do not know.

[To the House of Representatives, June 12.]

I have given to the bill, entitled "An Act to authorize cities, towns, fire districts, water, and aqueduct companies, to hold water for sale, and to sell the same to other cities, towns, fire districts, and individuals," that careful consideration which the importance of the subject matter seems to demand.

Bill authorizing certain Corporations to sell
Water.

As its title implies, it authorizes several public corporations to sell water to several other public corporations and individuals.

This bill, if it became a law, would authorize any corporation named, which is now or may hereafter be authorized to take and hold water for the purpose of supplying the inhabitants of a particular city, town or fire district with water for specific purposes, in addition to supplying the inhabitants of such city, town or fire district, also to hold for sale the water which they have been authorized to take, and may sell the same for the extinguishment of fires and for domestic and other purposes to any city, town, fire district, or corporation, or to any individual residing in a city, town, or fire district not having a water supply of its own.

The bill then provides that if any such corporation wishing to sell its water, and any city, town, fire district, or individual wishing to purchase such water, cannot agree upon the price with the purchaser, that the price may be fixed by commissioners appointed by the Superior Court.

It then enacts that any one of those corporations selling water under its provisions, shall pay all damages sustained by any person in his property by the taking of any additional land, right of way, water source, water right or easement, or by any other thing done under the provisions

certain Corpora-

of this Act, and then provides the same remedy for the party injured as is now provided by law for the taking of land for highways, provided that an application shall be made within three years; but no such application shall be made until the water is actually withdrawn or diverted under the authority of this Act.

It further provides that any such corporation shall within sixty days after the taking of any additional lands, rights of way, water rights, water sources or easements otherwise than by purchase, file and cause to be recorded in the Registry of Deeds for the county within which such lands or property is situated, a description thereof sufficiently accurate for identification, with a statement of the purpose for which the same were taken, signed by the chairman of the board or committee having charge of its water works.

Before proceeding to any discussion of the very peculiar provisions of the bill, it is convenient to look carefully at the general subject matter upon which it may act, and see how far its action can be justified within the limits of the Constitution or public policy.

Very many acts within the last few years have been passed for the purpose of supplying inhabitants of cities, towns and villages with water for domestic purposes, and the extinguishment of fires. These are "the specific purposes" mentioned in these acts, and it is one of the serious questions in the immediate future, where the inhabitants of this Commonwealth are to obtain a supply of pure water uncontaminated with sewerage or other deleterious matters, for their domestic uses. This is a question in which the whole public are concerned, and to meet this want the exercise of the right of eminent domain by the legislature, has been freely, and rightly, used. There is a natural right in all men to drink and use for domestic purposes, and for their cattle to drink all the water of natural streams and ponds which they need. And this right has been decided to appertain to the individual citizen as against all provisions of the legislature for the use of water for any other purpose, in several very much controverted cases in the highest courts of the State of Pennsylvania, those courts following the decisions of the English courts. This natural right has been strongly stated by Chief Justice Shaw in a case arising in our own courts. The legislature has interposed its law-making power to preserve this natural right, by passing laws to prevent the pollution of streams, so as to render their water unfit for such domestic uses. There are other quasi public uses of water which have always been held subordinate to this great natural right; that is to say, its use for navigation and for mill purposes.

Since 1845, when the first act was passed to supply the city of Boston with pure water from Lake Cochituate, lying twenty miles off, the right to take such water has always been held constitutional as a taking for a public use, although the public might be miles distant from the supply; and so far as I am advised, in no instance has the legislature permitted water thus taken by that right, for a public use, to be used for any other than domestic and fire-extinguishing purposes, and never for any other use or purpose, unless the conversion of it into steam for steam-power may be so termed. The use of it for dyeing purposes cannot be said to be in fact other than a domestic use, for as each family would have a right to dip the water from a neighboring stream to dye their goods, the use of water in a dyeing establishment would be only an aggregation of that use. The legislature has never permitted water to be taken under the right of eminent domain to be used as a mechanical power, and in some cases, to prevent all mistake, have actually prohibited it. As an example, the act authorizing the city of Lowell to take water from the Merrimack River for the use of its inhabitants, expressly prohibits its selling it for mechanical power, which prohibition, it may be said in passing, would be repealed by this bill if it became a law.

I do not think it is within the power of the legislature to authorize, under the right of eminent domain, the taking of water to be used for the purposes of mechanical power, by any corporation, municipal or other, and, as I believe, the legislature has never so done; most certainly never has it authorized any individual so to do. Can the legislature authorize a town to take water for a public use, and then authorize it to sell it to any individual for any and all private uses, as does this bill? That is to say, I have a head of water raised by a dam on a stream which is used for manufacturing purposes in running a mill. Can the legislature authorize the town to take that water from me and sell it to my rival in manufacturing, in a neighboring town, to be used in running his mill? Yet this is what

certain corpora-

this bill provides may be done. It is no answer to this proposition that the bill authorizes the town to pay me the damages which I may suffer by the loss of my water, because while I hold my property subject to be taken for a public use upon the payment of damages, I do not hold my property subject to be taken for a private use on payment of damages however great. It is mine, and I cannot be compelled to sell it to my rival. That there may be no mistake, if the bill allowed the sale of water only for public uses — domestic, or for the extinguishment of fires — this objection would not apply. But the bill expressly authorizes the sale of any water heretofore taken, or heretofore authorized to be taken, or hereafter taken, or hereafter authorized to be taken, and all that may be taken by this bill, to be sold to any city, town, fire district or corporation, or any individual for domestic or other purposes. That is to say, water heretofore taken for a public use, and upon no other ground whatever, and paid for as for a public use, and damages paid only for that use, may by this bill be used for the purposes of speculation and private gain. And this bill authorizes the taking of any lands, rights of way, water, water rights, water source or easement, or any other thing to enable the corporation so taking to get the water to sell.

Were the general scope of the bill unobjectionable, I pray leave to submit to the legislature whether the bill itself has been sufficiently guarded in its provisions for effecting its object.

The second section is certainly peculiar; that if any city or other corporation having water to sell, and any city, town, fire district or individual wishes to purchase such water, and cannot agree upon the price, then the price and terms shall be determined by three commissioners to be appointed upon the application of either party to the Superior Court. So that for water which it wants to sell a city may have its price fixed for it against its will. Heretofore in this Commonwealth when one has had anything to sell, and another wished to buy it, the legislature has left them to fix the price between themselves, or not conclude the bargain. This is the first time which has come under my notice when a legislature has attempted to interfere with the bargains between citizens for the sale of their own property for a private use, and I do not think it is an experiment which ought to be encouraged. But if it should be, why does this bill omit to give the same right to a corporation purchasing water to have the price thereof fixed by commissioners, that it gives to individuals? Why this discrimination, after having provided that a corporation may buy?

Bill authorizing certain corporations to sell Water.

Section three is still more peculiar. It provides that when damages are sustained by any person in his property by the taking of any additional land, right of way, water, water source or easement, or by any other thing done by any such corporation, under the authority of this act, such damages shall be paid; and that an application may be made for a jury to assess such damages, provided it is made within three years; but that no application for the assessment of such damages shall be made for the taking of any water or water rights, or injury done thereto, until the water is actually withdrawn or diverted. When shall the application be made if lands and rights of way only are taken? Again, how is the injured party to know when the water is "actually withdrawn," that is, sold? How can the party distinguish that from the water that is used for other purposes? It is true that section four provides that in sixty days after the taking of any such lands, rights of way, water rights or water sources, a description of them shall be filed in the Registry of Deeds, with a statement of the purpose for which the same is taken. But how does any such description show when the water is diverted? In the ordinary case where new water works are being put in, anybody can find out when the water is suffered to run, or is being pumped. But suppose this case: A corporation has a pipe drawing water from any mill-pond for domestic purposes, say a million gallons per day, for which only they have paid me. They deem it for their interests to sell a quarter of a million gallons more per day, and hoist their outlet gate a few inches and draw it; how am I to know when that is done? And under the limitation the time in which I may apply for damages runs against me, and in the end cuts me off from my remedy. What is to be done in that case?

I take leave to ask the attention of the legislature to these objections to the bill, and that they will reconsider it; and if the conclusion is arrived at that the purposes of the bill are within their constitutional power, and it is desirable that such a bill should be enacted, that the rights of property-holders may be guarded by other and different provisions in a new bill.

Shanly.

There has been sent up for my consideration a resolve authorizing the payment of the sum of $79,495.62 to Walter Shanly, from the treasury, “in full for actual losses and of all legal and equitable claims against the Commonwealth, incurred in the construction of the Hoosac Tunnel, provided he will execute and deliver to the treasurer of the Commonwealth, upon payment of the said sum, a release under seal for all claims and demands whatsoever of said Walter Shanly and Francis Shanly, both and either of them, against the Commonwealth.”

It seems that Francis Shanly and Walter Shanly, as co-partners, were contractors with the Commonwealth for doing certain contract work upon the Hoosac Tunnel; that they received the full contract price for all work done by them under their contract, being paid in settlement of a balance found due on said contract, after making deductions for payments made and for railroad track not laid, etc., and also the sum of $27,115.47 for extra work performed by them in connection with the contract.

For this money the contractors “acknowledged to have received payment from the Commonwealth for balance due on the contract, after making certain deductions on account of railroad track not laid, it being in full settlement for all claims against the Commonwealth, except certain equitable claims, for which they proposed to ask relief from the legislature.”

This money was paid on a warrant dated December 23, 1874.

Thereafterwards, on the eleventh of January, 1875, the Messrs. Shanly presented their petition to the legislature, in which they embodied all the equitable claims which they claimed to have against the State; that after a full hearing in which the Commonwealth was represented by the attorney-general and the Messrs. Shanly by eminent counsel, a resolve in their favor was reported to the House, which passed after very considerable opposition—for the payment of the sum of $131,000.00; and on the 26th day of May, 1875, application having been made to the Executive for payment, a warrant was drawn in their favor which ordered the treasurer to pay unto Walter and Francis Shanly, the sum of $131,000.00, “said sum being in full settlement for all claims against the Commonwealth on account of the construction of the Hoosac Tunnel;" and this money was paid over and receipted for by Walter Shanly, for himself and as attorney for his brother Francis, on the back of the warrant.

Claim of Walter Shanly.

It will be observed that the sums found due and paid under the contract and for extra work were each the result of calculation, because they are drawn out even to the cents, but the additional amount afterwards appropriated by the legislature was a round sum, showing that, as "equitable claims" only had been presented to the legislature, it gave them a lump sum which was receipted for by them in full settlement for all claims.

I have no knowledge, nor have I sought to inform myself of the equitable considerations which gave rise to some claim by the Messrs. Shanly against the Commonwealth, because it seemed to me that the several proceedings and the payment and receipts for money in pursuance of them, were, or ought to be, forever a bar to any claim whatever.

I have looked into the report of your committee to see what effect they had given the former acts of the Executive and legislature, and to the receipt of money under them by the Messrs. Shanly, and I found it stated in these words: "The receipt was not given under seal."

"It is a well-settled proposition of law that the payment of a less sum than is actually due will not discharge the whole claim, even if a receipt be given for the entire sum. Receipts may be explained by oral testimony."

All of which is true in regard to an ascertained sum, the result of a legal claim, and a receipt in full is given for a less amount actually received. But what is the law if there is no legal claim at all?

If A owes B one thousand dollars for goods sold and delivered at a contract price, and B receives from A five hundred dollars only, it will not, as it ought not, bar B from suing for and recovering the remaining five hundred dollars, although A's receipt should be written in full.

But the rule is entirely different, as I understand it, as it ought to be, in the case of a mere equitable claim sending in damages or for loss sustained, as was the case of the gentlemen Shanly, for which there is no legal demand, but only an equitable claim.

Claim of Walter
Shanly.

Then the offer of a lump sum in full by the one party and received by the other, will be in full whether any receipt is given or not.

This has been adjudged by the Supreme Court of the United States in a series of cases for claims made against the government, arising out of the war, known as the "St. Louis cases" and the "Iron-clad cases;" that is to say, if, for a claim against it, the government offers to pay a certain sum, the party has his option to receive it or not. If he does receive it he must receive it in full as it is offered, and be bound by it, or not receive it at all.

At first blush it would seem that the legislature must have found an exact sum actually due Mr. Shanly by calculation, for the resolve appropriates $79,495.62; but, turning again to the report of the committee and the resolve as reported to the Senate, I find that the original report was $129,495.62 instead of $79,495.62, and that $50,000.00 was struck off by amendment, although when or how the resolve was so amended does not distinctly appear.

If I should sign this resolve, and Mr. Shanly should take the money, I see nothing to prevent him from coming again to the legislature for that $50,000 some seven years afterwards, as he has now done, because, although the proviso is that he shall give a release, under seal, both for himself and his brother, who is now dead, I am at a loss to see what possible legal effect such release would have.

Confessedly he has no legal claim upon the Commonwealth, and therefore there is no need of a technical release under seal, even if the release can be so made as to bind his dead brother's estate and his creditors, and I doubt whether any member of the bar could be found who would give an opinion that the release required by the proviso has any legal or equitable effect upon Mr. Shanly's claim. Certainly not as much as did the act of the gentlemen Shanly receiving their money under an agreement that it would be in full in May, 1875.

Consistently with a conscientious discharge of my duty as the constitutional guardian of the public treasury, I cannot permit so large a sum to be drawn therefrom, to be replaced by taxation, where I am thoroughly convinced there is neither legal nor equitable claim against the Commonwealth therefor.

I must, therefore, ask the two Houses, in the light of my objections, to reconsider this resolve.

[To the House of Representatives, June 28.]

I have before me a bill to apportion and assess a State tax of two million dollars. State Tax.

The bill contains nothing more than its title indicates. Therefore, the simple question arises, whether it is either economical or necessary to assess the people of the Commonwealth to that amount to be paid by them into the State treasury during the present year.

I agree fully to the maxim, "pay as you go," but I do not believe that it is wise to assess money in advance of the time when it is to be paid out, to remain on deposit in the several banks of the Commonwealth at three per cent. interest, while the citizens who pay it in their taxes, many of them must borrow the money at five per cent. substantially, as a minimum, or take it from their business at a still greater cost.

I find that on January 1, 1879, there was a "revenue cash" balance in the treasury of $1,294,517.79, and that the State tax for that year was $500,000; that there was a "revenue cash" balance in the treasury January 1, 1880, of $1,083,676.06, and that the State tax for that year was $1,500,000; that there was a "revenue cash" balance in the treasury January 1, 1881, of $2,294,055.99, and that the State tax for that year was $1,500,000; that the "revenue cash" balance in the treasury January 1, 1882, was $1,351,639.39, and that the State tax for that year was $2,000,000; and that the "revenue cash" balance in the treasury January 1, 1883, was $1,793,933.82, and the present bill calls for a State tax of $2,000,000. Besides this, by the report of the Finance Committee to the House of 1882, accompanying bill for an assessment of the State tax of $2,000,000 of that year, the whole expenditures then to be provided for, were stated at $5,284,685.28, and the estimated revenue from other sources than direct taxation, with the cash in the treasury at the beginning of the year, is stated at $3,965,334.39, leaving a deficit to be provided for by a State tax of $1,319,350.89.

By the report of the Finance Committee to the House this year, accompanying this bill for an assessment of a State Tax.

State tax of $2,000,000, the whole expenditures to be provided for this year are stated at $5,154,753.18, and the estimated revenue from other sources than direct taxation, with the cash in the treasury on the first of the year, is stated at $4,494,362.82, leaving a deficit to be provided for this year of only $660,390.36; a difference of $658,960.53 in favor of this year; and yet this bill, under this estimate of reduced expenditures and increased revenue, proposes to raise the same tax as last year, thus imposing an unnecessary and unreasonable present burden upon the people.

So far as I can learn from the estimates and appropriations, a tax of $2,000,000 for the year 1883 will leave a "revenue cash" balance in the treasury January 1, 1884, relatively larger than the balance in the treasury at the beginning of the present year, assuming that the tax will be, as it has been heretofore, substantially collected by the first of January, 1884.

Now, I can see no necessity for having so large a balance of cash on hand on the first of next January as more than one and a half million dollars.

The only reason for it that has been suggested to me, is that it may be needed to pay the necessary expenditures before the taxes for 1884 can be collected. Admitting a need for so much cash there will be, besides the "revenue cash" in the treasury, a large amount due trust funds waiting to be invested. They cannot now be invested at a rate much, if any, exceeding three per cent. Now, I suppose it is well known that several cities and towns borrow money to pay that State tax in anticipation of their revenues, and sometimes they borrow it from the State. That is to say, the State loans them money at short dates on which they pay a considerably larger rate of interest than three per cent. If they borrowed at the same rate that the State receives for its money deposited in the banks, the results would be exactly equal; but as they do not, the higher rate of their loans puts the burden upon the cities and towns.

I agree that it is not desirable, as a rule, that the State should borrow trust funds to be used in paying current expenses, certainly not on long time loans. But as the money is paid in for interest, and otherwise, to the State, and the State has to deposit it until proper investment can be found, getting, as we have seen, a low rate of interest on the deposit, such funds are practically loaned to the State, and by the State temporarily loaned to the banks in which such moneys are deposited; and the moneys so deposited are much in excess of any amount needed by the State to tide over the interval before the State taxes for the succeeding year are collected. State Tax.

In reading the papers sent me, with the bill containing estimates of expenditures for the year, I notice several items included therein for which this large tax is supposed to make provision, which I hope and believe will not be called for within the present year. Among them is an item for the payment for the Way estate. It is by no means certain that the $130,000 which will finally be used to pay for the Way estate will be needed, as it is hardly probable that the title to that estate can be settled and the various conflicting interests therein be adjusted within the next six months.

Then I observe that the sum of $10,000 is appropriated to pay the bounty on beet and sorghum sugar. That bill was passed so late that I doubt whether any considerable quantity of that bounty will be needed.

I also observe an item of $10,000 is estimated for the rent and taxes of the Pemberton Square offices. It is quite certain that no more than one-half of that amount will be needed.

Then there is an amount of $79,000 which it is claimed it will be necessary to make provision for out of this surplus of revenue, for the payment of what is known as the Shanly claim. I believe it is by no means certain that that amount will be needed to be expended during the present year.

I also hope that there will be some reduction of expenditures growing out of economic administration during the present year which will accomplish a considerable reduction of the expenditures otherwise necessary to be provided for. This would be especially true in the State Prison, the Reformatory Prison for Women, and the Military Department, which department, and the State institutions, are in a condition now to be carried on by reasonable economy. So that I think it would be safe to calculate that a quarter of a million dollars of the two million the bill provides for, will not be needed, leaving but a small amount comparatively to be provided for by the ways and means I have indicated.

State Tax.

All experience has shown that large cash balances in the treasury of a State or nation tend to extravagance and lavish expenditure, and the legislature are under great temptation to make improvident appropriations. My best opinion is that a State tax of one million would be sufficient to meet the needs of the Commonwealth; but to provide for all possible contingencies, I feel quite certain that a State tax of $1,500,000 will be ample.

I am the more constrained to this belief because under the reform administration of 1879, the State tax for that year was only $500,000, while the ordinary expenses did not vary greatly — certainly not in any such proportion as five bears to fifteen — from the expenditure of the present year. And I am not allowed to suppose that for any political purpose the tax of that year was so far reduced as not properly and fairly to meet those expenditures.

With these views, I must ask the House, where, as the Constitution says, “all money bills shall originate,” to reconsider this bill in the light of my objections; and I also invoke the economy and conservatism of the Senate to action in the same direction. Let all departments of the government unite, at least, in trying to lighten the burdens of the State in taxation, a half million dollars, especially as it seems quite probable that at least one important branch of our manufacturing industries, the woolen business, will not be profitable the remainder of the present year.

[To the Senate and House of Representatives, July 2.]

Proposed Adjournment of the Legislature from June 26 to Aug. 27, 1883.

I have the honor to receive a communication from your honorable bodies through your joint committee, based upon the following concurrent order of the two Houses: —

“COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.

“HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

“JUNE 22, 1883.

“Ordered, That a committee of eight on the part of the House, with such as the Senate may join, be appointed to wait upon His Excellency the Governor, and request him, with the advice and consent of the council, to adjourn the legislature from Tuesday, June 26th inst., to Monday, August 27th, 1883, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, to the end that the legislature may at that time receive and act upon the report of the Joint Committee on Public Charitable Institutions in regard to the charges made by His Excellency relating to the management of the State almshouse at Tewksbury.

Proposed Adjournment of the Legislature from June 26 to Aug. 27, 1883.

“S. N. GIFFORD, Clerk.”

In compliance therewith, the request set forth in the order was, in due form, made to the Executive.

A request presented in so grave and formal a manner, and being, so far as I am advised, without precedent, and because of the profound respect due any request of both Houses of the legislature, seemed to demand more careful consideration than it could receive if a reply was at once to be made. I therefore craved the indulgence of your committee to report to the two Houses that I would make answer at the earliest possible moment in writing.

The order does not set forth any case of disagreement between the two Houses with regard either to the necessity or expediency or time of adjournment. Therefore the case does not come within the sixth article, section second, of the Constitution.

The Governor, if he shall act at all, must act under the fifth article of said section, which provides that “he shall have power and authority, during the session of the General Court, to adjourn or prorogue the same to any time the two Houses shall desire” . . . “if the welfare of the Commonwealth shall require the same.”

The provisions of the Constitution, therefore, place upon the Executive, and not upon the two Houses, the burden of determining when the “welfare of the Commonwealth requires an adjournment or prorogation to a given time.”

I see that the two Houses agree that different consequences might follow from prorogation by the Governor than from adjournment at their desire, because, upon examining the proceedings of the two Houses, I find by amendment the word “prorogue” was stricken out and the word “adjourn” substituted. Ex industria. This saves me from any consideration or discussion of the different consequences that would flow from an adjournment of the two Houses by the Executive rather than from their prorogation. The sole question then left for me to determine is: Does the welfare of the Commonwealth require the adjournment asked?

Proposed Adjournment of the Legislature from June 26 to Aug. 27, 1883.

I take care to call attention in passing, that the Executive could not literally comply with the request in the order of the two branches in this: that you request the Governor to order an adjournment from June 26 to August 27, when in fact, no order was presented nor request made for such adjournment until June 29, the legislature being then in session.

It is evident from the provisions of the Constitution that its framers understood that this power would be exercised by the Executive only in great public exigencies.

Whenever the Constitution authorizes a call by one of the great departments of the government upon another for guidance, advice or action, it pre-supposes the exercise of such right to be "upon matters and upon solemn occasions," as for example: When either branch of the legislature or the Executive is authorized by the Constitution to require opinions of the justices of the supreme judicial court, it must be upon "important questions of law and upon solemn occasions," the latter, of course, when the advice of the judiciary might be needful to the two branches when the Commonwealth was in deadly peril.

It certainly never was intended that that power should be used by either branch of the government to call upon the judiciary for advice in trivial matters. In other words, one department of the government should not call upon the other as to matters of inconvenience merely, but only in a case of great exigency. I think both Houses will agree with me that this is the true exposition of the Constitution in this regard. Is there now any such exigency of "welfare of the Commonwealth" that requires me to put the Commonwealth to the expense of an extra session of the legislature? Because, however limited the subjects to be acted upon, which might induce the two Houses to desire, and the Executive to order, an adjourned session, it in fact will be, although not technically, an extra session of the legislature; as it would be if the new session came from prorogation to a time certain. It cannot be doubted that the legislature once together in due manner and form, all subjects of legislation are open to them, and they may continue that session until they die by constitutional limitation.

I look, then, to the order to see what public exigency was in the mind of the legislature that both Houses make such a request, and I find it in these words: "To the end that the legislature may at that time receive and act upon the report of the joint committee on Public Charitable Institutions in regard to the charges made by His Excellency relating to the management of the State almshouse at Tewksbury."

Proposed Adjournment of the Legislature from June 26 to Aug. 27, 1883.

I was a little astonished when I heard the reasons for adjournment announced by the chairman, that so grave a request should be made upon what seemed to me so trivial grounds. I said to him: "May I be permitted to enquire whether there is any other business that will require the attention of the legislature except this?" To which he courteously answered, "I believe, your Excellency, that all matters have been disposed of by the two branches."

There is a very grave mistake of fact contained in the order, to which, in the first place, I desire to call your attention. The order says: "To receive and act upon the report of the joint committee on Public Charitable Institutions, in regard to the charges made by His Excellency relating to the management of the State almshouse at Tewksbury." I beg leave to bring to your notice that His Excellency has made no charges. The legislature authorized its joint committee to make a certain investigation; that committee invited the Governor to come before them and produce any evidence that might have come to his knowledge. In compliance with that invitation, the Governor appeared before your committee, when a motion was made by the counsel appearing to oppose the investigation, that the Governor should put specified charges in writing before the committee against the management and personnel of the Tewksbury almshouse, which the Governor declined to do on the ground that it was not a part of his duty so to do.

In that position he was sustained by vote of the committee, and the investigation went on, the Governor producing evidence, so far as it came to him, in the first instance to establish the propositions of his message, and then such other evidence as was furnished to him. In the meantime it came to the knowledge of the Governor that the superintendent of the Tewksbury almshouse was not a legally qualified officer of the Commonwealth, and that its money was being disbursed not in accordance with the law. Finding that the trustees of the Tewksbury almshouse had been derelict in their duties, the Governor, under the provisions of statute, devolved their duties upon the State Board of Health, Lunacy and Charity.

After a struggle by that board to find justification for evading their duties under that order, which was futile in its results, the Board took upon themselves the charge of the almshouse, proceeded to reorganize it either by removal or the acceptance of the resignations of the superintendent, resident physician, and assistant superintendent, all of whom had been in charge of the administration of the almshouse for many years.

Meanwhile the appropriation for the support of the almshouse for the coming year had been made, and as new executive officers have been appointed by the State Board of Health, Lunacy and Charity, it may well be presumed that all the existing abuses would be remedied, and I have no knowledge that that is not in process of being done.

Why, then, for all practical purposes, has not the investigation of the committee fulfilled its object? But the committee chose to go on, and the investigation still continues. This change of officers, and the several changes of methods which have been set on foot by the State Board, as announced, either officially or unofficially, through publications by their members, is a confession of judgment that the faults of management and wrongs done by those who had the institution in charge, required the change.

Now assume that the report of the committee be one thing or another, what needed thing can be done by the legislature? They cannot remove, by legislation, the supposed delinquents, for that is done already. They cannot change what has been done; those are accomplished facts.

If the legislature should meet on the 27th of August, and hear the report, what would be gained, all the evidence having already been reported in print? There will then be but four months and a few days at the farthest, before another legislature will come in, and have the whole matter before them, together with all the evidence.

I observe that there is an order introduced into the Senate, that your committee of investigation should sit during the recess of the legislature, and report in print. In my judgment, such action would be wise. Why should not the legislature, after passing that order, be adjourned, go home and read the report of the committee, in print, which they desire to come together as a legislature to hear?

I suppose nobody will assume that the Board of Health, Lunacy and Charity will not do their duty efficiently, and I commend the promptness of their action after they came to the conclusion to assume the responsibility of acting at all.

Proposed Adjournment of the Legislature from June 26 to Aug. 27, 1883.

The legislature have already been in session, from time to time, quite six months. If I may allude to what is a matter of public history, it will appear upon their journals that a portion of the legislature do not think that the salary fixed by law for their services is sufficient.

Why, without an overwhelming necessity, do they subject themselves to further labor without pay?

It is obvious that if the Governor believed there was no necessity for a further session of the legislature that he would not be too much inclined, so far as it lay in his power to prevent, to permit the State to be put to any additional expense for the travel and pay of the members of the legislature to do that which in his judgment there is no need to be done.

It is not the fault of the Executive that this investigation is not finished.

If the actual intention of the order of investigation was to inquire into what was said in the inaugural address, why delay until nearly three months after the session of the legislature, within which time, in my judgment, the legislature did have ample time to do all needed public business, if they had used all the working days of that time, so as to have been able to adjourn on the first day of April.

The two Houses will see, therefore, that in my view, there is no exigency of the "public welfare" that requires me to adjourn the two Houses to the day named.

I should be very glad to prorogue them on any day they choose, until the first Tuesday in January.

All the bills and resolves, except two, that the legislature have passed have either become laws by limitation of time or have received my signature, or been sent back with my objections, all of which have been sustained. Of these two, the tax bill will be returned to the proper House immediately with the reception of this message, and a resolve will also be returned with my objections.

I have given to the request of the two Houses to adjourn them my most careful consideration; all the more because I find myself obliged to disagree with them in regard to the question claiming the demand of "the welfare of the Commonwealth."

Proposed Adjournment of the Legislature from June 26 to Aug. 27, 1883.

If I could have any doubt upon the question it would be my duty which I should cheerfully perform to resolve it in favor of the request. But I have none whatever.

There is still another reason why I have given this question anxious attention. If the legislature could adjourn itself without my consent, in that case I could throw the responsibility upon them, and it is always a convenience for a public officer to rid himself of responsibilities. But with the full conviction that the legislature cannot adjourn itself, I find myself obliged to take the sole responsibility of denying the request for an adjournment of the legislature to a future date.

I am confirmed in my opinion that the legislature cannot adjourn itself, because I find by the Constitution an express inhibition upon each House to adjourn itself for more than two days at a time with or without the consent of the other, and therein our Constitution differs from the Constitution of the United States.

True, I have heard it said that while the Constitution prevents each House from adjourning, yet there is power in both Houses to adjourn jointly to a future time, but I do not find any such authority in the Constitution.

If it is to be deduced from anything, it is from the fact that, by the Constitution, neither House can adjourn itself to a future day more than two days distant. From that lack of power in each so to do, how any affirmative power in both Houses so to do is obtained, passes my comprehension. I cannot conceive, to state it mathematically, how zero added to zero can produce anything but zero.

Of any supposed right of the two Houses to assemble without the consent of the Governor I say nothing here and now. It is a power, if it exists, that has not been exercised for more than one hundred years.

I could conceive of a possible exigency that might permit it, but that would be an emergency almost justifying revolutionary measures. But to hear or act upon the report of the Tewksbury investigating committee, which in my judgment will not change the opinion or action of a single individual, is not such an exigency.

[To the House of Representatives, July 10.]

State Workhouse destroyed by fire.

The members of the House have undoubtedly been informed, through the public prints, of the destruction of the State Workhouse at Bridgewater by fire.

The whole of the building used for the habitation and confinement of the inmates of the institution was destroyed on Saturday last, leaving unburned the barns and the adjacent out-buildings only.

State Work-house destroyed by fire.

All the buildings were appraised on the first of October last at $132,000. But as the appraisal is only reported in a lump sum, it is impossible from any official sources to state what is the worth of the remaining buildings.

While the destroyed buildings in a certain degree answered the purposes of the institution, yet, from their piecemeal construction and unfitness for the purpose for which they are devoted, their worth to the State was much less than the appraised value, which it is supposed had some relation to their cost. I have no doubt that for $60,000, and perhaps less, with due regard for economy, buildings could be built in which the inmates of the work-house could be in a far better manner accommodated and cared for.

There was a very considerable portion of the personal property, consisting of clothing, furniture, tools and machinery destroyed, which makes the loss to the State sufficiently severe.

The inmates — and I use the word as a generic term, because while most come there as convicts, at the present time, yet there are considerable numbers who are there voluntarily — have been provided for at the State Reform School at Westborough, which has sufficient room for their present accommodation. But this provision ought only to be temporary, as in an emergency, if the State Reform School is to be continued. While the whole number of inmates at Bridgewater is at this season of the year somewhere in the neighborhood of one hundred and thirty, yet in the winter season vagrants, common drunkards, and other persons convicted of minor offences are sent there, so as to raise the number in some cases to about four hundred, together with the State paupers who are transferred thence from Tewksbury.

Three questions present themselves to the legislature : —

I. Shall the Bridgewater State Workhouse be continued? If so, it must be rebuilt and equipped at an expense, ultimately, of at least $100,000.

II. Will the State abandon this feature in her correctional system of administration, and distribute the convicts to the houses of correction in the several counties?

State Workhouse destroyed by fire.

III. Will the State devote the Westborough establishment to this institution, and distribute its present inmates to other correctional institutions, or endeavor to maintain the school as a part of the State Workhouse?

There is in favor of the first proposition, the fact that there is a large amount of land at Bridgewater, well situated except perhaps as regards drainage, under a very good state of cultivation, with entirely sufficient agricultural buildings. The appraised value of its land is in the neighborhood of twenty-five thousand dollars, and the buildings perhaps some eight or ten thousand dollars more. It may be doubted whether, if the land and buildings are abandoned by the State and sold to the highest bidder, they would bring more than fifteen per cent. upon their cost or appraised value.

Another argument in favor of the same proposition is that by erecting new buildings, the present correctional system for minor offences would be continued in force.

Against it is the expenditure, when fully completed and equipped, of say $125,000, and establishing a place of confinement where the average board and care of each inmate cost, last year, $154.74; or a weekly cost of $3, which is considerably more than double the cost for the same class of convicts in some of the houses of correction in the counties.

The argument in support of the second proposition is that the inmates can be cared for in the houses of correction much more economically than under the State Workhouse system. The paupers can be supported at the State Almshouse, and, under proper administration, can be equally well cared for.

In the affirmative of the third question the argument is that this would be by far the most economical course for the State, if it is to continue the present State Workhouse system; but it would require the abandonment or merging of the Westborough Reform School for Boys, without perhaps any very great harm to the boys, who are under sentence generally for graver offences than are those who are sentenced to the State Workhouse.

There is still another proposition which involves somewhat different consideration: The reports of the increasing number of the insane demonstrate that almost as soon as proper buildings can be prepared, a new insane hospital must be erected, in which it would seem to be as well that the chronic and imbecile insane who are now under the care of the State, might be put together in one establishment, in plain economical buildings to be adapted to the different treatment needed by each class, where the beneficiaries might be afforded the comforts of more home-like care, and given employments and amusements which would alleviate the sufferings of their unhappy condition in a more economical manner to the State than is now done at either of the hospitals, or the insane asylum at Tewksbury; and the patients at the overcrowded insane hospitals might be so classified as to give greater scope for a hope of improvement than by the present system. Certain it is that something must be done soon in this direction, and this may be the opportune moment to do it. Thereby the well-tilled farm at Bridgewater, with its expensive agricultural buildings and its extent of land, might be utilized to the State, which, if the Bridgewater establishment were to be abandoned, would otherwise be lost.

State Work-house destroyed by fire.

These suggestions, which, from the haste in which they are prepared, I admit to be crude, I respectfully submit for the consideration of the legislature.

I believe if Bridgewater is to be rebuilt an appropriation of $50,000 to rebuild a portion of it sufficient to accommodate all of the inmates of such an institution that cannot as well be cared for in other institutions, is all that could be profitably used during the present year. And if, say, ten thousand dollars more should be appropriated to refurnish the establishment in addition to the present appropriations, enough may be done to put a very considerable portion of it in working order by the coming winter, so that the inmates who ought to go there can be cared for; the further work to be done to come within the province of the next General Court. If the legislature in its wisdom should come to the conclusion to rebuild the establishment at Bridgewater for any purpose, then I respectfully submit that provision should be made that the plans and specifications of the buildings should be submitted to the governor and council for their approval. There is no occasion to build at Bridgewater either a monument to an architect or an advertisement of architectural designs, but only plain, economical, comfortable houses, substantially fire-proof, for the accommodation and safety of those whose esthetic capacities have either never been cultivated, or are impaired.

[To the Senate, July 27.]

Clerks of the Senate and House of Representatives.

I have the honor to return to the House in which it originated, a Resolve entitled "A Resolve in favor of the Clerks of the Senate and House of Representatives," and ask a reconsideration of the Resolve by the two Houses. I object to the Resolve because it gives additional salary to two officers of the House and Senate respectively, in addition to their salaries as fixed by law. The present salaries of these offices were fixed at $2,000 by the Legislature of 1879, whose wisdom I am not permitted to doubt, in this that they fixed the salary of the Governor of the Commonwealth at $4,000 a year as being in their opinion that "honorable salary," which is provided for the supreme executive magistrate by the Constitution, being a diminution of the former salary of one-quarter of the present. In 1880 those salaries were increased $500, and are now fixed at $2,500 per annum. I find that that very deserving officer, with large duties and heavy responsibilities, the Secretary of Commonwealth, receives but $2,500 per year, the same salary as the Clerk of the Senate and House, and he is obliged to attend sedulously here at the State House during the whole year. The Auditor of Accounts, who is always obliged to attend to his duties here during the whole year, receives a salary of $2,500, while the Treasurer and Receiver General of the Commonwealth, with the responsibility of many millions, and he is burdened with the procurement of the heavy bond of $100,000, whose duties confine him closely to his office during the year, has a salary of but $4,000, and in addition to this he performs the duties of tax commissioner. If these salaries are adequate, and I have seen no proposition to increase them, it seems to me very clear that the salaries of the Clerks of the Senate and House, as now fixed by law, are quite adequate.

I do not wish to be understood in any way as intimating that the Clerks of both House and Senate are not entirely competent and faithful officers, but I assume that the other officers whom I have mentioned are equally so.

It may be claimed in behalf of these first-named officers that this session of the Legislature is unusually, if not unprecedentedly, protracted, and that there has been an extra burden thrown on the Clerks of the two Houses.

That is true, but if, as I had hoped at the commencement of the session of the Legislature, its session had been unprecedentedly short, then I suppose nobody would have said that their salaries ought to be diminished. Besides, I cannot fail to observe that this session has been equally burdensome upon the members of the House in which this bill originated, and I am bound to assume that their time is as valuable to them and that their labors have been as arduous as those of their Clerks, and the members of that House have not expressed any intention or wish to increase their own salaries on account of the length of the session, and while I applaud the magnanimity which induces them to vote extra compensation to the Clerks of the two Houses and not to themselves, yet it seems to me that the burdens of this long session must, however unfortunate and unpleasant they may be, be borne with patience by all, whether they fall upon the Executive, the members of the Legislature, or any other department of the government, the labors of which have been increased thereby.

Resolve in favor of the Clerks of the Senate and House of Representatives.
